At Mid-Term, Pledges Tax Breaks For Senior Citizen Homeowners

Phelan Says 'Fiscal House In Order'

TWO FORMER MAYORS, Arthur Tobin and Walter Hanhon, were among those attending Monday's mid-term ceremonies at City Hall. Quincy's financial "house is in order" and better positioned to help those struggling to make ends meet, Mayor William Phelan declared in his mid-term address Monday.

After enduring three years of uncertain fiscal times, Quincy has dug itself out of a financial mess and is now poised to give back to the community in the form of tax breaks for some senior citizens and greater fuel assistance for needy families, he said.

"Today, while economic forecasters give us mixed signals about the future, Quincy's house is in order, and we are making the investments we need to ensure a brighter future," Phelan said during his second mid-term address.

Homeowners, and senior citizens in particular, have "suffered enough in recent years, and deserve a break," said Phelan.

To that end, the mayor will propose $400 tax breaks to Quincy homeowners age 65 and older who have lived in their house for at least 20 years. The estimated cost of the initiative will be roughly $1 million, he said.

"Seniors who have worked their whole life shouldn't be forced to move out of the city because their house has gone up in value," said Phelan.

According to Dave Murphy, Phelan's aide, details of the home rule petition are still being ironed out. An official proposal will be submitted later this month, he said. If implemented this year, the program would benefit approximately 3,000 residents, said Phelan.

In addition, the mayor will seek a large increase in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds for fuel assistance to be dis

'For Financial Reasons'

Cousin Leaving QTA And Quincy, Too

By TOM HENSHAW

Alan Cousin, founder and president of the watchdog Quincy Taxpayers Association (QTA), is leaving his post and the city, ironically for financial reasons.

"I will be leaving Quincy in January, after living here 14 years," he wrote in a letter to The Quincy Sun.

"My finances dictate that I take less expensive living quarters which a friend has offered me in Cambridge,"

Cousin, who has conducted a consulting business in Quincy, said he has moved to Cambridge also to accept a job working on data base conversion at Harvard University.

"I'm not eligible to run the QTA anymore," he said.

ALAN COUSIN

"I'm not even eligible for membership."

He had a parting word of caution for the people he was leaving behind in Quincy three years after he revived the once dormant QTA.

"Taxpayers have an opportunity to push for a 'reinvention' of Quincy city government," he said, "radically reshaping it to make it more effective, more efficient and less expensive in the long run.

"Yet taxpayers can only accomplish these things with a strong, unified, organized voice. That was why I founded the QTA and I devoutly hope others will carry it on even though I can't."

Cousin said he has named a committee of three — members Bob Haley, Roy Johnson and John Murphy — to recruit candidates for the president's position.

"We would be having an election for a new president in March, anyway," he said.

Cousin's sudden departure threw the QTA into some confusion.

"Alan was the driving force behind the QTA," said

Re-elected City Council President

McCauley Starts 32nd And Farewell Year

Frank McCauley will serve his last year on the city council as council president, after receiving a unanimous endorsement from his colleagues Monday.

But McCauley, 75, dispelled any rumors that he would seek out another term as a city councillor.

"This will be my final year on the Quincy City Council," he declared during Monday's council meeting.

After his re-election as council president, McCauley pointed out the importance of the city council's role, even though Quincy operates under a "strong mayor-weak council" form of government, he said.

COUNCILLOR FRANK MCCAULEY, unanimously re-elected to serve as council president, told those in attendance that this will be his last year as city councillor. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

A strong mayor "gets nowhere unless he has the cooperation of the city council," he said.

McCauley, who was nominated for the position of council president by Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, cited a number of accomplishments made during the past year, including the city council's approval of the mayor's $10 million bond issue for parks improvements, and the city's financial agreement with Quincy College.

"But where this council really shined was back in the budget sessions," he said,

Bartley To Receive Honorary Degree

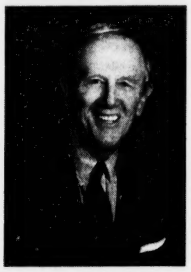
Largest Ever Winter Class To Graduate Quincy College

Quincy College will graduate its largest ever winter class of 228 Saturday, Jan. 8, at 1 p.m. in ceremonies at the Marriott Hotel in Quincy.

One fourth of the graduates are from Quincy with more than 50 cities and town across greater Boston and more than three dozens nations represented.

Dr. David M. Bartley, president and CEO of the New England Board of Higher Education, will be awarded an honorary degree in public service.

He will be cited for his lifetime commitment to education and politics that reflects his passion for service whose contributions span decades and "represent positive, meaningful change."



Bartley served 13 years in the State House of Representatives, seven as Speaker, leaving the Legislature in 1975 to become president of Holyoke Community College.

He will be introduced at the commencement by Attorney George Burke of Quincy, a classmate and lifelong friend. Burke and Bartley were the first two state representatives elected from UMass-Amherst.

The program will feature speakers from throughout the college community, detailing the significance of each component of the ceremony from the academic regalia to the traditional college mace

Faculty, staff and administrators will join President Sean Barry and the Board of Governors on the stage for the first time representing the unity of the Quincy College campus.

"As a group, we want to send a message of thanks for being part of the Quincy College family," said Tom DeSantes, vice president for enrollment management.

"With a significant increase in the number of graduates this year, the message has never been more meaningful."

$400 Tax Breaks For Long-time Homeowners

Councillors Cautious On Mayor's Relief Plan

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Mayor William Phelan's proposal giving tax breaks to longtime homeowners is receiving a cautious reception from some members of the city council, who say they want to see more details about the plan before making a commitment.

During Monday's mid-term address, Phelan proposed giving several hundred dollars each year to senior citizens 65 and older who have owned their homes for at least 20 years.

"This is a reasonable way to help stabilize our neighborhoods," Phelan said Tuesday. "It will allow people not to be priced out of their homes."

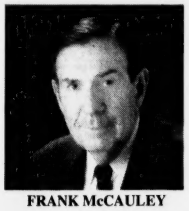
According to the mayor's office, the plan calls for the creation of a special account, called a "Neighborhood Stabilization Fund," that provides tax breaks annually to Quincy homeowners age 65 and older who have lived in their house for 20 years or more.

Phelan said one of the reasons he targeted seniors was that he received many complaints last year from senior citizens struggling to deal with 18 percent property tax hikes.

Approximately 3,000 residents would benefit from the plan, receiving roughly $300 to $400 annually, according to the mayor's office.

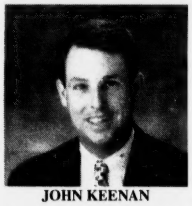
The proposal would come in the form of a home rule petition and would require the approval of the city council, the state Legislature and the governor. The mayor's office is ironing out the details of the financial aid package and is expected to unveil the legislation soon.

Some councillors are taking a wait-and-see approach to the proposal, saying they want to know more about it before making a decision.



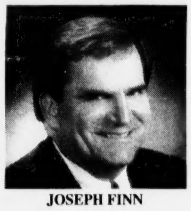
"This is an entirely new concept in government, and I think we should go very slowly before we start committing ourselves to multi-million dollar paybacks to certain people in the city," said Council President Frank McCauley. "It raises a lot of questions, but we will have to see the home rule petition."

Councillor John Keenan, chairman of the finance committee, said he is anxious to know how the city intends to pay for the financial aid package, which has an estimated price tag of $1 million in fiscal 2005 alone.



"We will have to look at the details," said Keenan. "Obviously, we want to do everything we can to help senior homeowners. But I want to analyze the revenue source."

According to Phelan, an initial $1 million deposit into the account would come from the city's rent agreement with Quincy College. Beyond that, the city could use the account as needed, he said.



"Can we afford it every year - do we need to afford it every year, I'm not so sure," said Phelan. "It may not be needed every single year."

FRANK McCAULEY

JOHN KEENAN

JOSEPH FINN

KEVIN COUGHLIN

In subsequent years, the account could be funded with other revenue sources, said Phelan. He did not provide any specifics, however.

Councillor Joseph Finn said he would support the mayor's effort to soften the impact of property taxes on senior homeowners.

"Given the sense of urgency that people feel, I would support any attempt to help out," said Finn. "We could have produced the same level of tax relief if we had initially embraced last year's legislation involving the tax classification issue, but I would support the mayor's proposal because I know the need is out there."

But Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin cast a wary eye on the proposal, questioning whether the financial aid package goes far enough.

"I have seen many young families with children leave the city because they can't pay their tax bills," said Coughlin. "I'm concerned with the fact that we need to ensure that everyone of modest means has the ability to make their tax bill payments."

Coughlin said there are proposals currently pending before the city council that address issues involving seniors citizens and their tax bills.

For example, he said, the council is mulling a proposal that would lower the age eligibility of seniors seeking tax exemptions for property taxes. Another plan increases the income and asset levels allowable for seniors wishing to seek tax exemptions, he said.

Other councillors privately questioned whether the mayor's proposal would be overly restrictive because it singles out a certain group of residents.

Phelan's proposal follows the city council's move to keep Quincy's tax classification at 175 percent, effectively locking in tax bills that will stay virtually the same as last year for the average homeowner. The actual tax bill will decrease about $2, but new property tax evaluations mean many homeowners will receive tax hikes this year. In fiscal 2004, the average property tax bill jumped about $550 compared to the previous year.

Downtown Plan Coming Soon

The city council is expected to receive Mayor William Phelan's downtown redevelopment plan within the next few weeks, according to the mayor's office.

In Monday's mid-term address, Phelan highlighted the need to revitalize the downtown area and shore up the city's tax base. The proposed plan will call for dramatic changes to zoning rules in the downtown area, including increasing the maximum allowable building height to 15 stories.

"I know we can work together to enhance our downtown while protecting our neighborhoods from unwanted, inappropriate development," Phelan said during his speech.

A Challenge Or Free Ride?

Frank McCauley, accepting re-election as City Council president, made it official about his political future at Monday's ceremonies.

You might say Mayor William Phelan, delivering his second mid-term address, didn't.

McCauley officially declared this would be his final year in city government, closing out a distinguished career spanning 32 years and ending, once and for all, persisting speculation he would change his mind and run again.

McCAULEY

PHELAN

McCauley served four terms as mayor and is the only person in the city's history to hold all four elective offices: ward councillor, councillor at-large, and school committee in addition to mayor.

Phelan looked back on accomplishments in 2004 and ahead to goals for 2005. But gave no hint whether he would seek a third term.

But, then, he really didn't have to. There's no doubt he's going for a third term.

The question, though, is whether he will have a challenger in his way or get a free-ride.

FINN

The only potential opponent in sight is Councillor Joe Finn. Potential, not definite.

If Finn doesn't run there is no other challenger right now on the horizon.

If one doesn't come out of the wings, Phelan would be only the fourth mayor in the city's history to be re-elected unopposed.

BURGIN

Thomas Burgin was the first in 1940. Frank McCauley, the second in 1983. And James Sheets the third with not one, but three free rides in 1991, 1993, 1997.

SHEETS

Sheets was elected to an historic six terms – half of them without an opponent.

Incumbents tend to have fondness for free rides. They don't have to spend a lot of time campaigning. And don't have to spend a lot of money.

Politically pennywise but pound foolish, maybe.

Free rides have their drawbacks. Incumbents getting one don't receive a true reading of where they stand with the voters. Sometimes there are warning signals that can't be detected on a free ride.

Could Sheets, for example, seen someone like Bill Phelan around the corner if he hadn't gotten that free ride in 1997 and an easy ride in 1999?

Sheets, who already held the longevity title for Quincy mayors with six terms, sought a seventh in 2001.

Phelan, a political newcomer in only his second year on the school committee, stepped up as a little known but determined challenger. And, edged Sheets by a scant 17 votes in the closest mayoral race in the city's history and one of the biggest political upsets.

Did that last free ride and that easy ride block the vision of what was coming?

Phelan has indicated in the past that he doesn't intend to make a career of being mayor of Quincy or try to match Sheets' six terms.

He has a law practice waiting for his return. Or, perhaps, he has higher political aspirations. Like district attorney, maybe.

Phelan has his critics. But also his fans.

The latter say his political inexperience might have shown when he first moved into the mayor's office but feel he has since grown with the job.

Some think he's vulnerable to the right opponent. Others think he is unbeatable this year.

Most voters would like to see a good mayoral campaign which sparks interest in any election year.

Will 2005 be such a year or be remembered for another free ride?

Better Business Bureau Warns Donors Of Disaster Scams

It happens with the regularity of clockwork.

First comes the disaster.

Next come the generous offers of aid to the victims.

Then come the scams.

Within days of any disaster, be it earthquake, hurricane or tsunami, some people are always ready to take advantage of Americans' eagerness to help the afflicted.

The Better Business Bureau encourages the public to contribute to helpful causes that assist the families and victims of any catastrophe, natural or man-made.

"Give but give wisely," warns the BBB. "You want to make sure that your financial donation is used for the purpose intended, that is, to help the victims."

Donors should make certain that the charity is properly registered with appropriate government agencies, that it describes exactly what it will do to address the needs of the victims, and that it is willing to provide written information about its finances and programs.

The Bureau suggests that donors heed the following tips when donating in the wake of a disaster:

• Be wary of appeals that are long on emotion but short on describing what the charity will do to address the needs of victims and their families.

• Do not give cash. Make out a check or money order payable to the name of the charitable organization, not to the individual collecting the donation.

• Remember, only United States-based organizations that have charitable tax exempt status can be deducted as charitable gifts for tax purposes.

• Watch out for excessive pressure for on-the-spot donations. Be wary of any offer to send a "runner" to pick up your contribution.

• Do not give your credit card number or other personal information to a telephone solicitor or an e-mail solicitation.

• Be wary of charities that are reluctant to answer reasonable questions about their operations, finances and programs.

For further information, visit www.give.org, the website of the BBB's Wise Giving Alliance, a national charity watchdog.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of the old Norfolk Downs depot at the end of Billings Road. At the time, The Boston Realty Trust, the land company developing Norfolk Downs, advertised this depot as only five-and-one-half miles from Boston's Kneeland Street depot; a 12-15 minute commute. Fares were 8 1/4 cents; a special workingman's ticket, good on certain trains was sold for 6 1/4 cents. The land company was selling house lots ranging from 4-10,000 square feet for five cents a square foot on finished streets. This depot, built in 1892 by the Old Colony Railroad, served the Norfolk Downs and Montclair communities until 1959 when the train service was stopped. Then when the Red Line was built it was originally planned to have a new station near here, but to allow for the development of the Montclair marshes it was built north of Squantum Street, also eliminating the Atlantic station. Quincy Taxpayers' Association President Leaving Quincy Urges Residents: 'Don't Let Your Guard Down'

The Sun's 2004 year-in-review piece was excellent as always but I'd like to propose and additional item if I may: the public hearing before the city council on June 21 regarding the Fiscal Year 2005 budgets.

We in the Quincy Taxpayers' Association believe this was an historic occasion, because it was the first time, to our knowledge, that Quincy taxpayers demanded and got a direct voice in the city's budget-making process.

In general, however, I'd like to thank The Sun on behalf of the QTA for your outstanding coverage of the "tax emergency" of 2004 and of the QTA's role in resolving it. That resolution depended crucially on citizen action, and The Sun's coverage helped inform citizens of the need and the opportunity to act.

I take this opportunity to thank The Sun because I will be leaving Quincy in January, after living here 14 years. My finances dictate that I take less expensive living quarters which a friend has offered me in Cambridge. So, besides The Sun, I want to thank publicly the QTA's first two vice presidents, Bob Haley and Ed Melia, for their hard work on behalf of Quincy taxpayers; all those who participated in our rallies and the June 21 public hearing, or who called, wrote of e-mailed their elected officials' all those who have joined and contributed to the QTA to make our work possible; and our mayor and city council themselves, for realizing the urgent need for tax remediation and acting accordingly.

At the same time, I urged Quincy taxpayers not to let their guard down. The city will face rising expenses in future years, including the cost of two early retirement incentives, net debt service for a new high school and renovation of the existing high school as a middle school, and backloaded union contracts.

Taxpayers be prepared to do whatever it takes, within the law and the bounds of morality, to ensure that their elected officials bring the costs of government as low as they can be, and don't add to taxpayers' burdens.

At the same time. taxpayers have an opportunity to push for a "reinvention" of Quincy city government, radically reshaping it to make it more effective, more efficient, and less expansive in the long run. Yet taxpayers can accomplish these things with a strong, unified, organized voice. That was why I founded the QTA, and I devoutly hope others will carry it on even though I can't.

Alan H. Cousin
President, QTA

Prefers Green Street Signs To New Red And Blue Ones

I recently noticed that more and more of our city street signs are being replaced with those larger blue-colored signs with a red strip at the top. The signs and lettering are large but the font used makes them too unreadable until you are on top of the street that they're at.

The old green-colored signs worked much better. They were visible and readable at a distance.

Why change street signs if the old ones were doing the job? As the old saying goes, if it ain't broken, don't fix it.

The whole purpose of street signs is to identify the street so that it can be found by those looking for it.

Who picked the font? Who picked the color scheme? What was wrong with the old green signs?

Remember, signs only work if we can recognize what they are telling us.

Hannon Rejects Revaluation In Mid-Term Address

This Week
32 Years Ago

In his mid-term address, Mayor Walter Hannon urged the citizens of Quincy to fight 100 percent revaluation of the city's properties and called upon the QTR (Quincy Taxpayers Revolt) to withdraw their court case.

Tim Cardwell, leader of QTR, said homeowners were subsidizing Quincy Square since the recent assessments increased residential property values while decreasing Quincy Square business properties. He said 100 percent valuation was the only solution.

Atty. Jordan Zisk, legal counsel for QTR, called Hannon's comments "contempt of court."

QUINCY HIGH BAND BACK FROM DALLAS

The North Quincy High School band was on hand at Logan Airport to welcome back the 122 members of the Quincy High School Band from Dallas, Texas, where they played in the Cotton Bowl Parade.

The Quincy High School band was one of 53 bands and floats in Dallas, but the only one from New England. They came to the attention of the Rose Bowl Committee after they won the St. Patrick's Day parade competition in Lawrence.

The City Council proclaimed the day "Public Bands Day" in the city and Mayor Hannon gave them the day off from school.

STUDENT STRIKE LOOMS

Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Creighton warned students against participating in the strike scheduled to protest changes in open campus regulations. He made the remarks in a brief talk over the school's public address system.

The students' concern involved the changes made by the school committee last October that limited the "open campus" to an "in campus" program. As a result, students were confined to travel between the high school, the vocational-technical school and annexed classrooms in the former district courthouse.

QUINCY-ISMS

P. Takis Veliotis, 46, from Quebec, was named the new president and general manager of the General Dynamics Shipyard. His former associate at the Davie Shipyard Ltd., Peter Gwyn, joined him as assistant manager. . . . After 25 years at the Adams Academy, the United Fund and United Community Services relocated to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce building on Miller Stile Rd. The relocation was necessary for the expansion of the historical society's operations. Councillor Vincent Smyth, Park Director Richard Koch and Planning Director Geoffrey Davidson met with Boston Mayor Kevin White to work out details for the sale of Squaw Rock in Squantum. . . The Quincy-built USS Lexington, the oldest commissioned aircraft carrier, arrived in Boston for an overhaul at the South Boston annex of the Boston Naval Shipyard. The "Blue Ghost," also nicknamed the "Fighting Lady," was welcomed by Lexington, Mass. town officials and Mayor Hannon. . . Representatives Thomas Brownell, Clifford Marshall, Joseph Brett and William Delahunt began the new legislative session with new salaries of $12,027. . . The new amendment to the state's constitution forced the retirement of 36 judges who were over the age of 70, including Quincy's Judge Gertrude Halloran. She was appointed in 1938 by Gov. Charles Hurley and stepped down at age 79 . . . A 10-room, three bath colonial on President's Hill was offered for sale for $39,900. . . Auxiliary Bishop Joseph Maguire was guest speaker at a testimonial dinner for Fr. John McMahon at St. Mary's Church in West Quincy. . . David Kaplan of Charles St. won a trip to Disney World in a Christmas Festival contest sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. His coupon was drawn from 5,000. . . Remick's advertised a remolding sale in the Serendipity Room: a 45-piece iron stoneware dinner set was reduced from $60 to $44.99. . . A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy of Sachem St. at Quincy City Hospital. . . Peter Sellers was starring in "Where Does It Hurt" at the Wollaston Theater. . . Joseph Feeney of Surfside Lane and William Joyce of Edwin St. were named to the school building needs committee. . . New programs for kindergarten and first grade students were announced at the South Shore Area Jewish Community Center on Merrymount Rd. . . Portrait paintings by Miss Anne Belson of Wollaston were exhibited at the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Library. . . William O'Brien, the new president of the Quincy Citizens' Association, called for a three-year building moratorium.

Arts & Entertainment

STEFAN ALPERT, 15, of Quincy receives a visit from New England Patriots' Tedy Bruschi (left) and Marquise Hill during the 22nd annual WBZ Children's Hospital Telethon. The telethon raised more than $3.2 million, a record for the event. Money raised through the telethon supports Children's patient care, research, training and community service initiatives. Since 1982, WBZ and Children's Hospital have partnered to raise many millions through this annual holiday tradition. Funds from this program are directed toward unrestricted charitable support, allowing the hospital to allocate monies to areas of greatest need: medical care of uninsured patients, medical research, recruitment and training, and underwriting capital projects.

'Journey To Saturn' Tonight At The Thomas Crane Library

Space enthusiast Jim Baillie will host "Saturn: Journey to a Ringed World" tonight (Thursday) from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

In October 1997, the Cassini-Huygens spacecraft was launched. Seven years later, Cassini went into orbit around Saturn, beginning a four-year tour to study the solar system's second largest planet, its rings, moons and magnetosphere.

On Dec. 24, 2004, the Huygens probe successfully detached itself from Cassini, starting a 20-day dive toward one of the most mysterious bodies in the solar system - the giant moon Titan.

Titan will be the most distant object from Earth ever to be studied by a probe.

Cassini's findings from Saturn itself may help scientists understand the origin of the solar system, and on Titan they hope to find specific clues to the origin of life.

Baillie is enrolled in the Masters of Science in Astronomy program at Swinburne University and is a volunteer Solar System Ambassador for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, an operating division of the California Institute of Technology and a lead research and development center for NASA.

For more information about this multimedia program or the NASA @your library exhibit, call 617-376-1301.

'Black's Creek' Publisher Authors Books Of Essays

Essays that have appeared in the semi-monthly Quincy newspaper "Black's Creek" over the past two years have been collected into a volume, "Most Secret Desires," that is for sale at $19.95 at the College Bookstore.

"Black's Creek," written and published by William G. Aylward, reports in depth on political, environmental and other issues in Quincy.

Other books by Aylward include "Adams Essays, " "Holding Hands," and "Ben Trovato," most of which are compilations of articles that first appeared in "Black's Creek."

Quincy Middle Schools Making Healthy Choices

Quincy middle schools are making strides to improve the nutrition and physical activity behaviors of students.

All five of the city's public middle schools recently received a $5,000 grant from Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Massachusetts for the 2004-2005 school year to implement the "Healthy Choices" program as part of the company's Jump Up and Go initiative.

On Monday, Atlantic and Broad Meadows Middle Schools kicked off their program with a day full of events, including a production of "This is Your Life," a performance by the theatre company, FoodPlay Productions, that focuses on good nutrition, positive body image, tobacco-free living and several other health messages.

Rates of childhood obesity have increased rapidly over the last 30 years. As a result, more attention is being paid to the nutrition and physical activity habits of kids. Weight gain is the result of an energy imbalance - too many calories are taken in through the food we eat while not enough calories are used up being physically active. To balance this energy scale, the answers must through making changes in one's nutrition and physical activity behaviors.

Quincy middle schools are encouraging students to eat a proper diet, limit tv and video game use, and get at least one hour of physical activity each day. The schools are using activities such as cooking classes, walking clubs, poster contests and offering healthy snacks to spread the idea to students.

Activities for other students will include videos, questions and answer periods and taste testings.

Central, Sterling and Point Webster Middle Schools held their kick-offs earlier this year.

Aviva Life Insurance Co., DSS Team Up To Help Needy Families

Aviva Life Insurance Co. in North Quincy, in partnership with the Massachusetts Department of Social Services (DSS), recently teamed up to provide gifts for more than 125 children and 16 area families.

The two groups once again sponsored the DSS Kid's Fund Holiday Gift Drive, which seeks to fulfill the wishes of area families.

"The Department of Social Services is deeply grateful to Aviva Life Insurance Company and all of the wonderful colleagues at Aviva for making the holidays bright for so many of our children and families," said Saf Caruso, exectutive director, DSS Kids Fund, Inc. "Aviva's caring shows these children and families that even while going through difficult life circumstances, they are considered very special and worthy."

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop Jan. 8

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, Jan. 8, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy.

All potential first-time homebuyers are invited to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be prequalified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend a free Introductory Session to evaluate credit history and determine level of mortgage readiness. It's strong suggested attendees obtain a current copy of their credit report.

The next Introductory Session will be held Jan. 3 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Citizens Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy. Call in advance to register or discuss dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person that covers the First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, the Introductory Session and all workshop materials. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31 or visit www.neighborhoodhousing.org.

5 COTTAGE AVENUE, QUINCY CENTER (next to the Fours & just off Hancock St.)

Benefit Jan. 22 In Falmouth For Joe Cosgrove's Family

Friends, acquaintances, even strangers, are rallying behind the family of a former North Quincy boy who died of a massive heart attack at the age of 41 in his new home on the Cape.

"I Will Remember You," a benefit for the widow and daughter of Joseph W. Cosgrove, will be held Saturday, Jan. 22, at 5 p.m. at the Sea Crest Resort in Falmouth.

Joe Cosgrove grew up in Quincy and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1981. He worked as a painting contractor in his hometown.

He met Pattie in 1993 while working on the Cape. They were married Oct. 20, 2000, and bought a home in Falmouth. Their daughter, Olivia, was born in July 2003.

When Joe died in October, 2004, the Cosgroves unfortunately had not made any plans for Pattie and Olivia should he pass away so early in life. Thus, the Joseph W. Cosgrove Memorial Benefit was born.

The benefit will feature live entertainment by the Jeff Lowe Band, a live auction, a silent auction, door prizes, a New York deli buffet and a cash bar.

Those wishing to purchase tickets at $40 per person or make a donation to the Cosgrove Family Fund should call Ed Sylvester at 781-837-3994, or Judy McDonough at 781-331-5966, or Don Farley at 617-828-2869, or Lisa Mulkern at 617-471-5962.

Checks should be made payable to the Cosgrove Family Fund.

Martin Luther King Day Breakfast Jan. 17 At NQHS

Pharnal Longus, a retired professor of social work at Salem State College, will be the guest speaker at the annual Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. breakfast Monday, Jan. 17, at 9 a.m. at North Quincy High School.

Professor Longus will reflect on the meaning of Dr. King's life and invite participants in the gathering to think about some of the relevant issues which continue to be important in the lives of Americans.

Since he retired from the faculty at Salem State in 2002, he has worked as a consultant and trainer around issues of race, class, ethnicity and a variety of oppressions.

District Attorney William Keating will be on hand at the breakfast to present awards recognizing special service by members of the community.

The program also will feature songs by two local children's groups — the Harmony Youth Chorus led by Rachel Shetler Hollenbeck and the Snug Harbor/Germantown Neighborhood Center Chorus led by Kathy Quigley.

Professor Longus, who has led community programs in high schools, colleges and public events in many Greater Boston communities, will be assisted by the Rev. Dr. Anita Farber Robertson, interim pastor at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston.

Tickets, at $10 each with a discount price of $6 for seniors and students, can be purchased at City Hall or from members of the Quincy Human Rights Commission or many area religious congregations.

Co-chairs of the breakfast are Dr. Robertson and Dr. Joseph McDermott with the assistance of the Human Rights Commission, chaired by Ed Grogan.

Dr. Esther Woolf Davidson To Attend President Bush's Inauguration

Dr. Esther Woolf Davidson, a lifelong Quincy resident and Republican, will attend President George W. Bush's Inaugural Celebration from Jan. 18-20 in Washington, D.C.

Davidson, a member of Bush's Business Advisory Council, has been invited to attend the inauguration festivities by the National Republican Congressional Committee.

She has been invited to meet with the new 109th Congress, attend the swearing-in ceremony of President Bush, watch the Inaugural Parade on Thursday afternoon as it makes its way down historic Pennsylvania Ave., and attend the black-tie Inaugural Ball on Thursday evening.

Gov. Mitt Romney is scheduled to hold a party for Massachusetts Republicans prior to the trek to Washington.

Foot Screenings Set For Seniors Mondays

Podiatrist Jordana Szpiro will hold office hours for seniors on the first Monday of every month at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St.

The fee to see the doctor is $20.

Phelan Says 'Fiscal House In Order'

tributed to needy families. Phelan said the city will attempt to secure $50,000 this year. The number represents a big jump over last year, when the city received $10,000 in CDBG money for fuel assistance.

Phelan's 17-minute speech marked the highlight of the city council's first meeting of 2005. During his address, Phelan pledged to:

• Propose a series of zoning and redevelopment initatives aimed at revitalizing the downtown area and expanding the city's commercial tax base;

• Push for the completion of the on-ramp at Crown Colony;

• Continue to work towards completion of the Quincy Center Concourse;

• Work with the owners of the former Fore River shipyard in an effort to create jobs and expand Quincy's tax base;

• Move forward with the city's pavement management plan and continue to improve the condition of the city's roads and sidewalks.

Much of Phelan's speech was devoted to what he called "great progress" made during his first three years as mayor.

During that time, the city's financial picture has "brightened significantly," he said, stressing Quincy's ability to dig out of a large budget deficit.

"In these last three years we have instituted a quiet people's revolution that has changed fundamentally and forever the way government operates in the City of Quincy," he said.

He pointed to the city's fiscal turnaround over the past few years, saying the city's $5.4 million deficit has been turned into a multi-million dollar surplus. In addition, the administration has downsized city government by trimming more than 100 positions from the payroll and cutting department expenses by as much as 20 percent, he said.

JEANNE REARDON BEGINS her 26th year as clerk of committees during a swearing in ceremony administered by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Several other developments have brightened Quincy's financial picture, he said, including the renegotiated tax agreement with the owner of the former Fore River shipyard, the aggressive pursuit of tax and fee scofflaws, a restructuring of debt owed on the Quincy Hospital bailout and the successful negotiations with Harvard Pilgrim Health Care to receive a payment in lieu of taxes.

"We have not merely held our own during a trying fiscal period," said Phelan. "We have made important major investments to further improve the quality of life for all Quincy's residents."

Phelan cited several accomplishments made by his administration and the city council over the past few years. Among them:

• Utilizing $10 million from the city's hotel/motel tax to renovate city parks, playgrounds and beaches.

• The creation of a 30-acre waterfront park at the BroadMeadow salt marsh.

• Implementation of a new pavement management plan to perform roughly $5 million in preventive repair on streets and sidewalks.

• Appropriation of $2 million for capital improvements, including the renovation and repair of schools, municipal buildings and fire and police stations.

• Roughly $2.5 million to buy a new fleet of public works vehicles, two new fire engines and Quincy Council On Aging vans.

Phelan briefly noted the construction of the new high school, saying the city has hired a capable architect and project manager to move the plan forward. Construction could begin later this year, he said.

In other developments, the council unanimously re-elected Councillor Frank McCauley as council president.

Jeanne Reardon was re-elected to her 26th one-year term as clerk of committees.

In addition, the council appointed Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly and Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis to serve on the City Hospital of Quincy Corporation, which represents an endowed fund that gives money annually to Quincy Medical Center.

The council also elected Bob Foy and Bill McDonald to serve on the Adams Temple and School Fund.

Asian American Bank Establishes Tsunami Relief Fund

Asian American Bank announces it has established a Tsunami Relief Fund account to accept donations from the public.

The funds collected will be used to support Red Cross disaster responders providing urgent critical assistance to the communities affected by the Asian earthquake and tsunami. The strongest earthquake in 40 years caused massive tidal waves, killing more than 125,000 people. The number of injured is still not known, but still rising, according to local authorities. Millions of people are displaced and homeless.

To show support for this cause, Asian American Bank has made an initial contribution to this Relief Fund. The bank hopes its donation will encourage members of the Asian community to join the effort and donate to the relief fund.

Cash or check donations can be mailed in or accepted at any Asian American Bank branch, including the local bank at Presidents Plaza, 219 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

Checks should be made payable to "2004 Tsunami Relief Fund."

For more information about the disaster relief fund, call Shirley Tam at 617-338-0489.

Russell Delaney Air Force Basic Training Grad

Air Force Airman First Class Russell W. Delaney recently graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and military customs and courtesies; performed drill and ceremony marches, and received physical training, rifle marksmanship, field training exercises, and special training in human relations.

RUSSELL DELANEY

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

He is the son of Marion Ringquist of Spear St., and Richard Delaney, both of Quincy.

Delaney is a 2004 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Meeting Tonight On Drive-Thru Coffee Shop At 60 Quincy Shore Drive

A community meeting will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the North Quincy Library, 381 Hancock St., regarding a proposal to open a drive-thru coffee shop at 60 Quincy Shore Drive.

Sponsored by Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner, the meeting will be attended by Steve Hebert, who wants to open a "Java-Java Drive Thru" coffee shop next to the Seawinds Condominiums.

According to the proposal, the coffee shop will utilize 500 square feet in the rear of a building currently occupied by Quincy Shore Dry Cleaners. The proposed hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 5:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 6:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The coffee shop will provide drive-thru service only; there will be no in-store service or seating, according to the proposal.

A request for a Common Victualer License will be heard by the license board on Tuesday, Jan. 11 at 10 a.m. in the city council chambers.

Valorie Duncan Sales Associate At Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc.

Art Foley, Broker/Owner of Century 21 Annex Realty, with offices in Hanover and Quincy, announces Valorie Duncan has joined the company as a sales associate.

Duncan is based in the company's Hanover office, serving the residential needs of customers throughout the South Shore and greater Boston.

Duncan, a former Dorchester resident who now lives in Weymouth, received her real estate sales license and began work as a practicing agent in 1999. She joined Century 21 Annex Realty after working at two other South Shore-based real estate firms.

VALORIE DUNCAN

Prior to beginning her real estate career, Duncan was a service operator for the MBTA, as well as a medical secretary at South Shore Hospital.

"It is a pleasure to welcome Valorie to the Century 21 Annex Realty team," Foley said. "She has great customer service skills, extensive industry experience, and a strong knowledge of the area."

Duncan attended UMASS-Boston. In her spare time, she enjoys singing, dancing and karaoke.

Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., has offered comprehensive real estate services to the South Shore since 1978. The company has offices in Quincy and Hanover with a staff of more than 50 professional Realtors serving the South Shore.

For more information about Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., or its services, including sales, rentals, appraisals, property management, continuing education programs and free notary services, call the Quincy office at 617-472-4330 or toll-free 800-345-4614, the Hanover office at 781-829-4210 or toll-free 800-207-8647 or log on to http://www.C21Annex.com.

Check Heating Equipment To Prevent Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

KeySpan officials are asking the general public to take some critical steps to prevent carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning.

"Malfunctioning heating equipment, regardless of the fuel source, pose great danger," said Robert B. Catell, chairman and CEO of KeySpan Corporation. "Heating, hot water and venting systems must be checked and cleaned regularly. Winter is when most CO incidents occur. We want to prevent any tragedy."

Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, tasteless and poisonous gas that is produced by the incomplete burning of any fossil fuel. It can also be generated by automobiles left running in a closed area adjacent to homes.

Breathing CO can cause serious injury and even death. Symptoms of CO poisoning include headache, fatigue, shortness of breath, nausea and dizziness.

Anyone who suspects carbon monoxide poisoning in their home should get fresh air immediately and call the fire department.

Here are some ways to prevent carbon monoxide in your home:

• Have your heating, hot water and venting systems checked and cleaned regularly by a professional.

• Have your chimney inspected regularly for clogs or debris.

• Don't use a range, oven or clothes dryer for heating.

• Never start your car, lawn mower, snow blower or other combustion engine in the garage with the door closed and never leave them running in a closed garage.

• Install a carbon monoxide detector on each level of your home.

For more information, call 800-233-5325 or visit www.keyspanenergy.com

Three-Day Real Estate Sales Course

Annex Real Estate School, Inc., 49 Beale St., Wollaston, is offering a three-day 24-hour Real Estate Course.

Wrapping Up Potential Mold Problems

(NAPS) — If you have a dry, mold-free house, that could be because it was "wrapped" up before it was finished being built or remodeled.

Concern about mold growth in homes has become a serious issue, which explains the growing popularity of a technique called "housewrapping." It literally involves wrapping the outside walls of a home with specially designed wrap during the framing stage of construction.

The housewrap is a secondary weather-resistant barrier that is added insurance because it helps protect walls from being penetrated by dampness. Moisture is, of course, the major cause of mold.

Why all the concern about mold? One reason is that it can cause thousands of dollars of damage: Some molds can lead to frame rot, for instance, and literally digest the underlying structure of a house. More important, mold can represent a health risk to those living in or visiting a home.

The most common problems associated with exposure to mold and fungi include nasal and sinus congestion, wheezing, skin and eye irritation and upper respiratory infections.

Fortunately, there are ways to protect your home. These tips are offered:

• Wrap It Up — When building or remodeling, use a housewrap such as WeatherTrek EVD. It directs any water or moisture that gets past the exterior siding of a home down and away from the wall because of its unique drainage space and surface pattern.

• Be Water Aware — Fix the source of water problems or leaks as soon as you discover them.

• Dry Down — Clean and dry any building materials or furnishings within 24 to 48 hours of their becoming damp.

• Dehumidify — Reduce indoor humidity by venting bathrooms, dryers and other moisture-generating sources to the outside.

Homeowners can get a free "how-to" booklet called the "WeatherTrek Moisture Management Construction Guide." It includes construction and remodeling information for do-it-yourselfers, remodelers, builders and architects. For a copy, call 1-877-832-0333.

Brokers Course Begins Jan. 10

Cold Weather Projects

As January's bitter cold weather sets in, it becomes progressively harder to fit in do-it-yourself tasks outdoors. Instead, bring your work inside. Winter is the perfect time to take care of small interior issues, reorganize your work and storage spaces, and make plans for warm-weather chores. Check out the indoor ideas below, and then make your own list of wintertime DIY projects:

In the garage/tool shed:

• Clean and sharpen tools and lawnmower blades. Treat wooden handles with a fresh coat of linseed oil if you didn't do it in the fall; otherwise, wipe them down with a dry cloth.

• Create a pegboard rack from which to hang tools. You choose the size and which tools to place (small or large). Tools are best hung by their metal tops, with wooden/plastic handles hanging downward. This way, any water that gets on them will run off the metal quickly, preventing rust.

• Organize the worktable, straighten the contents of storage drawers and restock supplies.

• Create an annual maintenance calendar, including a wish list of DIY projects you want to address this year.

• Start planning your spring flower or vegetable garden. Order catalogs and magazines or go online to get ideas.

In the home:

• Take care of small interior maintenance issues. Clean the air vent behind the dryer, where lint can collect and start fires; repair and replace faulty electrical outlets or light sockets; clean heat registers, and set or fix the vents as needed; oil squeaky hinges and even up all doors, from the bedroom to the kitchen cabinets.

• Note any weatherproofing issues around the house, such as windows that steam/frost up on chilly days, uncomfortable drafts, or insulating material that needs replacing. Some problems can be addressed in the short term by adding stick-on weatherstripping or covering windows with presized plastic sheeting (available at home improvement stores). Schedule more detailed maintenance for next summer or fall, and you'll see a sizeable difference in your utility bill.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Allerton House Offers This New Year's Resolution:

Talk To Parents About Issues Of Aging

The New Year is a good time to talk to parents or other family members about the impact of aging on their housing, healthcare and social needs.

During the holidays many adult children will have traveled to spend time with their aging parents and may have noticed changes in their well-being.

Because the aging process unfolds differently for everyone, many times seniors and families find themselves making important decisions in crisis. To identify what kinds of help will make a parent or close relative's life easier here and now, begin what you hope will be an ongoing dialogue, not a one-time discussion.

Before talking to a parent, learn about the services available in the community, recognize that assistance can be added gradually, and consider how a parent or relative can maintain independence and privacy to the greatest extent.

Although needs may grow as time goes on – and you should anticipate these needs – acceptance of just a little help is a big step, and may make more difficult decisions such as giving up a home more manageable.

Always remember to respect a parent's feelings, history, and reservations.

Assisted Living

Assisted living communities are an ideal choice for those who value their independence, yet need or want caring professionals, necessary personal services or hospitality services at their fingertips.

It is difficult to think of a family member facing the obstacles that often accompany aging. However, it is important to know seeking out resources not only alleviates immediate concerns, but often presents new and fulfilling opportunities to increase independence, self-esteem, and overall quality of life.

For more information, a tour, or a free brochure from the Assisted Living Federation of America, call Allerton House in Quincy, 617-471-2600 or visit Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group online at http://www.welchhrg.com.

Tips For Kicking The Nicotine Habit

Each January, many Americans make an important decision to quit smoking cigarettes. Making this decision is the first step on the road to a tobacco free life, but how can people really quit smoking, considering that nicotine is highly addictive?

Prospective randomized clinical research trials have shown that the three most effective methods for smoking cessation are:

Nicotine replacement therapy: The patch is probably the easiest form of nicotine replacement therapy, but some people prefer gum, inhalers or lozenges. No matter what method of nicotine replacement you prefer, but sure to follow the package insert instructions exactly.

Medical prescription: A drug called bupropion (Zyban) has been shown to be effective in increasing the chance that a smoker will be successful in smoking cessation.

Counseling: Either individual or group counseling is important. Dr. Grannis suggests six-week group sessions offered across the United States by the American Lung Association, American Heart Association or American Cancer Society. An interesting new approach for counseling is via the Internet.

When people fail to quit smoking after trying one or two of the above methods, it may be best to combine all three approaches.

Once the physical symptoms of quitting are under control, it is time to focus on the psychological challenges. For many people, smoking is strongly linked to daily activities such as waking up, eating a meal, watching TV or drinking coffee.

To cope with cravings that come at these moments, it is necessary to alter your behavior.

Other tips:

• Get rid of smoking related items such as lighters and ashtrays.

• Let your friends and family know you are quitting so that you have a strong support system, or consider attending a smoking cessation class.

• Avoid people and places where you are tempted to smoke until you are more confident about your ability to avoid the temptation.

• Alter habits to perform activities that you don't associate with smoking.

• Try alternatives such as chewing gum, hard candy or sunflower seeds.

• Find ways to keep your hands busy to distract you from the urge to smoke.

Blood Pressure and Exercise

Q. Recently my doctor diagnosed me with borderline high blood pressure. She suggested I exercise, eat properly and lower my stress levels. Although I currently walk three days a week, this obviously is not enough. What type of exercise program should I begin that will help lower my blood pressure?

A. High blood pressure can cause heart failure, heart attack, stroke, kidney conditions and vision problems. With more than 50 million Americans now suffering from this condition, it is important to take the recommendations of your doctor seriously. And although there are some uncontrollable factors that can increase blood pressure (such as heredity), exercise certainly can lower your risk.

Blood pressure is defined as the force of blood pushing against the walls of blood vessels. High blood pressure requires your heart to work harder as it pumps blood via blood vessels throughout your body. The harder your heart has to work, the more likely it is that your arteries will begin to harden.

Exercise is important in keeping your heart and arteries healthy; it increases circulation and cardiovascular endurance, strengthens bones, lowers body fat percentages and helps relieve or decrease stress.

A successful exercise routine includes cardiovascular or aerobic exercise, strength training and proper nutrition. How you incorporate these elements into your daily life will depend on your lifestyle.

Your current walking regimen sounds great. The length of time and intensity you spend walking is significant. Three days a week sounds good. Try to maintain an intensity in which you can carry on a conversation and not overexert yourself. Adding additional types of aerobic exercise, such as cycling, hiking and swimming to your routine can also benefit your heart.

Try to complete a minimum of 30 minutes of aerobic exercise at least three days a week. If you are unable to walk for 30 continuous minutes, break it up into smaller sections.

While a total body strength-training routine can improve muscle strength, it can also help reduce your body-fat percentage, which in turn will help reduce high blood pressure. Be sure to focus on all major muscle groups, such as your chest, shoulders, legs and core muscles (abdominals and back). Again, be careful of your intensity when strength training. Choose resistance that is challenging but still allows you to complete the exercise without compromising the proper technique.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

SHARING YOUR CONCERNS
According to a recent survey conducted by the American Dental Association, thirty-two percent of the dentists polled said that maintaining good oral hygiene was the most pressing oral health issue among their patients. The next most pressing issue (28%) was caries or tooth decay. Of course, the two issues are intimately linked, as lack of good oral hygiene habits is the most common modifiable risk factor that contributes to tooth decay. Periodontal, or gum, disease ranked as the third most pressing oral health issue at 25%. And, once again, the best way to help prevent gum disease is to remove decay-causing plaque by brushing and flossing. Dentists share the concerns of their patients in promoting oral hygiene and averting disease.
We provide dental services for every type of dental problem. Proper brushing and flossing, a healthy diet, regular professional cleanings, checkups, and x-rays, can all help ensure many years of oral health. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we offer dental care for the entire family with an emphasis on preventive care. Let us show you how to properly care for your teeth. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.
P.S. The most requested dental procedure among Baby Boomers is tooth whitening, according to dentists.

Host Plymouth North Saturday At Youth Arena

Red Raiders Double Up Barnstable, 8-4

BOYS' ICE HOCKEY

By CHRIS POISSON

Head coach Bob Doyle challenged his North Quincy High School hockey team during the second intermission of Monday afternoon's game against Barnstable.

The Red Raiders, who surrendered two late goals in the middle stanza to even the score, responded loudly in the final frame with four goals en route to an 8-4 victory on the road at Kennedy Rink.

"It's twice as nice," said Doyle of NQ's first win. "We haven't had too much success down there over the years. I was pleasantly pleased with our performance. We played a strong, disciplined, tight checking game. Barnstable took the penalties and we scored two power-play goals."

NQ (1-3-1), which faced off against city rival Quincy yesterday (Wednesday, 7 p.m.), will host Plymouth North Saturday at 7:50 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena. The Dec. 27 game against Braintree has been rescheduled for Jan. 24 at 3 p.m. at home.

Barnstable struck first with a goal by Andrew Yingling six minutes into the game. The Red Raiders answered three minutes later when Donovan scored with the first of four assists from sophomore center Jimmy Fitzpatrick. A couple minutes later, Dave Burlingane lit the lamp to give Barnstable a 2-1 lead after one period.

In the second, senior co-captain and right wing Pat Casper netted the equalizer 33 seconds into the period with Donovan and Fitzpatrick picking up assists. Tufo tallied a power-play goal at the four-minute mark and Graham pocketed a slap shot on a partial breakaway to hand the Red Raiders a 4-2 lead at the eight-minute mark.

"Then we stopped skating and were standing around," Doyle said. "We were playing timid and we had some poor line changes that led directly to goals."

At 11:23, Barnstable's

The holiday brunch marked the launch of the new Dunkin' Donuts card by giving lucky contest winners an opportunity to have brunch with the New England Patriots. Each attendee had the opportunity to sit down for brunch and ask the players questions. After brunch, attendees had photos taken with the players. Each contest winner also received a pre-loaded Dunkin' Donuts Card.

Meagan Tobin's Three Gives Quincy 39-37 Win

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By DAN DUGGAN

She may not have called "glass" but the Quincy High School girls' basketball team will take the three-pointer that freshman Meagan Tobin banked in with one second left to beat Abington, 39-37, in a non-league match-up last Thursday night.

The three by Tobin (eight points) capped off a back-and-forth final 2:30 in which Quincy went from leading by five to trailing by as many as three.

"It was a very exciting moment for a freshman to step in at the end of the game like that and hit a three-pointer to win the game," head coach Jeff Bretsch said.

The win was the Presidents' third in a row and they looked to carry their momentum into league play that began Tuesday with a home game against Whitman-Hanson. They travel to Plymouth North tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

Bretsch was more relieved than anything that the home squad was able to pull out a victory in a contest that saw both teams struggle offensively in the early goings.

"It almost slipped away from us there at the end," Bretsch said. "The girls were very frustrated out there tonight. They worked very hard and obviously they did a good job defensively, but offensively we had some trouble."

It took the Presidents almost six minutes to get on the scoreboard. Luckily for them, Abington was having just as much difficulty finding the bottom of the net, and Quincy led 2-1 with 10:20 remaining in the first half.

Quincy (3-2, 1-0 Atlantic Coast League) was able to build a 13-8 lead at the half, thanks to Tobin who provided some life to the offense with five points off the bench.

Both teams picked it up at the offensive end in the second half. Quincy turned its focus to pounding the ball inside to center Nicole O'Sullivan (team-high 11 points). The senior co-captain reeled off five points on three consecutive possessions early in the half.

Abington (1-3) would not go quietly as guard Erin Curran kept the Green Wave close by repeatedly slicing through the Quincy defense for layups.

The Blue and White seemed to have the game well in hand after junior forward Jessica Page knocked down a jumper with 2:30 to play to give Quincy a 31-26 edge. But Abington responded with a 9-1 run over the next minute to go up 35-32, its first lead since 1-0.

Page, who scored all 10 of her points after intermission, cut the lead to one with four points in the final minute.

Hanging onto a 37-36 lead with 18 seconds remaining, Abington missed two free throws and Quincy controlled the rebound.

The Presidents tried to get the ball inside to O'Sullivan but the pass was deflected out towards Tobin. Tobin collected the loose ball on the right wing and fired the shot off the glass and through the net.

Abington nearly won it at the buzzer on a 30-foot heave by Curran that hit the backboard and rimmed out.

Bretsch praised Page's efforts down the stretch that kept the Presidents in the game. "She always plays big for us," Bretsch said. "She's a big-game player. She always steps it up when we need her. She's a very smart player and I think she's going to have a tremendous season."

"We didn't feel that good about the way played tonight, but the kid's showed heart," he added. "They came through when they needed to and made the stops they needed to make. We're feeling more confident heading into the league now."

North Quincy Hopes New Year Ends Like '04

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team concluded 2004 with a tournament championship last week.

Now, it begins the new year with hopes of capturing another championship in the near future.

The Red Raiders held off Jeremiah Burke, 58-56, last Thursday to win the A Division of the ABC Stop & Shop Holiday Classic Tournament in Chelsea. They breezed past Everett, 75-42, in last Monday's opening game.

NQ (4-0), which took on Plymouth South Tuesday, will square off against Atlantic Coast League power Whitman-Hanson tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 at home.

"We're looking at a real battle with Whitman-Hanson," said head coach Doug MacFarlane. "They're the cream of the crop in the ACL."

If MacFarlane considers the Panthers the league's top team, then his squad isn't far behind. The Red Raiders have received consistent performances from their top players while getting strong contributions from their bench.

"I'm pleased with the way we're playing right now," MacFarlane said. "The girls are working hard."

Against Jeremiah Burke, NQ's relentless press created an early 12-point lead, but JB clawed back to cut the deficit to 30-28 at halftime.

"Once they adjusted to our press they were able to get the ball up the floor and they fought back," MacFarlane said. "We went cold and they started to nail everything."

A see-saw affair in the second half, two JB players kept their team in the game, combining to score 50 of the team's 56 points. "We couldn't stop those two girls," MacFarlane said. "We had a tough time with them defensively so it was a close game."

The Red Raiders once again came through in the clutch at the charity stripe. With 15 seconds remaining in the game, senior co-captain Sarah Goreham drained both free throws in a one-and-one situation for a 57-56 lead.

JB didn't score on its possession and fouled Goreham who made one of two free throws. And with eight-tenths of a second left, senior center Amanda Saylor blocked the inbounds pass to end the game.

Goreham finished with a team-high 18 points to go along with five rebounds and five assists. Her freshman sister, Rebecca, tallied seven points, 14 rebounds, five assists and five steals.

Senior co-captain Shauna Kelly added 12 points. Sophomore guard Lauren Stille contributed with seven second-half points and played strong defense against JB's top scorer down the stretch.

Against Everett, the Red Raiders wreaked havoc with their press and finished with 25 steals. "Everett had a lot of problems bringing the ball up against our press," MacFarlane said. "We fast-breaked a lot. We ran the floor really well and got a lot of layups."

Sarah Goreham led the team with 20 points, four assists and four steals. Kelly added 12 points with six assists and three steals. Rebecca Goreham scored nine points with eight rebounds and eight steals. Junior center Elyse O'Connell netted 11 points.

THE DIESELS ARE COMING . . . BACK!

In their previous incarnation, diesel cars had a deserved reputation for being slow, loud, dirty, and smelly. This is not exactly a recipe for success, even if they do get up to thirty percent better mileage than gasoline-powered vehicles. All that is about to change, however. The federal government mandated a switch to low-sulfur diesel fuel by the autumn of 2006, which will open the door for automakers to introduce new diesel engines with lower Nox (nitrogen oxide) emissions. This will be made possible with the use of special catalytic converters, which are currently easily contaminated by sulfur-rich diesel fuel. Thanks to new technology, new diesel vehicles will also be quicker, quieter, and much cleaner than previous models.

It is important to regularly maintain your car whether a regular, hybrid, or diesel. Our ASE Certified service technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained for maximum performance and efficiency, as well as safety. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), we look forward to meeting you and to giving your car the same level of personal attention we give our own. Hours: Mon. - Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: The new diesels are also known for their considerable torque.

Red Raiders Ice Barnstable

Brian Delaney scored with an assist from Yingling and less than two minutes later, Burlingane found the cage to tie the game at 4 after two periods.

"I challenged them between periods," Doyle said. "I told them we need to find a way to win this game. That a win would put us in the right direction to begin the new year."

The Red Raiders erupted for four goals. Donovan scored the go-ahead goal at 1:28 with Fitzpatrick and Casper assisting. Graham made it 6-4 with a power-play tally at 6:00 and Tufo extended the lead to 7-4 at 7:19. Senior right wing Stephen Maggio assisted on both goals. Graham closed out the scoring with five minutes left in the game.

Raiders Drop Close One To Boston English

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School boys' basketball team continues to come out on the wrong end of closely contested games decided in the waning moments.

In last week's ABC Stop & Shop Holiday Classic Tournament in Chelsea, it dropped a 45-44 decision to Boston English in the consolation game after falling, 52-47, to Somerville in the opener.

Short-handed with several players out with the flu and facing a difficult schedule, the Red Raiders have gotten off to an 0-4 start. But all the losses have come by an average of 4.25 points.

They hope their fortunes change this New Year as Atlantic Coast League contests get underway. They faced Plymouth South Tuesday and will travel to Whitman-Hanson tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

"We're looking forward to some league games and hopefully we can get a couple of W's," said head coach Jim Rendle. "We've had a tough schedule so far. That, and the fact that our numbers are down, have hurt us."

NQ competed in the tournament without senior center Joe Johnson, senior backup point guard David Djerf and sixth man Joe Howlett.

Against Boston English, the Red Raiders suffered a similar fate as the Rockland game Dec. 21. With 5.1 seconds remaining, Boston English buried the go-ahead basket and NQ never got a shot off before the game ended.

"I was very pleased with our defense," Rendle said. "We held a high-scoring team to 45 points when they scored 92 earlier in the week. We did a great job of controlling the ball and breaking their press."

Junior forward John Murray poured in a team-high 20 points. Junior guard Imad Elkatrib scored nine points and junior point guard Kyle Costa, who broke down Boston English's press, added eight.

Junior forward Akil Benjamin (five points) played well defensively, holding a bigger and taller center to six points.

Against Somerville, late-game free-throw shooting decided the outcome. Somerville went 4 for 4 in one-and-one situations, while the Red Raiders missed the front ends of one-and-ones twice.

Murray paced his team with 18 points and nine rebounds. Costa scored 12 points and Elkatrib contributed with seven points and four steals in his first varsity start.

Brian Donaghey, Owen Kilcullen Drive Westminster Dodge To Win

PEE WEE HOCKEY

For Quincy Car Wash, Joe Barton scored two goals and Joe Bertucci and Justin Lawless each had one. Patrick Aducci and Jake Mullaney had assists.

In previous action:

Steve Calahan scored a hat trick with four assists to spark Coffee Break Café to a 10-2 win over Quincy Car Wash. Danny Higgins also scored a hat trick and Brendan Gibbons added two goals with an assist. Joseph Brown (assist) and Joe Valenti each scored a goal. Danny Gibbons and Cassandra Briffit had assists.

For Quincy Car Wash, Jake Mullaney (assist) and Brenna Morrissey scored. Joseph Bertucci had an assist.

Joe Valenti scored two goals in Coffee Break Café's 8-3 win over Colonial Federal Savings Bank. Danny Gibbons (2 assists), Cassandra Briffit (assist), Jonathan Mahoney, Patrick Conley and Brendan Gibbons scored. John Conroy, Matt Brundige and John Jones had assists.

For Colonial Federal Savings Bank, James Finn (assist), Mark Glynn (assist) and Christina Walsh scored. Vincent Cameron and James Vialpando had assists.

Connor Flynn tallied two goals and two assists to lead Westminster Dodge to an 8-2 win over IBEW Local #103. Bobby Kozlowski also netted two goals. Brendan Glynn (assist), Andrew McCarthy, Ryan Crosslin and Shannon Coleman also scored. Daniel Cedrone and Brian Kilcullen each had two assists, while Owen Kilcullen, Brendan Haines, Tom Pettiti and Brian Donaghey had one apiece.

For IBEW Local #103, Ryan Doherty and Trevor Richardson scored. Adam Nazzaro and Matt Forbes had assists.

Tim Young scored a hat trick to power Bernie's General Store to a 7-3 win over Mike Morrissey Club. Kevin Therrien pocketed two goals and James Barresi (assist) and Domenic Colarusso each had one. Sean Grogan had two assists and Daniel Messing, Ryan Gorman and Ryan O'Connell had one apiece.

For Mike Morrissey Club, E.J. Cross (assist), T.J. Higgins and Victor Aliverti scored. John Morton and Kevin Jago had assists.

Presidents Improve To 4-0

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team improved to 4-0 with a 49-35 victory at Revere last Thursday.

Senior co-captain John Folino netted 23 points and senior co-captain and point guard Parker Scott scored 12.

The Presidents traveled to Whitman-Hanson Tuesday and will host Plymouth North tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Events could inspire adventurous Lambs looking to make a major career or personal move. But as always, get all the facts before rushing into any sort of deal or commitment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) What seems to be a great opportunity could cause even usually practical Taureans to ignore their inner caution cues. Best to move carefully to avoid falling into unseen traps.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Need a holiday now that the seasonal festivities are behind you? Good idea. Plan to go to someplace wonderful. You'll return refreshed and more than ready for a new challenge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Progress continues to be made on that pesky workplace problem. Meanwhile, don't assume a personal situation will work itself out. Best to get more involved earlier than later.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Catnaps are definitely recommended for Leos and Leonas who had been going at a hectic pace over the holidays. Adding relaxation time to your schedule helps restore your overdrawn energy reserves.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Sure, some of the new friends you made over the holidays might move out of your life at some point. But at least one might show significant "staying power" with some encouragement.

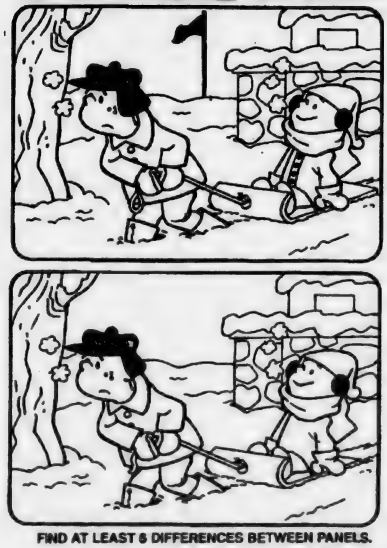
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Encourage family members to join you in supporting a relative who could be facing a difficult emotional challenge in the New Year. Showing your love and concern helps keep his or her hopes up.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While a long-deferred decision might suddenly take on some urgency after news on a related matter, you still need to weigh all factors carefully before deciding one way or the other.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good time to reassess the earlier plan you made for the New Year. Some elements you felt you could depend on to make it work might no longer carry that assurance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Forming a renewed connection with a former associate is only the first step toward working out your new plans. Be prepared for problems and deal with them as soon as they arise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A romantic situation that was going smoothly not too long ago might take a new turn. Be honest about your feelings before you decide whether to follow it or take another path.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The wise Pisces (that's you, of course) will make sure everyone knows you plan to keep your options open and listen to all sides of the situation before making any decisions.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your honest approach to life and living is always an inspiration for others fortunate enough to know you.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A type of person can be pretty well determined by his or her attitude. An attitude of hopelessness can be and usually is disastrous. An attitude that accepts reality, whatever it is, and faces a situation with a determination not to let it throw you can always be helpful.

Of course, this sort of thing is more easily said than done. Yet is can be done because people have done it. Actually, an attitude is a human resource. It can be drawn upon, revamped, replaced, revitalized. It is a human resource that provides mental grooming. A properly groomed attitude can change a feeling of failure to an expectation of success. An attitude of hopelessness can never induce an attitude of hope. No one ever gained happiness with an unhappy attitude. No one ever gained friendship with an unfriendly attitude.

When an attitude needs changing, change it. With faith and acceptance of God's help aided by your own determination and intelligence, IT CAN BE DONE...

Helen Tobin, 83

Executive Secretary, Retired NQHS Media Clerk

HELEN TOBIN

A funeral Mass for Helen (Collins) Tobin, 83, of Squantum, executive secretary to the base commander at Squantum Naval Air Station during World War II, was celebrated Dec. 31 at St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

She died Dec. 27 at Life Care Center in West Bridgewater.

Mrs. Tobin was a media clerk in the North Quincy High School library for 16 years.

Born in Boston, she was raised and educated in North Quincy and lived in Squantum for 36 years. She graduated from Burdett Business School.

She married Navy Lt. Richard Tobin, an aviator, in Star of the Sea Church in Squantum in 1949. The couple and their growing family lived in Maine, Virginia, New York, Kansas, California and Japan.

Interchurch Council Epiphany Service Sunday At Sacred Heart Church

The Interchurch Council of North Quincy/Wollaston will sponsor an Epiphany Service Sunday, Jan. 9 at Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The annual Feast of Lights service will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Special music will be presented by the Quincy Choral Society.

The offering will benefit four local charities.

A colation will follow the service across the street at Sacred Heart School.

Christmastide Nuptials At Union Congregational

Two weddings were celebrated over the Christmas holidays at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston.

On Dec. 18 Laurie Klausbeck of Wollaston and John Curtis of Germantown were married by Pastor Jack Swanson in a mid-morning ceremony.

Joining Pastor Swanson for the service was the bride's former pastor, the Rev. William Fillibrown and the bride's grandfather, the Rev. William Whittemore.

On Jan. 1, at a late day ceremony, Pastor Swanson celebrated the marriage of Julie Simmons and Craig Debona of Holbrook.

The bride's sisters, Linda and Lisa, read Scripture. Church Moderator Bill Roberts was Deacon.

Both couples are active in the church.

Sunday morning worship services at Union Congregational Church are held at 10 a.m. and the public is invited to attend.

The church, located at the corner of Beach Street and Rawson Rd., is handicapped accessible.

For more information, call the church office at 617-479-6661.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have a 10 a.m. worship service Sunday, the first Sunday after the Epiphany.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the morning worship and preach a sermon entitled "Renewed Through the Spirit." Organist Tom Boyer will conduct the Chancel Choir.

There will be a Children's Message before they go to their classes.

Childcare is available for infants and toddlers.

Greeters are Thelma Bornemann and Freida Matthews. Light refreshments will be served by Jean Ross and family during the Fellowship Hour in the Allen Parlor.

Arbor Day Foundation Trees

Ten free flowering trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during January.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for American Campaign.

The 10 trees are two white flowering dogwoods, 2 flowering crabapples, 2 Washington Hawthorns, 2 American Redbuds, and 2 goldenraintrees.

"These compact trees were selected for planting in large or small spaces," said John Rosenow, president of the Foundation. "They will give your home the beauty of lovely pink, white, and yellow flowers – and also provide winter berries and nesting for songbirds."

Trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between Feb. 1 and May 31 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6-12 inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's bi-monthly publication, Arbor Day, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

The become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to Ten Free Flowering Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Jan. 31.

Drivers: You probably entered the driving profession so you could make an honest wage doing what you love, but IS 25 CPM REALLY AN HONEST WAGE? To quote an article from the December 6 issue of Transport Topics, smaller fleets pay "about 25 cents per mile compared with an average of 40 cents by larger carriers like J.B Hunt Transport Services." Would'nt you rather be averaging 40 cpm for the exact same job? At J.B. Hunt you can. J.B. Hunt drivers start at 34 to 36 cpm, and with guaranteed pay raises earn 37 cpm in just two to 6 months. That's 12 cpm more than you may be earning with a smaller carrier. And J.B Hunt pays up to 43 cpm with a full benefits package plus many other extras: time off every 14 days, new Freightliner conventionals you can take home, 98% no-touch freight, monthly bonuses, and a career path featuring thousands of dedicated jobs and a Zero-Down lease opportunity. Its time to fulfill the goal you set out with- make an honest wage doing what you love. 1-800-2JB-HUNT Class A & 3 mos. Exp. required.

Drivers: You probably entered the driving profession so you could make an honest wage doing what you love, but IS 25 CPM REALLY AN HONEST WAGE? To quote an article from the December 6 issue of Transport Topics, smaller fleets pay "about 25 cents per mile compared with an average of 40 cents by larger carriers like J.B Hunt Transport Services." Would'nt you rather be averaging 40 cpm for the exact same job? At J.B. Hunt you can. J.B. Hunt drivers start at 34 to 36 cpm, and with guaranteed pay raises earn 37 cpm in just two to 6 months. That's 12 cpm more than you may be earning with a smaller carrier. And J.B Hunt pays up to 43 cpm with a full benefits package plus many other extras: time off every 14 days, new Freightliner conventionals you can take home, 98% no-touch freight, monthly bonuses, and a career path featuring thousands of dedicated jobs and a Zero-Down lease opportunity. Its time to fulfill the goal you set out with- make an honest wage doing what you love. 1-800-2JB-HUNT Class A & 3 mos. Exp. required.

Tomorrow's Hearing Will Decide Fate

City Moves Against Ritz Motel

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The Ritz Motel may soon book its last room.

A series of incriminating allegations, including charges of criminal activity, leveled against the longtime North Quincy lodge has prompted the Quincy Health Department to hold a public hearing on the matter tomorrow (Friday) at 10 a.m. in the city council chambers.

After the hearing, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele will decide whether to revoke the motel permit, which is currently held by owner Gloria Nichols. She has been invited to the hearing to refute the allegations and present her side of the story.

The fate of the Ritz Motel will be decided in a week or so after the hearing, according to city officials.

In a letter to Nichols, health officials and police allege that motel operators violated several health and safety codes, failed to maintain a proper booking register of customers, permitted patrons to use false names and failed to pass a required annual public safety inspection dating back 10 years.

In addition, the owner has failed to pay property taxes on the business for 2003 and 2004, the letter states. Approximately $32,000 in property taxes are owed on the property dating back to 2003, according to the tax collector's office. The 12-room motel is currently assessed at $443,300, records state.

Among the other allegations listed is a reference to a "history of drug and narcotic activity at the licensed premises."

Quincy Police Lt. Peter Turowski conducted a probe of the motel's activity and delivered a report to Scheele. According to Police Chief Robert Crowley, a state trooper also conducted surveillance of the motel. They will likely present their evidence at the hearing.

According to Turowski, police arrested the same four individuals on separate occasions for alleged drug use at the motel during a period of a week.

Prompted by the police report, health inspectors conducted separate sweeps of the motel, and the Inspectional Services Department submitted a report about the annual safety inspection.

referring to the city council's attempts to slash Mayor William Phelan's 2005 spending plan.

McCauley called Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi the "architect" of much of those cuts, which were subsequently invalidated by the state Department of Revenue. Phelan honored much of the council's intent, however, by offering $3 million in cuts of his own.

Raymondi, who starts his 24th year as an elected official in Quincy, was not present for Monday's meeting due to the flu.

"It's a rare day that Councillor Raymondi misses a meeting," said McCauley.

McCauley begins his 32nd year as an elected official in Quincy. He has served in every capacity as an elected official in the city.

Ed Melia, the group's vice president. "He will be missed.

"We will have to sit down and discuss our future. I hope we can put things together and continue to serve the taxpayers of Quincy."

"Alan contributed quite a bit to the city of Quincy," said Haley, the former vice president of the QTA who is the treasurer of the town of Hanover.

"He wasn't given enough credit for his work this year. The QTA provided a lot of oversight, a lot of vocal support for the mayor's cut in taxes.

"We need a resident to step forward and take Alan's place. I haven't seen that in the last couple of months. If that doesn't happen there will be no QTA."

Haley, who has been the association's prime researcher and numbers cruncher, said he is not interested in running for the job at the present time.

The QTA bylaws forbid its officers to run for public office in Quincy, which is why Haley resigned as vice president but retained his membership and his research role.

"I'm looking at running for something in the future," he said. He declined to identify the office.

The Quincy Taxpayers Association actually has a long history in the city but the original organization went out of business some 15 years ago.

Cousin founded the new group in August, 2001, and membership has grown from 20 to about 275 members today under Cousin's leadership, said Haley.

"When they raised taxes it really helped us out," he said. "There was no increase in taxes this year so the membership will be hard to maintain."

In his letter to The Sun, Cousin claimed credit for the QTA as a major player in holding down the Quincy tax rate for Fiscal 2005, particularly in a City Council budget hearing in June.

"This was an historic occasion," he said, "because it was the first time, to our knowledge, that Quincy taxpayers demanded and got a direct voice in the city's budget-making process."

"In general," he added, "I'd like to thank The Sun on behalf of the QTA for your outstanding coverage of the 'tax emergency' of 2004 and of the QTA's role in resolving it.

"The Sun's coverage helped inform citizens of the need and the opportunity to act."

Bellotti Sworn Into Office

Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti was sworn into office yesterday (Wednesday) in Dedham Superior Court.

Bellotti then presided over a swearing-in ceremony for County Commissioner John Gillis of Quincy, County Commissioner Francis O'Brien of Dedham and Register of Deeds William O'Donnell of Norwood.

FLOATING THROUGH the air in tandem under a gaily colored parachute are Gerald Dewey, who will be 93 this month, of Quincy, and a companion sky sailor.

George Dewey: 'I Saw All These People In The Air and Said, Why Can't I Do That!'

He Goes Sky Sailing For 93rd Birthday

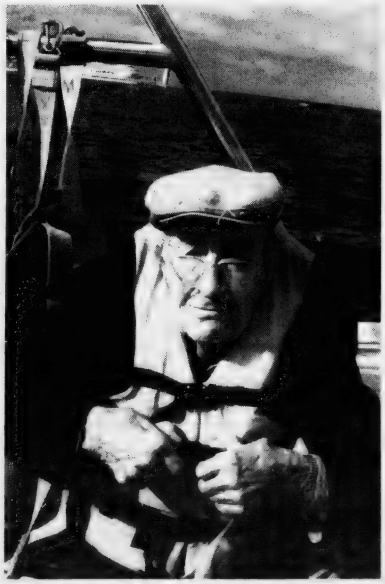
By TOM HENSHAW

Gerald Dewey of 15 Hitchcock Terrace, Quincy, went sky sailing in the Bahamas the other day.

Which is not unusual until you consider that Dewey turns 93 years of age this month.

"I was in the Bahamas on a tour," he said. "I saw all these people in the air. I said to myself, 'Why can't I do that?'"

So he did it.



His thoughts as they strapped him into the harness and he prepared for the ride some 100 feet in the air: "Am I coming back?"

He did that, too.

The desire to sail by parachute over the ocean waters was the same urge that impelled him to run the river rapids in the Canadian Rockies a few years ago.

And take the Concorde, the supersonic jet trans

READY TO GO on his inaugural sky sail is Gerald Dewey, who will be 93 this month, of Quincy, on vacation in the Bahamas.

Will Examine Dept. Heads, Other Appointees Salaries

City Salary Review Committee Named

A committee charged with reviewing the salaries of department heads and appointed officials has been established and is ready to do its work, according to Council President Frank McCauley.

The six-member committee will analyze Quincy's salary structure and compare it with other cities and towns. The committee will also look at the possibility of establishing salary ranges for particular positions.

Mayor William Phelan and McCauley each chose three members to sit on the committee. Phelan picked Personnel Director Roberta Kety, Executive Secretary Tom Largey and resident Robert Haley to serve on the committee.

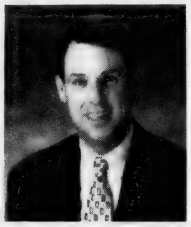
McCauley chose Councillor John Keenan, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Arthur Foley, broker/owner of Century 21 Annex Realty. Foley served as administrative assistant to McCauley when he was mayor.

Last fall, at Coughlin's behest, the city council passed a resolution calling for the establishment of a salary review committee. At the time, some councillors were concerned that the salaries of certain positions did not properly reflect the experience of a particular person filling them.

The committee's recommendations will not be binding, but they could serve as a guide for the city moving forward.

Progress Slow On Choosing Fifth Member And Consultant

Fire Dept. Study Still Months Away



By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

More than eight months after the city council gave its stamp of approval, a study of the fire department's long-term needs has not materialized.

In fact, a committee charged with guiding the project has not recommended a company to undertake the study.

"It is taking longer than we had hoped, but it will get done," said Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide and member of the fire study committee. "Things take time when there are this many parties at the table. But the mayor has agreed to work with the union and the council to incorporate all concerns on this matter."

Murphy said it is his hope that the committee will be able to award a contract in the Spring.

JOHN KEENAN
Fifth Member?

As a result, the city will not see a comprehensive fire study for at least a few more months.

Last April, the city council ok'd a study of the fire department's long term needs, including a review of its eight fire stations, staffing needs and an inventory of apparatus.

In addition, the council signed off on the creation of a five-member steering committee charged with creating a satisfactory blueprint for a fire study.

Four members, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, union president Tom Bowes, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Murphy, agreed to choose a fifth member - possibly a resident or interested party - to fill out the steering committee.

To date, however, the committee has not been able to come up with a fifth member that satisfies all parties.

Councillor John Keenan has been mentioned as a possible fifth member, but Bowes said he is not comfortable with it.

Quincy To Honor Dr. King At Monday Breakfast

The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King would have been 76 years old Saturday had he not been shot to death by an assassin in Memphis April 4, 1968.

Quincy will observe his birthday Monday. Jan. 17, with the annual breakfast in memory of the slain civil rights leader at 9 a.m. at North Quincy High School cafeteria.

The guest speaker, Pharnal Longus, a retired professor of social work at Salem State College, will reflect on the legacy of Dr. King's life. Jan. 17 is a federal holiday honoring Dr. King.

The program will also feature songs by two local children's groups — the Harmony Youth Chorus led by Rachel Shetler Hollenback and the Snug Harbor/ Germantown Neighborhood Center Chorus led by Kathy Quigley.

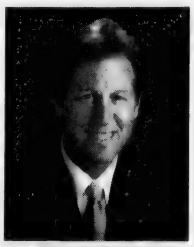
District Attorney William Keating will present awards recognizing special service by members of the community.

Tickets at $10 each with a discount price of $6 for senior citizens and students can be purchased at City Hall or from members of the Quincy Human Rights Commission or from many area religious congregations.

Co-chairs for the breakfast are the Rev. Dr. Anita Farber-Robertson, interim pastor of the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, and Dr. Joseph McDermott with the assistance of the Human Rights Commission.

'Needs More Pressing'

Courthouse A Higher Priority Than Golf Course, Says Tobin



By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Five million dollars in funds earmarked for the Presidents Golf Course clubhouse would better serve the public and taxpayers if it were used to upgrade the Quincy District Courthouse, according to Rep. Stephen Tobin.

The state representative defended a legislative move effectively scuttling a bill which would have given Norfolk County permission to borrow up to $5 million for improvements at the county-owned golf course.

Despite having co-sponsored the bill, Tobin put a "hold" on the measure last August because he was concerned about the merits of earmarking $5 million to the golf course when there were more pressing needs in the county, namely Quincy District Court.

"Initially, I supported this bill, and I have no problem with giving the golf course a better revenue stream," said Tobin. "But at this time, given the needs of Quincy District Court, which are more pressing and serve a higher public interest, I don't believe this bill should have been rushed through in the waning hours of an informal session."

Tobin said Quincy taxpayers would be better served by having an efficient, state-of-the-art courthouse in Quincy. Tobin's father, Arthur Tobin, is clerk magistrate at Quincy District Court.

The courthouse is owned by the county but rented to the state for use.

All four members of Quincy's state delegation cosponsored the bill. Some members claimed they were caught off-guard by Tobin's move.

"I was disappointed the bill got lost at the end," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "We didn't find out about it until after the fact - we had no reason to believe the bill was in trouble."

Tobin chalked it up to "miscommunication" between himself and his colleagues, saying no one was informed of the other's intentions.

Morrissey, who helped push the bill through the Senate, said an improved golf course would boost revenues coming into the county and make it easier to produce funds for the county-owned courthouse. Currently, the clubhouse grosses approximately $900,000 per year.

"I don't think holding up the golf course funds served any positive purpose," he said.

Morrissey said he expects the measure to receive a full public airing when it comes up again this year. The bill has been refiled already, according to Morrissey.

Tobin said he looks forward to that debate.

"I expect it will receive a larger public hearing this year, and I hope it will receive the scrutiny it deserves before it's enacted - I think the taxpayers are entitled to that," said Tobin.

The clubhouse bill was pushed by Norfolk County officials, including Director

Two Others On Military Duty

Four Women Among Seven New Officers

Seven new police officers, including four women, are joining the ranks of the Quincy Police Department.

The new officers were officially sworn in during a ceremony held law week at city hall. The officers are replacing retiring officers, according to the mayor's office.

Two other women on active military duty will be sworn in after they complete their service, according to the mayor's office.

The new officers are Kristen Bowes, Cindy Walsh, Siobhan O'Connor, Christine Wright, Paul Holland, Stephen Cleary and Kenneth Wood Jr.

"This class of new officers brings an eclectic range of experiences and background to a top-quality professional police force," said Mayor William Phelan. "The varied perspectives and backgrounds of the new class can only help to improve the overall quality of our force. I congratulate our new officers on this achievement."

For the first time in Quincy's history, the city asked the state Civil Service Commission for a gender-specific list of potential police officers that ranked the top female candidates.

Of the 290 members of the Quincy Police Department, only six are females. The new hires will double that number eventually.

The fate of The Ritz Motel will be decided next week, according to Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

Scheele will make a decision on whether to revoke the motel permit, which is currently held by owner Gloria Nichols.

The decision follows a public hearing held last week in the city council chambers where Scheele heard evidence from police alleging a pattern of criminal activity at the motel. Supporters also had the chance to rebut evidence and present their side of the story.

"I am reviewing the testimony and evidence that was presented at last week's hearing," he said.

Health officials and police say the motel has violated several health and safety codes, failed to maintain a proper booking register and permitted patrons to use false names.

In addition, taxes have not been paid on the property in two years, city officials said.

Police also allege that the motel has had a history of drug activity.

O'Donnell Cites Improvement

Councillors Criticize City's Curbside Pickup Service

City councillors are turning up the heat on the city's curbside pickup service, which they say has been less than satisfactory as of late.

At Monday night's meeting of the public works committee, several councillors complained that the city's contractor for curbside pickup, BFI, is not getting the job done.

On many occasions, councillors said, BFI has failed to pick up appliances and other items in a timely manner. Many times, items are left outside for days or even weeks, they said.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi called it an "eyesore," and a public safety hazard.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said BFI's service over the summer was "terribly problematic." Sporadic service continues to plague neighborhoods, he said.

But DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell defended BFI, saying the company has stepped up its retrieval service and is doing a much better job lately.

"Quincy has a pretty good program - better than most," said O'Donnell, noting that the city is one of the only municipalities in the area that offers curbside pickup. O'Donnell admitted that BFI fell behind in the late summer, but said the company has been responsive to Quincy's concerns.

"I don't see the stuff sitting out there as we did in September," he said. "But we will keep the pressure on them (BFI)."

And Councillor Joseph Finn, chairman of the committee, said he has seen a dramatic improvement in service since O'Donnell assumed the duties of DPW commissioner.

"Commissioner O'Donnell has a real sense of community, and he has a real willingness to work with councillors," said Finn. "Things have improved incredibly under commissioner O'Donnell."

Residents from other communities are contributing to the problem by dumping items in Quincy because they know the service is available free of charge, according to Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro pressed O'Donnell to improve the city's efforts to educate the public on municipal rules, which including parking and trash pickup regulations. In addition, Gutro said the city should reach out to new residents and ensure that they understand the city's rules.

• On Jan. 12, 1932, Ophelia Wyatt Caraway, a Democrat from Arkansas, becomes the first woman to be elected to the U.S. Senate. Caraway had been appointed to the Senate two months earlier to fill the vacancy left by her late husband, Thaddeus Horatio Caraway.

• On Jan. 11, 1944, Franz Kettner, a private in the German army and a prisoner of war at Camp Hearne in Texas, is killed by a Nazi kangaroo court. Internment camps for German POWs were dominated by Nazi enforcers, who killed as many as 150 of their fellow prisoners during World War II. American officials often looked the other way because the Nazis maintained order in the camps.

Of Mayors And Councillors

City councillors moving on to the mayor's office is nothing new in Quincy.

Most of the mayors come out of the council chamber.

William Phelan, of course, is an exception. When he took office in 2002, he was the first mayor in 79 years who hadn't served in the city council. He made the jump from a first term on the school committee.

PHELAN

The last mayor before him to bypass the city council was Gustave Bates who in a political comeback ousted William Bradford in 1922.

McCAULEY

Frank McCauley, who is completing his 32nd and final year in city government, and knows his political history, notes that Bates and Phelan are the only mayors since the present Plan A charter went into effect in 1917 not to have served in the city council first.

But, did you know that six former mayors served in the council after leaving the mayor's office?

The six: Russell Sears, Joseph Whiton, Charles Bryant, Thomas Burgin, Joseph LaRaia and McCauley.

Some think McCauley was the first and only. No so.

Whiton, Bryant, Burgin, LaRaia and McCauley all served in the council before being elected mayor and then went back to the council after leaving the mayor's office.

Sears, who skipped the council on his way to the mayor's office, was only 27 – the youngest mayor in the city's history – when he was sworn in in 1898. He later served in the council from 1917-1920.

SEARS

Back in the early days, from 1899 when Quincy became a city to 1916, Quincy operated under what was known as the "Homemade Charter." Elections were partisan. Republicans vs. Democrats.

The mayor and councillors served one-year terms then. The council had 23 members. Three from each of the six wards and five at-large. (Wonder how long those council meetings lasted?)

Interestingly the 1892 city council had a father-son team. Herbert Federhen, Sr. and Herbert Federhen, Jr. both represented Ward 2 and lived in the same house. The father was a Republican and the son a Democrat. They must have had some interesting discussions.

Whiton, the first mayor under the Plan A charter, served from 1917-1920 and went back to the city council from 1932-1933.

WHITON

That version of the Plan A charter called for non-partisan elections with two-year terms for the mayor and councillors. The councillors were all elected at-large. The charter was modified later to make it six ward councillors and three at-large as it is today.

Bryant, mayor from 1902-1904, returned to the council from 1908-1913.

Burgin was Plan A mayor from 1935-1942 and Plan E mayor from 1950-1952. As Plan E mayor he was actually a city councillor elected by his council colleagues to the title of mayor.

BURGIN

He presided over council meetings similar to a city council president and was a ceremonial head with a city manager as the chief executive.

After a stormy marriage to the Plan E form of government in the early 1950s, Quincy voters decided it was time for a divorce and returned the city to the Plan A form of government in 1958.

Burgin returned to the council from 1956 to 1959.

LaRaia served one term as mayor in 1976-1977 losing a re-election bid to Arthur Tobin. But he staged the first of several political comebacks winning a council seat he held from 1980 to 1987. He then lost a close challenge to McCauley for mayor and went back to the council in 1993. He was appointed a city assessor in 1995 and is now retired.

LaRAIA

McCauley served four terms as mayor 1982-1989. In his mid-term address in 1989 he took the audience by surprise, declaring he would not seek a fifth term.

McCauley quoted President John Adams: "Politics is a disease for which there is no known cure." And the late Congressman James Burke whose traditional political advice was: "You ought to leave when the music is still playing."

McCauley finished his mid-term address with a farewell "Sayonara!"

And he left office, Jan. 2, 1990.

But, as Adams has said, politics is an incurable disease and McCauley was back in the political arena in 1995. Running unopposed, he won a two-year unexpired term on the school committee. Two years later he was elected city councillor at-large.

"No big deal," McCauley said at the time noting that five other mayors had served in the city council after leaving the mayor's office.

And besides, crossing over from the executive branch to the legislative branch had also been done at a much higher level in Quincy's political history.

Sixth President John Quincy Adams was defeated for re-election by Andrew Jackson in 1828.

But Adams was back in Washington as a Congressman just two years later and served with distinction for 17 years until his death. He suffered a stroke at his desk in the House and died in the Speaker's Room Feb. 23, 1848 at age 80.

J.Q. ADAMS

DELAHUNT

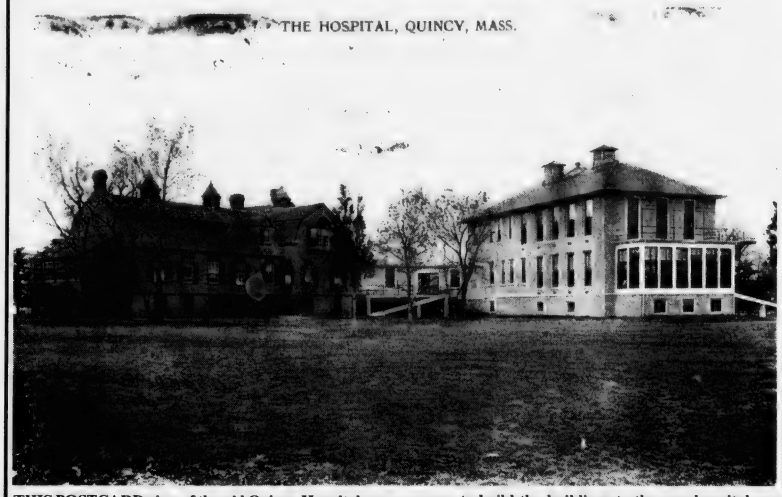
William Delahunt, incidentally, is the only Congressman elected from Quincy since Adams.

"If John Quincy Adams had no problem with stepping down from president to congressman, I sure had no problem going from mayor to councillor," McCauley said at the time.

Neither, apparently, did those five other former mayors.

Wonder if Jim Sheets ever thinks of it?

COA Vouchers Available For Home Improvements



The Council on Aging has a number of handyman vouchers available to pay for certain labors around the house, thanks to a grant from South Shore Elder Services.

The vouchers will pay for labor to assist the elderly with minor plumbing repairs, installation of a tub handrail, removal of small items and installation or removal of air conditioners.

The vouchers include only the labor. Parts are the responsibility of the voucher holder.

To receive a voucher, call the Council on Aging at 617-376-1249.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD view of the old Quincy Hospital was postmarked in 1919, the year that the city took over the operation of the facility. Opened in 1890, one of the original purposes of the hospital was to care for the scores of stonecutters and quarry workers who came down with lung diseases caused by the stonedust in their workplaces. The airborne stone dust was created by the granite sawing, turning and polishing machines. William B. Rice, who owned a boot and shoe manufacturing business in Boston, donated the three acres of land and the money to build the buildings to the new hospital corporation. Further generosity by his family later led to his house and land on Adams Street becoming the nonprofit Rice Eventide Home. For almost 30 years, until the city took it over, the hospital was equipped and maintained by many other generous benefactors with well-known Quincy names. This is now the site of the Quincy Medical Center. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Helping Tsunami Victims

Donating And Volunteering Wisely

"As the recovery and rebuilding process continues across the many tsunami devasted countries of Asia and Africa, we, in Emergency Management, encourage individuals and organizations, who wish to assist, to contribute wisely towards recovery efforts," said Cristine McCombs, director of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA). "To that end, we have outlined important guidelines for individuals and organizations to always consider before offering help."

Consider the following before you donate goods, money or time:

• Financial Contributions Are Preferred. Cash donations help to avoid the labor and expense of sorting, packing, transporting and distributing donated goods. Voluntary relief agencies use cash to meet victims' specific needs more quickly.

• Donate Through Experienced Organizations. Be familiar with the organization that you are assisting. Although relief agencies prefer the versatility of cash donations, some do have the infrastructure in place to store and distribute donated goods. To prevent waste, donated good should be made only to agencies that have requested specific items.

• Confirm The Need Before Collecting. Donors should be wary of anyone who claims that "everything" is needed. Many groups have been disappointed that their efforts and the goods they collected were not appreciated. A community hit by disaster, however, does not have the time, manpower, or money to dispose of unneeded donations. Get precise information before collecting donated goods.

• Volunteer Wisely To Others. In any community struggling to respond to and recover from a disaster, an influx of unexpected or unneeded volunteers and donations can make the process more difficult. Before traveling to any disaster area to help, learn where and when your skills will be needed. Discuss with volunteer organizations how your needs for food, water, and shelter will be met while you are volunteering.

Rotary Club Seeking Candidates For Group Exchange Program

The Quincy Rotary Club along with their district is sending a team of four business professionals to Sao Paulo, Brazil for a Group Study Exchange Program.

The four-week program will run from mid May to June 14, 2005.

The purpose of the program is to promote international understanding through organized travel and personal contact. The program provides travel grants, and team members study the host country's institutions and ways of life, observe their own professions as practiced abroad, develop personal and professional relationships, and exchange ideas.

The Quincy Rotary Club is currently looking for candidates for team members. The team will consist of four non-Rotarians who are between the ages of 25-40 and are currently employed, with two years of experience in this chosen profession. A team member cannot be a lineal descendant or spouse of a Rotarian.

Applications and more information can be obtained on the Rotary website at www.rotary.org, under Group Study Exchange. Or call Caryn Smith at 617-770-0536.

Shipyard Talks Shifted To Washington

This Week
1965

Contract talks between representatives of Electric Boat at the Quincy shipyard and officers of Locals 5 and 90 were scheduled to reconvene in Washington next week.

The change of site for the prolonged talks was suggested by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service national office. Local federal mediators John Sullivan said the Washington location would result in a "higher level of talks, because of the seriousness of the negotiations."

The site change came following a full day of unsuccessful talks between the parties this week.

EXECUTIVE HOUSE TAX PLAN VOTE NEARS

Proponents of the 14-story, $3 million high rise opposite Central Junior High School said its fate could decide the future for high-rise construction throughout the South Shore.

A hearing was scheduled before the Planning Board this week, but in the meantime City Councillor Francis McCauley called for a rejection of the tax plan that would allow the developers to make payments to the city in lieu of taxes. First used to build the Prudential Center, the state tax break would be the first allowed in Quincy.

Developers Peter and Harold Kanavos and George Buehler said because high-rise construction on the South Shore was an untried venture, banks were unwilling to provide conventional financing, and they needed this tax arrangement to make the project work.

PARIS TRIP AWARDED IN CONTEST

Irene Bowes of Bartlett Street was the winner of a trip for two to Paris, as the ninth and final vacation prize in a shopping promotion contest sponsored by the downtown merchants' association.

The winner was drawn by LeRoy Rounseville of Roy's Flowers in ceremonies at the Strand Theater, organized by Ed Kasper.

Mrs. Bowes said she submitted her entry at Grant's while she was doing some pre-Christmas shopping.

Red Cross To Hold Annual Gala Feb. 11

The American Red Cross Chapter of Massachusetts Bay will hold the 27th Annual Gala Friday evening, Feb. 11, at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

The valentine theme event will include dinner, cocktails, cabaret-style entertainment by Babes On Broadway Carol O'Shaughnessy and Jan Peters.

Chairing the event are Tom Accomando, Lynne Houghton and John Pasciucco, assisted by Quincy Chapter Council members.

Jackie Gardner, executive director American Red Cross South Area, reminds residents the Red Cross is always there to help in such emergencies as floods and fires and other disasters.

Last year, Gardner noted, the Massachusetts Bay Chapter serviced more than 2,500 local individuals. Hundreds were taught how to give first aid and CPR and many trained to save lives with automatic external defibrillators.

JACKIE GARDNER

Last year more than 15,000 units of blood were collected at bloodmobiles. More than 12,000 local school students received certificates from two special youth programs, "Safe On My Own" and "Whales Tales."

For more information or to purchase tickets, contact Gardner at the Quincy Red Cross office, 1495 Hancock St., or by calling 617-770-2600.

Tables can be reserved with corporate program recognition for groups of 10 at $750 or for individuals at $75 per person.

South Area Council members assisting in the event include:

Rice Eventide Auxiliary To Meet Jan. 31

The Rice Eventide Auxiliary will hold its opening meeting of the new year Monday, Jan. 31, at 2 p.m. at the home on Adams Street.

Barbara Barnes will greet their residents, auxiliary members and guests.

Audrey DiChristofaro, program chair, will introduce a popular resident of Eventide and also an auxiliary member who will play the piano and lead the group in a sing-a-long. Refreshments and a short social hour will follow.

Friends, relatives of the residents, and anyone interested in learning about Eventide are welcome.

Three Residents On J & W Dean's List

Three Quincy residents were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Johnson & Wales University in Providence, R.I.

They are Rosanna DiPietro, pursuing an associate degree in culinary arts; Daniel Ferland, pursuing an associate degree in culinary arts; and Lipoi Chong, pursuing a bachelor of science degree in food service management.

Mr., Mrs. D. Scott Deware Parents Of Daughter

Melanie and D. Scott Deware of So. Easton, are parents of a daughter Eden Stella born Nov. 26 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth. She joins sisters Lily and Bethany.

Grandparents are Charlotte and Jack Lyons of Meriden, CT., and Donald and Mary Deware of Quincy.

SIX QUINCY WOMEN, affectionately called "Lunch Ladies" by Boston College High School students, were recently honored for their years of devoted service to the school and the students. From the left: Kaye Mahoney of Quincy, Mary Sullivan of Quincy, Peggy McCarthy, retired of Quincy, Catherine Machras, retired of Quincy, Terry Kenney of Quincy, Katie Quinlan of Braintree, Peggy Federico of Braintree, Linda McAteer of Quincy and Brother Cornelius Murphy, SJ of Dorchester. More than 400 BC High alumni spanning six decades joined BC High President William J. Kemeza, Principal Steve Hughes and members of the faculty for an evening "last lunch" in the 54-year-old McElroy Cafeteria before its doors close this month. The school made several presentations to its "lunch ladies," especially Mrs. Mary Sullivan of Quincy, who for 43 years has served over one million pieces of her homemade cake, and to cafeteria manager, Brother Cornelius Murphy SJ. A new 650-seat dining hall will open later this month.

'Tea For Two' Celebrates Hot Tea Month At Beechwood

Senior Volunteers at Beechwood Community Life Center are celebrating Hot Tea Month by hosting "Tea at Two' every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 440 East Squantum St.

"January can be a chilly, stay-at-home month for seniors," warns Maryann Mahony, Beechwood's senior coordinator. "A nice hot cup of tea and friendly faces can lift spirits and entice interest in Center activities."

Call Beechwood at 617-471-5712 for more information about Hot Tea Month, which lasts all through January.

Fire Dept. Study Still Months Away

Bowes questioned whether Keenan could be considered independent.

"I like John and he is a good guy, but he might create a little animosity," said Bowes. "The four of us need to sit down and discuss who we want as the fifth member."

Keenan, who has consistently pushed for a fire study, said he is willing to serve on the committee.

"I would like to serve on it, but if my presence is going to cause friction then I would rather see the committee move forward with someone else," said Keenan. "The bottom line is, we want to get this study underway and see the results."

Coughlin said it is important for the committee to work in unison going forward.

"We all have to be on the same page, otherwise this will be an exercise in futility," said Coughlin. "The city went down this road before and it was never consummated."

According to Murphy, the committee sent out a Request for Proposals (RFP) in September and received three responses from companies willing to conduct the study. To date, however, the committee has not recommended a company.

Murphy said the committee is expected to meet next week to discuss the RFP and fifth member of the group.

Ultimately, the committee's recommendation will be reviewed by the city's purchasing agent.

Among the issues scheduled to be addressed in a fire study:

• Assessment of fire station locations, crew sizes, response times and pieces of apparatus at each engine company, ladder company and rescue company.

• Determine whether existing fire stations should stay put, merge or relocate to a different location.

• Inventory of apparatus by age and historical usage. Maintenance records will be reviewed.

• Evaluate the effectiveness of the city's fire alarm dispatch center. The review will determine whether having separate fire dispatch centers - one for the police department and one for the fire department - is practical.

• Assess the fire department's hiring practices, promotions, vacations, use of sick time and other contractual benefits.

The study is not binding, but could be used as a guide when the city deals with several ongoing issues within the fire department, such as minimum manning standards, overtime use and the condition of the city's fire stations.

Last year, the mayor and city council clashed over the implementation of a minimum manning standard within the fire department. Despite objections from the mayor, the city council went ahead and approved a city ordinance creating a minimum manning standard.

To date, the mayor has not implemented the ordinance.

Councillor Joseph Finn said the results of a comprehensive fire study will go a long way in evaluating the city's long-term needs regarding fire services and public safety.

"I think it's clear cut that some of the larger issues, such as minimum manning standards and overtime, will be contingent upon the outcome of this study," said Finn.

The Studio Holds Grand Re-Opening

The Studio, a salon and spa at 5 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, held its grand re-opening Saturday under the new ownership of Mirva Coiffeur, who is setting out on her own with nine years of experience.

The full service salon features a special room where Muslim women can have their hair cut without removing their head coverings in front of men, which is forbidden by the tenets of their religion.

Coiffeur's service also includes the practice of "threading," i.e, the use of cotton thread in place of wax to remove unsightly hairs from the face, legs and other parts of the exposed body.

"It works like wax and produces the same results," said Coiffeur, who co-owns the salon with her husband, Fadi Fadlallah. "But it doesn't irritate; it doesn't cause wrinkles and it last longer."

Special packages that include massages, facials, manicures, pedicures, hair color highlighting, waxing and a light lunch are offered in the $130 to $300 range.

Also available are individual services like a one hour Swedish massage for $65, a spa manicure for $25, a shampoo and finish for $25, a permanent wave for $60, makeup instruction for $20, and Le Grande Classique, a therapeutic deep pore cleansing for $85.

HAIRDRESSER Krista Bongazone prepares to work her specialty on client Kirsten Christian at grand re-opening of The Studio, Mirva Coiffeur's new salon and spa at 5 Cottage Ave.

THE STUDIO, the new salon and spa owned by Mirva Coiffeur and her husband, Fadi Fadlallah, is a valuable addition to the Quincy Center business community.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO QUINCY PARENTS:

A recent survey sponsored by The Impact Quincy Coalition found that almost 30% of Quincy Kids between the ages of 12 and 16 obtain alcohol from their own homes.

Here are some tips to help keep your children safe:

• Don't keep alcohol where it can be easily obtained by kids.

• Store all alcohol in locked cabinets.

QUINCY COLLEGE PRESIDENT Sean Barry presents a degree to a graduate from the largest winter class in the college's history. During the ceremony, Barry addressed the graduates as a former Quincy College student and presented special awards and recognitions to Quincy Attorney George Burke and former Speaker of the House David Bartley.

MORE THAN 225 students earned their degrees at the Quincy College commencement ceremony at the Quincy Marriott Hotel surrounded by hundreds of family and friends.

Attorney George Burke Honored At College's Largest January Commencement

More Than 225 Receive Quincy College Degrees

More than 225 students graduated from Quincy College Saturday, during the colleges largest ever January Commencement, joining the thousands of alumni who have come to Quincy during the past 49 years.

Held in the Grand Ballroom at the Quincy Marriott Hotel, the ceremony was a celebration of each student's academic accomplishments as well as a celebration of the City of Quincy.

Nearly a full quarter of the students graduating are Quincy residents. A list of the graduates appeared in the Jan. 6 issue of The Quincy Sun.

Theresa Lord Piatelli, chairperson of the board of governors welcomed guests to the ceremony on what outdoors had become a gray and sleet swept afternoon.

"Pride, honor and enormous satisfaction warmed the ballroom today. These students and their families are consumed with happiness because of Quincy College," Piatelli said during the reception following the event.

Former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Dr. David Bartley was the commencement speaker. Bartley recently retired as president of Holyoke Community College, where he has been president for 27 years. Bartley was presented with an honorary degree from Quincy College.

Another highlight of the ceremony, the reflections of President Sean L. Barry inspired the crowd of nearly 1,000 people. He referred to the personal sacrifices and many struggles that students endured in order to succeed. He congratulated the graduates for overcoming the obstacles, balancing their lives with school and ultimately reaching their goal. With heart-felt emotion, he expressed his deep pride for them.

As a former Quincy College student, Barry alluded to his own struggles and how Quincy College was there for him in his time of need. He graciously praised the founders of the College for their foresight nearly fifty years ago.

Barry also thanked them for their courage in establishing an institution that created access to higher education for "average people who might not have had the opportunity to earn a degree were it not for Quincy College."

Daniel Raymondi, original member of the Quincy College Board of Governors and long-time Quincy Councilor addressed the graduates and echoed sentiments regarding the City of Quincy and its tradition of education.

As a representative of the city as well as an advocate for the College he commented on the sacrifices of each student and the dedication they demonstrated in reaching their dreams of a college degree. Raymondi spoke briefly before introducing Quincy Attorney George Burke.

Raymondi's reflections of Burke's life, including his career in public service and his contributions to the City of Quincy, served as an inspiration for students excited at the prospects and opportunities ahead of them as newly graduated students.

In addition to his professional accomplishments, Burke's dedication to the historical significance of the city was celebrated. Recently Burke purchased several high-priced historical Adams family artifacts and brought them home for display at City Hall to encourage students of Quincy to learn about the city's heritage. This was just part of several acts of generosity by Burke, who takes enormous pride in the city and its youth. For his commitment to the city of Quincy, Burke received the Quincy College Public Service Award for Excellence from President Barry.

QUINCY ATTORNEY George Burke (left) listens to Quincy College President Sean Barry's address alongside Dr. David Bartley, former Speaker of the House and commencement speaker. Burke received the Public Service Award for Excellence. Bartley received an Honorary Degree in Public Service.

A QUARTER OF the Quincy College winter graduating class were from the city of Quincy, while others hailed from across Greater Boston as well as nearly 40 nations from around the globe.

"We recognize a lifelong affection for Quincy, an unshakeable belief in the students of the city and a career in public service when we recognize Mr. Burke," said Barry following the ceremony. "This is an amazing individual who genuinely cares about kids growing up in our city; about getting a good education; and about giving back once you experience personal success.

"In a society so highly charged with self-interest it is inspirational to see someone telling people to work hard and then selflessly give back to the community. That's a lesson that needs to be repeated more often. George Burke may well end up in the short and distinguished list of Quincy's leaders when someone writes the next history book about Quincy."

Burke and Bartley were classmates at UMass Amherst, back when tuition there was fifty dollars a semester. Both played basketball and they were the first two graduates of the university to serve in the General Court of the Commonwealth. Burke introduced Bartley in a warm, personal commentary that told of friendship, citizenship and charity.

Dr. Bartley encouraged the graduates, urging them to use the skills and talents they have developed as Quincy College students for exciting careers. Bartley was the longest serving community college president in the Commonwealth at Holyoke Community College. In addition to a lifelong commitment to education, he also thrived in politics as a member of the House of Representatives and Speaker of the House.

Richard O'Toole, of Quincy, was at the ceremony to see friends graduate. "I always knew this was important to them, but seeing all this today I guess I really understand how hard they worked and how great it feels to succeed. It took them a long time with work and other obligations but they did it...kinda like the Red Sox. It was a long time but it was worth it."

Also receiving awards were three adjunct instructors recognized for their dedication to student learning. Quincy resident Rose Marie De Castro, a graduate of Harvard University and Lesley University, has taught at the College since 1996. A licensed alcohol and drug counselor in the state, she teaches for the Human Services and Sociology departments. Students recognize her for the life skills she brings to the classroom and her fellow instructors laud her for the insight she offers for curriculum development and special programs she organizes on campus.

Margaret Raymond, an adjunct in Psychology, has taught on campus for over a decade. In addition to her academic credentials from University of Massachusetts, Boston and Eastern Nazarene College, she, too, brings her experience as a school adjustment counselor, treatment coordinator and both family and individual therapist to the classroom to combine theory with practice. Students have credited her with being an inspiration for choosing their program of study and ultimately their career choice. Faculty and Deans have cited her as an invaluable resource in the field of Psychology.

Quincy resident Deborah Steele was the third adjunct to receive the Award for Excellence presented by Vice President Tom De Santes. Although relatively new to teaching on campus, Steele has quickly made an impact among the student body. A graduate for both her Bachelor's and Master's degree from University of Massachusetts, Boston, she has dedicated her career to teaching in the Boston Public School System. She brings her passion for elementary education and special needs to the growing Education program at the College. In addition to her talent for making learning enjoyable, she can be found hours before a class and hours after making herself available to her students who want to master the material. Her dedication to students is a model to her colleagues.

Students at graduation earned degrees in Accounting, Business Management, Computer Science, Education, Fine Arts, Fire Science, Human Services, Liberal Arts & Sciences, Legal Studies and Nursing. For many it was two-year journey, but as noted in the welcome by the event's presiding officer Dean Martha Sue Harris of Quincy, many students had been waiting over ten years to receive their degree. Although primarily from the city of Quincy, other graduates hailed from all across Greater Boston.

Also, nearly forty countries around the world were represented by the class of 2005 including Albania, Hungary, Nepal and Venezuela. This winter class of 2005 was the largest graduating class in recent history.

Quincy Churches Move Toward Sale, Merger

By TOM HENSHAW

The fate of former and current Quincy churches moved inexorably toward denouement this week as the Archdiocese of Boston sought a way out of its financial predicament.

The sale of the closed Star of the Sea church in Squantum neared a still indefinite sale date and two parishes on the Houghs Neck peninsula prepared to merge into one.

Meanwhile, the Friends of the Star of the Sea persisted in their uphill efforts to preserve the Squantum church as a mission of Sacred Heart church in North Quincy.

Chris Griffin and Brian Doherty of Cushman & Wakefield, the firm chosen to broker the sale, said so far they have shown about 10 different groups around the property.

"That's pretty good," said Doherty. "You have a tough time selling during the Christmas season. The people have other things on their minds."

"We're not encouraging offers yet," said Griffin. "We can't respond to them until after 90 days have passed. We can go over 90 days. That's just a minimum requirement."

The property at 101-105 Bellevue Rd., which is assessed at $1,000,100 for the church and $680,000 for the rectory and garage, went on the market in early November.

The last mass was celebrated Sunday, Oct. 24, and former parishioners were invited to transfer their worship to Sacred Heart of North Quincy, about a mile and a half away.

"We're not giving up," said Maureen Mazrimas, spokesman for the Friends of Star of the Sea. "There are some solid arguments to keeping the church open as a mission.

"Just the other day, a read an article where Archbishop O'Malley elected to suspend the closing of St. Bernards in West Newton where the people held a vigil.

"He's going to let them stay open for a year. I hope we can get the same consideration."

Mazrimas said the Friends met with Bishop Richard Lennon two weeks ago to present their petition.

"He listened for an hour," she said. "We reinforced the fact that there are 147 kids in the religious program that now have to find a way to get across town to Sacred Heart.

"We told him that development in North Quincy might require a new church in the future and there would be no place to put it. That argument seemed to resonate with him."

Mazrimas said a number of former Star of the Sea parishioners have not yet settled on a new church.

"I've been to Sacred Heart and St. Anns in Wollaston," she said. "I haven't signed up yet. I'll wait until they resolve the mission things. I prefer not to sign up right now."

"Sacred Heart has been very welcoming," she added. "Father (John) O'Brien has been wonderful. He's tried to bend over backwards. He helped to set up the meeting with Bishop Lennon.

"I went to mass at St. Anns for Christmas. A lot of former Star of the Sea parishioners were there. When they saw each other, they embraced and started crying.

"That's one element of the church closing that the Archdiocese doesn't understand."

Across town, Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck and St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Church in Merrymount and Germantown prepared to close at the end of the month.

"As of Jan. 31, we will not longer exist," said the Rev. Albert Sallesse, the senior priest in residence at St. Elizabeth Ann Seton.. "We will be merged into Holy Trinity Parish."

St. Boniface Church in Germantown will be closed and sold off with the rectory preserved to be an office and outreach center.

Most Blessed Sacrament and the old Our Lady of Good Counsel in Merrymount with remain as church buildings.

Jack Comer Appointed To State Veterans' Commission

Jake Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, has been appointed to serve on a commission designed to protect the rights of veterans when they return to work after serving their country.

Comer was recently appointed to serve on the Commission of Veterans' Employment Opportunities, which will work with the governor and state Legislature to ensure that municipalities are honoring state and federal laws regarding veterans' rights.

JACK COMER

"Certainly, I look forward to serving on the commission because of the past practice of some cities, towns and private employers of not obeying state and federal laws regarding the rights of veterans," said Comer. "We want to ensure that our veterans are protected when they come back to work."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) That lower-than-acceptable performance you're getting from others in your group might be the result of miscommunication. If so, correct it before serious problems arise later on.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unexpected situation could call for a change of plans. If so, you might feel that this is unfair. But it's best to make the needed adjustments now. There'll be time later for rescheduling.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The new year brings opportunities you might want to look into. Some might be more interesting than others. But take time to look at all of them before you make any decisions.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good idea to be careful about expenses until you've worked out that pesky financial problem. You might find it advisable to get some solid advice on how to proceed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Romance looms large over the Leonine aspect. Single Lions looking for love should find Cupid very cooperative. Paired Cats can expect a renewed closeness in their relationships.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Making contact with a former colleague might not be high on your list of priorities. But it could pay off personally as well as professionally. Avoid bringing up any negatives about the past.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A personal relationship could face added stress because of a situation involving someone close to both of you. Be supportive and, above all, try to avoid playing the blame game.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might well find some lingering uncertainties about a decision. If so, take that as a warning that you might not be ready to make that move yet. More study would be in order.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Music is a dominant theme for Sagittarians right now, and it should remind you to make a greater effort to restore some much-needed harmony in that very special relationship.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although family matters might demand much of the Sea Goat's attention this week, you'll want to try to make time to handle those all-important workplace situations as well.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A recurring unresolved issue might need to be revisited before you can move forward. Consider asking someone familiar with the situation to act as an impartial counselor.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Ignore pressure to make a decision. Keeping your options open is still the wisest course, at least until you're sure you've learned all you need to know about the matter at hand.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're capable of great loyalty to those around you, which is one reason you can count on devotion from friends and family.

Ringing The Bell For The Salvation Army

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner teamed at the kettle.

FIFTY COMMUNITY LEADERS volunteered to man the Salvation Army kettle three days in December in front of City Hall. The last day was a hard rainy one with the Park Dept. coming to the rescue with a tent. Over $2,500 in donations went to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps to help local needy families at Christmas. The photos are by Robert Bosworth, Maralin Manning and Marie Watts.

CITY COUNCIL President Frank McCauley and School Committee Vice Chairman Michael McFarland.

JEAN KENNEY ROUNSEVILLE, vice president Eastern Bank, and Uncle Sam Rounseville.

DON UVANITTE, vice president Eastern Insurance, and Maralin Manning, executive director Quincy Business Association.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE members Elaine Dwyer and Jo-Ann Bragg.

DOUG GUTRO, Ward 5 city councillor, and Michelle Higgins, manager Bank of Canton Quincy branch.

NORFOLK COUNTY Dist. Atty. William Keating and state Senator Michael Morrissey.

JENNIFER LOGUE, director of Discover Quincy; Isobel Bertman, Rogers Jewelry; and Robert Baker, interim vice president Quincy College.

STATE REP. Bruce Ayers, Ann McLaughlin, director Thomas Crane Public Library, and John (Jake) Comer, past national commander of the American Legion.

CITY COUNCILLOR Joseph Finn and Anthony Agnitti, chairman Quincy Medical Center Foundation Board and owner Agnitti Insurance agency.

ROBERT CURRY, chairman Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees and owner Curry Hardware stores, and the Rev. William Harding, pastor Bethany Congregational Church.

DANIEL FLYNN, chairman Quincy Business Council and owner Quincy real estate and property management firm, and Robert Guarnieri, president Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

PRESIDENTS OF QUINCY'S service clubs teamed up to ring the bell. From the left, Caryn Smith, Rotary Club; Jennifer Logue, Lions Club; and Jean McCarty, Kiwanis Club.

REAL ESTATE

Jan. 22 At South Shore Savings Bank

Neighborhood Housing Homebuyer Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, Jan. 22, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at South Shore Savings Bank, 1584 Main St., Weymouth.

All potential first-time homebuyers are invited to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be prequalified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals. Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend a free Introductory Session to evaluate credit history and determine level of mortgage readiness. It's strongly suggested attendees obtain a current copy of their credit report.

The next Introductory Session will be held Jan. 18 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. South Shore Savings Bank, 1584 Main St., Weymouth. Call in advance to register or discuss dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person that covers the First-Time Homebuyer Workshop, the Introductory Session and all workshop materials. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

QCAP Homebuyer Workshop Starts Feb. 8

Quincy Community Action Programs will sponsor a first-time home buyer workshop Feb. 8, 10 and 15 at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Downpayment and closing cost assistance available to qualified buyers.

For more information and to register, contact Amy Szeto at 617-479-8181 ext. 119 or www.qcap.org.

Calendar Puts Chores in Order

Q. I have a hard time keeping up with maintenance tasks — there are so many to do, and so little time. I also want to do some home-improvement stuff, but the repairs and maintenance take up all my time. Got any shortcuts? — Leo M., Providence, R.I.

A. Unfortunately, home repair doesn't have as many shortcuts as one would like — patience and hard work tend to create the best-quality results. However, you can get control of the maintenance and repair tasks around your home by analyzing the overall situation and scheduling work ahead of time. It's also important to consider hiring a contractor for some tasks, depending on your skill level, available time and the scope of the job.

January is a great time of year to do most of this planning. The cold weather means you're in downtime where most repair work is concerned, so you'll be able to sit back and start creating the all-important 12-month maintenance calendar.

Making a maintenance calendar allows you to put all your needs and wants for your home down on paper in an organized fashion. You can use a small notebook, a spare wall calendar that has room to write, or an actual maintenance calendar (available at home-improvement and book stores).

But before scheduling all your work at once, sit down and brainstorm for a while with a spare piece of paper. List everything that needs to be done around the house this year. Then, list everything you want to do around the house. Next, rank both lists in order of importance (for example, a leaking roof will take precedence over a running toilet). This will be your starting point for the calendar.

If possible, place the maintenance calendar next to your personal or work schedule for the year, so that you can schedule tasks around other commitments. When making the schedule, keep the seasons and potential weather in mind — you don't want to schedule roof repairs in December, for example.

A maintenance calendar allows you to get a handle on the huge number of chores every homeowner faces throughout the year. You'll be able to budget your time and money better, and decide which tasks really need to be addressed, which can wait, and which should be handled by a professional.

You still may not complete everything on your list, but I guarantee that by making and following an annual maintenance schedule, you'll get much more accomplished this year than last.

Conway Real Estate School Sales Course Starts Feb. 1

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is offering four-week courses on the fundamentals of the real estate profession.

Anyone interested in obtaining a license must take the 25 hours of coursework to meet the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' requirements prior to taking the salespersons' licensing exam.

Students of the Conway Country School of Real Estate also have access to professional career counseling to discuss joining the Conway sales team; although enrolling in the prelicensing class does not obligate students to work for Conway.

Tuition is $200 and the classes are held in Hanover at the intersection of Routes 53 and 139 on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The next class begins Feb. 1 and runs through Feb. 24.

Additional classes are scheduled in Lakeville off I-495 and Route 105 on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Feb. 28 through March 23.

For more information, call (617) 826-0088.

Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., an independent real estate company in Massachusetts.

Pet-Proofing Your Home

(NAPS) - Welcoming a new pet into your home requires preparation. Here are some tips:

Have a Plan

Start by determining whether or not you want your pet to have the run of the house. Look for small objects a pet could chew and choke on, or access to garbage containers that your pet could topple. Be sure you and your family agree on what rooms Fluffy or Fido can and cannot get into; this way, there will not be any mixed messages that can confuse your pet.

Keep Your Pets Busy

If pets are left alone in the home all day, another way to keep them occupied is to scatter pet toys through out the areas in which they frequently play.

Furniture

If you do not want your pets on certain pieces of furniture, try using "childproof" gates or other barriers to keep them out of the rooms where the furniture is kept. If you have furniture that your pet is allowed on, consider covering it with slip covers or throws to keep pet hair and staining to a minimum.

Floors

Certain types of floors are more resistant to pet wear and tear than other types. For instance, luxury vinyl tends to resist spills, scratches and tracked-in dirt – staples in many homes that have pets.

Presidents Rebound Against Plymouth North

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By DAN DUGGAN

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team lost its first game of the season last Tuesday, but was able to salvage a split for the week.

The Presidents stumbled on the road against Whitman-Hanson, losing 61-44, but rebounded with a win Friday at home against Plymouth North, 58-48.

Quincy will bring its 5-1 record (2-1 Atlantic Coast League) across town for a match-up with rival North Quincy tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

The biggest reason Quincy was able to get back on the winning track against Plymouth North was the play of Lavell Johnson. The junior forward poured in 23 points, 16 of which came in the second half, and turned in another strong defensive performance.

"He's our best defensive player. More important than his points was his defense," head coach Bob Fisher said, pointing out that Johnson held one of Plymouth North's leading scorers to just eight points.

Offensively, Johnson was especially deadly from the outside, as he knocked down five three-pointers. It seemed that whenever the Presidents needed a basket, Johnson drilled a deep shot.

The only other Presidents in the scoring column were Parker Scott (17 points), John Folino (16) and Kenny Johnson (two).

"As a coach you'd like to have four or five players scoring, but if players are hot you have to get them the ball," Fisher said.

Scott started the game hot, notching 12 points in the first half as he continued his steady play at point guard. Plymouth North (3-5, 1-1 ACL) even employed a box-and-one defense on him in the second half to keep the ball out of his hands to prevent the co-captain from running the offense.

The 6-3 Folino showed his versatility in registering most of his points on jump shots from the outside. He was forced to play away from the basket more than usual because of the presence of 6-6 Ryan McLean down low for the Blue Eagles. McLean swatted away numerous shots and forced countless others to be adjusted.

McLean was Plymouth North's main weapon on offense with 27 points. Over a three-minute stretch late in the second half, McLean took over the game, mounting a personal 9-0 run that closed Quincy's lead to 46-39.

Johnson put an end to McLean's run with his fourth three of the game with 3:45 to play, giving Quincy some breathing room at 49-39. Johnson's final three-pointer of the night, two minutes later, nailed down the win for the Presidents.

Fisher credited the team's relentless defense for its role in the win. "Folino played very good defense against the best player in the league," he said. "McLean had to work for his points. Our defense was special. I thought the defense made the difference in the game."

In last Tuesday's loss to Whitman-Hanson (4-2, 1-1 ACL), Quincy's defense was uncharacteristically ineffective.

"We lost our defensive intensity," Fisher said. "We didn't shoot the ball well. We had 16 straight possessions where we scored one point. That was the ball game."

As has been the case for most of the year, the leading scorers for the Presidents were Folino (18) and Lavell Johnson (15).

With no game scheduled Tuesday, the Presidents will have had a week to prepare for the Red Raiders when they take the court tomorrow night. But don't expect Fisher to change anything in his team's preparation for the game.

"To us it's another game," he said. "We can't think any more of this game than we do any other game. It'll be fun. It's going to be tough over there. However, I'm going to treat it as just another game on the schedule."

Red Raiders Top W-H, Plymouth South

By CHRIS POISSON

With four losses against tough non-league competition, the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team welcomed the beginning of Atlantic Coast League play last week.

The Red Raiders produced their first wins of the season, topping Whitman-Hanson, 63-53, last Friday and Plymouth South, 64-43, last Tuesday, both games on the road.

NQ (2-4 overall, 2-0 Atlantic Coast League) took on Plymouth North Tuesday and will tip off against neighboring Quincy (5-1) Friday night at 6:30.

"It helps us a lot because we played a difficult schedule early on," said head coach Jim Rendle. "We were hoping that would prepare us for our league games, but when you lose four in a row you start to second guess yourself. Our defensive intensity shut down those two teams. If we continue to improve in that area, we should be a factor in our league."

Against Whitman-Hanson, junior Kyle Costa turned in a sensational two-way game. The point guard drained a game-high 24 points while also holding the Panthers' leading scorer, Andrew McDonald, scoreless.

Junior forward Akil Benjamin also played well at both ends of the floor, scoring 10 points and limiting opposing center Tony Cina to four points and four rebounds.

Juniors Tom Power (10 points), Kevin Donovan (nine) and Imad Elkateib (six points, six rebounds, five steals) delivered strong performances.

In the Plymouth South game, junior forward John Murray netted 22 points, Costa 21 and Elkateib 11.

QHS Appreciation Dinner For Retired Basketball Coaches

Quincy High School will hold an appreciation dinner for three recently retired coaches of the boys' basketball program Thursday, Jan. 20, at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Road.

The school will honor John Franceschini, Ray Papile and Mike Draicchio for their 20 years of hard work and dedication.

Cocktail hour will begin at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Tickets are $40 per person. For more information, call Robin Franceschini at 617-773-9176 or Bob Sylvia at 617-984-8753.

THE MASSACHUSETTS BASKETBALL Coaches Association's Hall of Fame Banquet had several Quincy connections. From the left: MBCA Executive Director John Franceschini of Quincy; Quincy natives Charles Bergeron, Leo Papile and Lionel "Shine" Buckley, Presidential Service Award recipients; and MBCA President Brian Buckley of Quincy.

Mass. Basketball Coaches Honor 3 Quincy Natives

The Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association (MBCA) recently held its annual Hall of Fame Banquet at the College of Holy Cross.

MBCA President Brian Buckley of Quincy presented Presidential Service Awards to three Quincy natives who contributed to the game of basketball in their own unique way: Leo Papile, Charles Bergeron and Lionel "Shine" Buckley.

Papile was recognized for his work with inner city youth and his efforts with the Boston Amateur Basketball Club. He is also in his seventh season on the staff of the Boston Celtics.

Bergeron was honored for his support of high school and college basketball as a sports announcer. He has been the voice of Brockton sports for more than 25 years.

Lionel "Shine" Buckley received the award for his work with the Quincy Recreation Department summer and winter basketball programs for 40 years. He also taught and coached in Boston Public Schools.

Also, Dennis Duggan, a Quincy native, presented Milton's Mike Goodless into the Hall of Fame and MBCA Executive Director John Franceschini of Quincy handed the first annual Leo Miller Award to Ernie Green.

BRIAN BUCKLEY (left), president Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association, presents Kevin McDermott with the Past President Award.

LEO PAPILE (right) of Quincy, a Boston Celtics staff member, receives the Presidential Service Award from MBCA President Brian Buckley.

Babe Ruth World Series Committee Meets Jan. 21

The Quincy Babe Ruth World Series Committee will hold an informational meeting for those interested in being a host family Friday, Jan. 21, at 7 p.m. at Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

Families would have to host at least two players from around the country and Italy during the World Series to be held Aug. 19-27 at Adams Field. Players arrive Aug. 16 and 17.

Food will be served at the meeting and a cash bar will be available. Those interested are asked to call Dick Lombardi at 617-479-5724.

KEEPING UP WITH INFLATION

Tire manufacturers are putting products in the marketplace that grip the road, ride better, and last longer than any tires that preceded them. As far as consumers are concerned, they can do their part to maximize their tires' life span and performance by maintaining them properly. The most important thing that vehicle owners can do to protect their investment is to keep them properly inflated. Improper inflation can cause tires to wear unevenly and adversely affects handling and fuel economy. It also pays to keep wheels properly aligned. If the toe setting is out of specifications by a mere one-eighth inch, tires experience the equivalent of being dragged sideways more than 26 feet for every mile driven.

For your car's safety and comfort, make sure your car's tires are in good shape and inflated properly. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent and safe running condition. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: Underinflated tires can also lead to permanent internal damage that might go undetected during a visual inspection.

Quincy Cruises Past Plymouth North, 49-38

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team cruised to an easy 49-38 victory last Friday at Plymouth North.

It served as the perfect remedy to help soothe the stinging defending Atlantic Coast League champ Whitman-Hanson inflicted on them in a 56-36 thrashing three days earlier at home.

Quincy (4-3), which headed to Archbishop Williams yesterday (Wednesday, 6 p.m.), will clash with cross-town rival North Quincy tomorrow (Friday) at 5 p.m. on Hancock Street.

"North Quincy is having a great year," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "We beat them twice last year, but they've made a lot of strides since then. Their younger kids have developed. We're going to have to be ready to play going to their gym. It's going to be a battle like always."

Against Plymouth North, senior center and co-captain Nicole O'Sullivan scored a team-high 14 points. Junior forward Jessica Page registered a double-double with 11 points and 11 rebounds. Sophomore forward Brighid Kyle scored seven points and senior point guard and co-captain Rebekah Sorensen six.

"I thought we improved from the Whitman-Hanson game," Bretsch said. "And it was a good opportunity for a lot of the reserves to get quality minutes. We came out strong at the beginning and set the tone early. We maintained a 10- to 15-point lead throughout. We did a great job defensively, particularly Teri Murphy. She really hustled and worked hard."

In the Whitman-Hanson game, the Panthers drilled eight three-pointers (10 total) in the first half to build a 34-15 advantage at the break.

"That's tough to handle," said Bretsch of Whitman-Hanson's long-range fireworks. "Their defense is too good for us to get behind too early and come back. We did a decent job of taking away their penetration but just didn't get out to challenge their shots."

O'Sullivan poured in 16 points, Page added eight and Kyle chipped in with five.

NQ Downs Plymouth S., Bows To Whitman-Hanson

One game after delivering a stingy defensive performance, the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team had no way of containing Whitman-Hanson's sweet-shooting Jackie Cina.

The junior guard buried nine of 11 three-pointers for 27 points to hand the Red Raiders a 57-55 defeat at home last Friday. On Tuesday, NQ smothered Plymouth South, 49-10, at home.

"She was unconscious," said head coach Doug MacFarlane. "It was one of the most fantastic shooting displays I've ever seen. Amazing. She was in the zone as you call it. If she misses one of those, we win the game."

NQ (5-1), which traveled to Plymouth North Tuesday, will square off against city rival Quincy tomorrow (Friday) at 5 p.m. at home.

Whitman-Hanson, a perennial Atlantic Coast League powerhouse and defending league champs, surged to a 15-5 lead out of the block.

The Red Raiders, though, cut the Panthers' lead to 26-24 at halftime behind junior center Elyse O'Connell and senior co-captain Sarah Goreham, who combined for 15 points in the first half.

"We knew we were going to be in for a battle," MacFarlane said. "I have to give our kids a lot of credit. They didn't quit. They fought back. It was a fun game to coach. It was so intense from start to finish."

NQ never pulled ahead in the second half, but managed to tie the game with 36 seconds remaining. But the Panthers hit their foul shots to hang on for the victory.

The Red Raiders, meanwhile, struggled from the free-throw line, hitting 10-of-22 shots. Couple that with 20 turnovers and they had too many obstacles to overcome against a quality team.

"Those two factors cost us," MacFarlane said. "If we shoot a little better at the line and protect the ball, we win that game going away. That's the first time this year we've been that bad at the free-throw line. Unfortunately, it was the wrong game to do that, in a close game."

Senior co-captain Shauna Kelly scored a team-high 14 points to go along with three steals and three assists. She also held W-H's top scorer to six points. O'Connell and Goreham finished with 12 points apiece.

In the Plymouth South game, Goreham scored 10 points, O'Connell eight and senior center Amanda Saylor six. Senior Meghan Coughlin pulled down 12 rebounds and added two points.

Raiders Edge Quincy, Thump Plymouth North

ICE HOCKEY

The Quincy and North Quincy high school hockey teams have skated in opposite directions since last Wednesday's showdown at Quincy Youth Arena.

The Red Raiders emerged that night with a 3-2 victory in front a packed house and followed the performance last Saturday with an impressive 6-1 triumph over Plymouth North.

Three straight victories have pushed them to the .500 mark (3-3-1). NQ, which took on Archbishop Williams yesterday (Wednesday), will host Falmouth Saturday night at 8 at Quincy Youth Arena.

Quincy (1-5), on the other hand, dropped two more games since the NQ matchup to extend its losing skid to four. It fell at Nauset, 5-2, last Saturday and to Winthrop, 8-2, Monday at home. Quincy, which played at Falmouth yesterday, will travel to Dennis-Yarmouth Saturday night at 7.

When they faced off last week, the Red Raiders held a two-goal advantage late in the game, but they committed a costly penalty that almost allowed the Presidents to draw even and send it into overtime.

"Typical Quincy-North Quincy game," said NQ head coach Bob Doyle. "Always a barn-burner right to the end."

"North played a strong game," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "It's a flip of the coin. Both teams had their chances. I thought our goaltending was good and we started to play better in the third period.

"We're just a little inexperienced," he added. "Bottom line is that when you have good freshmen going up against experienced seniors, it's going to be tough."

NQ jumped out to a 2-0 lead less than nine minutes into the game. Sophomore center Jimmy Fitzpatrick backhanded the puck past junior goalie Alex Smith with an assist from sophomore right winger Nash Winters at 3:54. Winters redirected senior left winger Matt Haskins' shot from the point into the cage at 8:30.

"I thought we had them on the ropes early in the first period," Doyle said. "I told the kids to step up their physical game because Quincy came out flying. We went up 2-0 and had great momentum."

NQ junior goalie Frank Sorrento preserved the lead 90 seconds later, stoning Quincy junior sniper Matt Giordani on a partial breakaway. But NQ turned the puck over soon after and Giordani exacted revenge by squirting a shot past Sorrento on a breakaway at 12:24.

"We seemed to get too complacent too quickly," Doyle said. "We had a bad turnover that let them score and get back into the game."

In the second, NQ junior left winger and tri-captain Andrew Donovan narrowly missed a short-handed goal more than six minutes into the period. The Red Raiders cashed in a couple minutes later when senior right winger and tri-captain Pat Casper pocketed a rebound at 8:28. Junior right winger Evan Harrington and Donovan notched assists.

Near the end of the frame, Quincy dodged further damage when Smith survived a furious flurry by the Red Raiders on the man-advantage.

After a somewhat lull middle period, the Presidents energized their offensive attack in the third. Junior forward Mike McPherson misfired on a breakaway attempt five minutes into the stanza.

McPherson redeemed himself when he knocked home a power-play goal with 3:48 to play, pulling the Presidents to within a goal. They pulled the goalie with just under a minute remaining but never threatened with the equalizer.

"I told them in the third period that I wanted a sound defensive effort," Doyle said. "But then we had that penalty that easily could've cost us the game. Quincy was buzzing. We were fortunate to hold on for the win."

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Six Steps To A Healthier Heart

(NAPS) — If an apple a day keeps the doctor away, what does it take to avoid a heart surgeon? Knowing the answer would help you and your family avoid coronary heart disease — America's No. 1 killer.

Dr. Mehmet C. Oz is vice chairman of surgery at New York-Presbyterian Hospital/ Columbia Medical Center and is senior medical contributor to Discovery Health Channel. He says heart health has become even more of a hot-button issue since former President Bill Clinton's bypass surgery stirred national conversation about heart disease.

Dr. Oz offers these six tips for a healthy heart:

• Break A Sweat: Any amount of physical activity lowers LDL ("bad cholesterol"), raises HDL ("good cholesterol") and decreases inflammation, all of which strengthen the heart. To obtain optimum health, you should get 20 minutes of cardiovascular exercise that increases your heart rate 20 percent at least three times a week.

• Go Fish (And Nuts): Both fish and nuts are high in omega-3 fatty acids, which reduce triglyceride levels in the blood and stabilize the heartbeat. To get your omega-3 fatty acids ("good fats"), you should eat three portions of fish per week and an ounce of nuts a day.

• Get Your ZZZ'S: Fewer than seven hours of sleep a night increases your arterial aging and risk of heart attack. Try to get at least seven hours of solid, non-interrupted sleep nightly.

• No Smoking: You can't control how genetics affects your heart health, but you can control your lifestyle decisions. Smoking adds to your risk for a heart attack as well as your chance of developing a host of other health-related problems.

• "De"-Stress: According to Discovery Health Channel, stress is the greatest environmental cause of heart disease. Actively working to reduce your stress through relaxation and meditation will keep your heart healthier.

• Know Your Numbers: The better the handle you have on important levels in your body, the better you'll be able to measure your risk, predict heart problems and flag danger. Consider these tests and numbers a vital part of your heart health: Blood Cholesterol Test, Blood Pressure Test and Physical Tests (maximum heart rate and recovery time). To determine your numbers, consult your health care provider.

Save Your Life With Seat Belts

By DR. ANN DOGGETT

About 40,000 people die each year in car accidents. It is the leading cause of death for people under the age of 35. Seat belts can prevent death in about half of these accidents.

Most people are aware of the importance of wearing seat belts, but sadly, many drivers still resist using seat belts and risk paying an even bigger price — the loss of their lives, or, if they survive a crash, serious damage to their spinal columns.

Seat belts do make the difference between life and death, spinal health and dysfunction such as spinal cord injury, whiplash, vertebral fractures and herniated discs. There are some facts you need to take a few minutes to consider if you are not convinced that simply wearing a seat belt when you drive can save your life.

• People who are thrown out of the car are 25 times more likely to be killed or severely injured than people who are held securely in their seats.

• Even if you are only going to the shopping center a few miles away, it is actually the best time to wear your seat belt since 80 percent of traffic fatalities occur within 2.5 miles of home and under 40 mph.

• If your car catches fire or is submerged, you can get out a lot faster if you haven't been knocked unconscious; seat belts can keep you from that and improve your chance of escape.

• Driving carefully can certainly help you avoid accidents. But even if you are a good driver, a bad driver may still hit you.

• Modern seat belt design allows for freedom of motion while driving, and you may wonder if they really work. A device locks them in place only when the car stops suddenly.

• Some people think that since their car has airbags, they don't need seat belts. Airbags do increase the effectiveness of seat belts and also reduce spinal injuries from car accidents, but they were never meant to be used in place of seat belts since they don't protect against side impacts at all.

Most of us drive or get a ride to somewhere everyday, we can't rely on our luck to avoid or keep us safe in a car accident. So, fasten your seat belts before you get on the road.

If you are involved in a car accident, don't overlook it. It is not unusual for some spine injuries to become apparent weeks or even months following an accident. Some injuries that appear later may be severe. If you feel soreness or stiffness after the accident, seek the advice of a chiropractor.

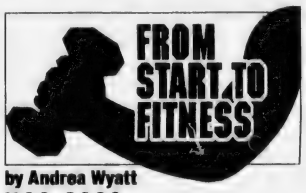
Winter Workout Tips

(NAPS) — Cold weather offers new opportunities to get creative with your workouts. Try these tips from eDiets.com chief fitness pro Raphael Calzadilla:

• Work out in the morning. Morning workouts stimulate the metabolism for the rest of the day.



• Use downtime wisely. Flex and tighten muscles when you can for an isometric workout.

• Hire a personal trainer for a structured workout program and someone to monitor your progress.

• Buddy sessions. Pay for joint trainer sessions with a buddy. You save money and your motivation source doubles.

• Get some dumbbells, an exercise ball and an informative video for home workouts when you can't get to the gym.

• Get real. People gain weight during the winter. Just don't let it go over five pounds and commit to getting back on track.

Exercise Trends

Q. I have been involved with some type of exercise consistently for more than 20 years. Every three or four years, I hear about a "new" way to do an exercise or activity that is in my workout routine. The explanation usually is that the "new" method will help prevent injuries or provide a better outcome. If I haven't gotten hurt completing my exercise routine and I am happy with my results, why should I change just because something "new" has come along?

A. The fitness industry is constantly changing and providing new information to help exercisers reach their fullest potential. There are several reasons for these changes; some are legitimate, and others are just gimmicks.

The discipline of fitness has seen many transformations since its mainstream acceptance during the past several decades. What used to be just for bodybuilders and athletes has became accessible to the general public through heath clubs, fitness facilities, TV shows and videos.

While this has raised the fitness level of a much broader population, many of the exercise models were rough modifications of bodybuilding workouts. Over time, fitness professionals have studied in more detail how to optimize our body's potential, prevent injuries and remain active and strong throughout our life cycle.

Researchers have studied the body and how best to program exercise routines to meet a person's individual needs. As a result, many changes have occurred in our understanding of fitness and the methods of attaining it. These changes are worth paying attention to. Why not be healthier and safer and reach goals you never before considered?

On the other side, it is important to understand the difference between these new tools gained from reputable research and the flood of get-fit-quick gimmicks on the market whose only goal is to turn a fast buck. Look carefully at the motives and research behind any exercises, machines or routines.

You may not need to change your current exercise routine if you are seeing results, but you should always keep the door open to new information that could possibly help you reach your goals more efficiently and safely.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws @hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

DON'T IGNORE SNORING

If you snore, it may be an indication of sleep apnea, which is no laughing matter. This breathing disorder can be caused by the sagging of relaxed soft tissues in the back of the throat, which can block breathing. Other than loud snoring, symptoms include periods of no breathing and interrupted sleep cycles. This can lead to daytime drowsiness, irritability, learning and memory difficulties, high blood pressure, increased risk for automobile accidents, and even increased risk for stroke. If sleep apnea is suspected, schedule an appointment with the dentist, who can evaluate the soft tissues in the back of the throat. Some patients can be helped by dental appliances, which maintain open airways.

Try to figure out why you're having trouble sleeping. We provide complete, quality dental care for all your oral health needs. You can feel confident that a professional and dedicated staff performs all services, and you'll find our staff to be friendly and knowledgeable as well. We invite your to call 617-479-6220 to schedule your next appointment. We are dedicated to your oral health and offer a variety of procedures to help achieve a beautiful smile. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Obesity and the use of alcohol and sleeping pills may contribute to sleep apnea.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Are you a friend? It does not take a special gift. It takes a special grace – the grace of kindness.

A good talk with a close friend can solve problems, or at least put them in perspective before they become overpowering. One of the problems we face in our hectic, moving-about-society is a scarcity of true friends. . . .

Let's think about friendship . . . A friend is one who is kind, patient and loving enough to listen to what bothers us. A friend is one who does not look down upon us because we feel discouraged or mixed up. A friend listens and hears the need we, ourselves, have difficulty understanding. A friend is one who, simply by letting us share, helps us hear our own words so that we gain a better perspective.

How often have we said to a friend who listened: "You have been such a real help. Thanks a lot." After reflecting, we remind ourselves that our friend had just listened, not only with the ears, but with the heart, and hardly said a word. Yet we were refreshed and encouraged . . .

Yes, friendship need not be a scarcity to those who truly want to be friendly. . .

Grandpa loved gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

COA Seeks Friendly Visitors

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with the program coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

Power Wheelchairs Available For Seniors, Disabled

The Senior Wheels USA Program makes available power wheelchairs to senior citizens and the permanently disabled at no cost to the recipient, if they qualify.

Power wheelchairs are provided to those who can no longer walk nor self-propel a manual wheelchair, and who meet the additional guidelines of the program. No deposit is required.

If the patient's need is for use in the home, call for more information to see if they qualify. Call toll free at 1-800-246-6010.

The Senior Wheels USA Program's main purpose and goal is to develop public awareness that there are assistance options that allow senior citizens (as well as the permanently disabled) to remain independent in their own homes.

If the patient does not meet at the requirements of the program, Senior Wheels USA may still be able to help them with a donation.

Courthouse A Higher Priority, Says Tobin

John Dacey. The Norfolk County Commissioners are John Gillis, Francis O'Brien and Peter Collins.

Dacey called Tobin's move a "legislative power play at its worst."

"The needs of this golf course are long-standing and they still remain, even if this legislation is lost."

According to Dacey, the bill was designed to bring clubhouse seating up to tournament standards. Additionally, handicap access would have been improved, he said.

Also, the funds could have been used to update the clubhouse's original HVAC system, according to Dacey.

Located in Milton and Quincy, the Presidents' Golf Course is used regularly by several local groups, including the Morrisette American Legion Post, the Quincy Elks, Quincy Youth Hockey, Knights of Columbus, North Quincy High School Athletic Boosters, Quincy Senior Olympics, IBEW Local 103, Quincy Employees Wednesday Golf League, Iron Workers Local 7, St. John's Church, various Jimmy Fund events, North Quincy High School boys and girls golf teams and Weymouth High School and Fontbonne Academy golf teams.

Tobin described the courthouse, one of the busiest in the Commonwealth, as outdated, unsafe and overburdened.

"Since the county commissioners are collecting rent from the state I believe they have a commensurate responsibility to keep the courthouse from falling into disrepair," said Tobin.

Morrissey questioned whether the county can generate enough funds to renovate the courthouse.

"We agree the courthouse needs repairs, but it is beyond that - it needs large-scale renovations," said Morrissey. "I don't think the county has the means to undertake a project of this size."

Morrissey said there is hope for Quincy District Court in a $20 million capital improvement bond that was approved by the Legislature. To date, however, the funds have not been released by the governor's office, he said.

Even so, there is a question of whether state officials will allow state funds to be used for renovations to county-owned facilities, he said.

Nominations Accepted For Ward 5 Awards

The Ward 5 Community Association is accepting nominations for its annual "Citizen of the Year," "High Five" and "Youth High Five" awards.

The awards are given each year to those who have made efforts to aid and improve the Ward 5 community. Nomination are due Jan. 31.

A brief statement in support of your nomination should accompany your selection and sent to Nancy J. Barron, 55 Sturtevant Rd., Quincy, MA 02169.

port, to London for high tea.

Dewey has been a traveling man since he went to the World's Fair in New York in 1939.

It's been almost a fulltime occupation since his retirement in 1977 after 45 years as a pipefitter in the Fore River Shipyard.

So far his travels have taken him, among other places, to Hawaii, Alaska, Norway, Switzerland, Havana and Europe on the Concorde and the Queen Elizabeth II.

"I never go back to the same place," he said. "The first time is a good time. You may be disappointed by the second."

Since his wife Mabel died in 1993, Dewey takes his trips alone, despite the fact that he uses a walker to get around.

He still drives his own car, too, driving it to daily mass at St. John the Baptist Church.

Where will he go on his next trip?

"I'd like to go to Australia and New Zealand," he said, "but it's such a long trip.

"It's something different, you know."

License Board Delays Action On Coffee Shop

The license board Tuesday heard from several residents regarding a proposal to open a "Java-Java Drive Thru" coffee shop at 60 Quincy Shore Drive next to the SeaWinds Condominiums. The proposal has been made by Steve Hebert.

The license board took no action. The matter was continued until Feb. 8.

According to the proposal, the coffee shop will utilize 500 square feet in the rear of a building currently occupied by Quincy Shore Drive Cleaners.

Several residents voiced concerns regarding traffic and others questioned the health risks associated with locating a food service company adjacent to a dry cleaners.

Clam Box Granted CV License

On a unanimous vote, the license board Tuesday granted a Common Victualer license to Schwanke Brothers, Inc., to operate The Clam Box on 798 Quincy Shore Drive.

No changes will be made to the business.

Phelan Plan:

$50,000 Fuel Assistance For Families In Need

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Families struggling to deal with skyrocketing fuel costs are expected to receive some much-needed assistance from the city.

The city council Tuesday was expected to approve a plan submitted by Mayor William Phelan that allocates an additional $50,000 in fuel assistance to Quincy households grappling with home heating costs.

Council President Frank McCauley said Tuesday the council was expected to sign off on Phelan's plan, which would benefit about 150-200 Quincy households.

According to the mayor's office, each household could expect $150-$200 in additional assistance for the current season.

Dave Murphy, Phelan's aide, said many families are struggling this year due to soaring fuel costs and level-funded assistance from grant programs. The city is looking to offset some of those issues by lending a hand, he said.

"Realistically, we don't want people in the city choosing between wearing four sweaters or buying food or prescriptions," said Murphy.

Families that qualify for fuel assistance with Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) will likely receive a benefit from the new plan, he said. The mayor's office will be working with QCAP to target families in need of help, said Murphy.

The program will be administered through the city's Planning Department, according to the proposal.

QCAP receives funds from the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program, which is administered by the

Mardi Gras At Point Church To Benefit Tsunami Victims

The Quincy Point Congregational Church will a Mardi Gras for the tsunami relief effort Saturday, Feb. 5, from 6 to 10 p.m. at the church, 444 Washington St.

The minimum donation is $10 and all receipts will go directly to Church World Service (CWS), whose Emergency Response Program was one of the first on the disaster scene in Southeast Asia.

CWS already has provided at least 500 family shelter kits, 75 emergency medicine boxes enough for 75,000 persons for three months, 44,000 "gift of health" kits, and 3,000 light weight blankets.

The Mardi Gras will feature food and prizes with appetizers at 6 p.m., a dinner buffet beginning at 6:30 p.m., a silent auction until 7:30 p.m. and dancing until 10 p.m.

To purchase tickets call Joyce at 617-472-7446 or Deanna at 781-843-6099.

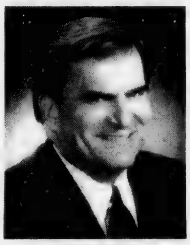
For 'Family And Personal Reasons'

Finn Decides Not To Run For Mayor

City Councillor Joseph Finn has decided not to run for mayor this year.

Finn, who had given serious consideration to challenging incumbent William Phelan, said Tuesday:

"I will not be a candidate for mayor in 2005 because of family and personal reasons. I recognize that a viable campaign for mayor requires a near full-time investment and resources that for me would presently be impossible."



Finn, who is in his second term as a councillor at-large, indicated he likely will seek re-election to that seat.

And appeared to leave the door open for a possible mayoral run in the future.

"For now, politically, beyond this decision, I will keep all my options toward the future open," he said.

Finn's decision not to enter this year's mayoral campaign leaves Phelan without a challenger for now, at least.

Finn said he is making his intentions known early so as not to inhibit anyone else who might be considering running for mayor.

JOSEPH FINN

Phelan will be seeking a third term although he has not yet made an official announcement.

Finn is executive director of the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance. He and his wife, Dolores, are parents of seven children.

Following is his statement on his decision not to run for mayor this year:

"I recently read a quote attributed to the Yankee great Yogi Berra: 'You've got to be very careful if you don't know where you are going because you might not get there.' This sums up well the reality of the past two months of reflecting upon my political future. My family and I have seen the circumstances of our life change significantly in a very short period of time and this has compelled us to stop and reassess what is most critical in our life.

"Let me say: I think of no greater honor than holding public office in the City of Presidents and serving the wonderful people of Quincy. I have been both humbled and flattered by the opinion of many who think I should consider running for Mayor of Quincy. I have also given that prospect serious consideration and at more than one point thought such a campaign was possible. I have expressed a willingness to do so if I thought that I could aptly serve in such a capacity.

"However, time and circumstances is the ultimate arbiter of such decisions. I will not be a candidate for mayor in 2005 because of family and personal reasons. I recognize that a viable campaign for mayor requires a near full-time investment and resources that for me would presently be impos

City Has More Flu Vaccine

A flu shot clinic open to the general public was scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Quincy Health Department, 1585 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

According to Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, the city ordered an additional 350 flu shots from the state after its initial supply was depleted.

Depending on the amount of vaccine left after this clinic, the health department may hold another clinic at a later date, according to health department officials.

For the latest information,

residents are encouraged to call the department's flu hotline at 617-376-1288.

Scheele said the city has vaccinated a higher percentage of the at-risk population than in year's past.

Originally, the city targeted residents 75 and older, but lowered the age threshold to 65 after the state's supply increased. Last week, the state Department of Public Health relaxed the age requirement further by allowing anyone to receive a flu shot.

Flu shots will be available for anyone age 18 and older, according to the health department.

To date, the city has vaccinated 2,700 residents during this year's flu season, he said.

Up To $500 For Longtime Homeowners

Mayor's Tax Relief Plan Submitted To Council

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

City councillors Tuesday received Mayor William Phelan's financial aid plan giving longtime homeowners up to $500 in tax breaks.

At Tuesday night's council meeting, councillors received Phelan's proposal, which would give property tax relief to senior citizens 62 and older who have owned their homes for at least 20 years.

Originally, Phelan placed the age threshold at 65, but the plan submitted to the council reflects the lower number. Approximately 3,000 people may be eligible to take advantage of the plan, according to the mayor's office.

When asked why the administration lowered the age requirement, Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide, said: "People on fixed incomes are getting hit hardest, and we wanted to include everyone who is considered retired."

According to the $1 million financial aid plan, qualifying residents could receive up to $500 annually to help lessen the impact of property taxes, which have skyrocketed over the past few years.

The average property tax bill will drop approximately $2 this year, but homeowners saw an 18 percent increase in fiscal 2004.

The council was expected to place the measure in the finance committee for further review. Since the proposal is a home rule petition, it will require the approval of the city council, the state Legislature and the governor.

The plan calls for the establishment of a special account, called the "Quincy Neighborhood Stabilization Fund," that provides tax breaks annually to longtime homeowners 62 years of age and older.

Tax relief will be available for residents who are at least 62 years old as of Jan. 1, 2005 and who have been the owner and occupant of residential property of three units or less since Jan. 1, 1985.

Qualifying individuals must be up-to-date with their property taxes or have entered into a tax deferral agreement under state guidelines. The tax relief is limited to one co-owner of a particular property, according to the proposal.

The plan would be paid for through an initial $1 million deposit from funds received through the city's rent agreement with Quincy College. Beyond that, the city could use the account as needed, according to the mayor's office. Additional funds for the account would need the recommendation of the mayor and approval of the city council.

Stop & Shop Raises $3,673 For Food Pantries

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company announces the Quincy location on 495 Southern Artery raised $3,673 for the Seaside Advocacy Group, Inc. and local food pantries to help provide hunger relief to residents.

All Stop & Shop stores raised money this holiday season as part of the annual "Food For Friends" campaign. Through the sale of paper turkeys and fundraising events held at the stores, Stop & Shop associates and customers supported the effort to provide assistance to local hunger relief agencies.

In total, Stop & Shop raised nearly $1.4 million to benefit local hunger relief agencies and Second Harvest Food Bank partners.

"This was a great year for Food for Friends," said Donald Sussman, executive vice president of Marketing for Stop & Shop. "When we started this year's program, our goal was to raise $1 million for the hungry in four weeks. Our associates and customers outdid themselves, beating our goal by nearly 40 percent."

Each year, Stop & Shop provides more than $12 million in cash, products and services to area food banks. Food for Friends was held in conjunction with Stop & Shop Turkey Express program.

MLK Breakfast Keynote Speaker

'Recognize And Respect Each Other As Individuals'

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Recognizing and embracing our differences is a character trait that embodies the spirit of the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, according to this year's keynote speaker at the city's annual breakfast tribute to the slain civil rights leader.

More than 200 residents turned out for Monday's event, which was sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission and held at the North Quincy High School cafeteria.

This year's keynote speaker, Pharnal Longus, a retired professor of social work at Salem State College, reflected on Dr. King's life and praised the late civil rights leader for the lasting impact he has made on today's society. The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King would be 76 years old had he not been shot to death on April 4, 1968 in Memphis, Tenn.

Longus provided a brief history of Dr. King's life and recalled how the civil rights leader embraced the notion of passive resistance as an alternative to violence.

"He never wavered in his insistence that nonviolence must remain the central tactic of the civil rights movement, nor in his faith that everyone in American would someday attain equal justice," Longus said of Dr. King.

Longus said Dr. King set out to institute change, "and he accomplished his mission."

"Black America needed Dr. Martin Luther King, but America needed him more," said Longus.

PHARNAL LONGUS, a retired professor of social work at Salem State College, gave a brief history of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., telling those in attendance that they should recognize and embrace each other's differences.

Residents can continue Dr. King's legacy by recognizing and respecting each other as individuals, he said.

Norfolk Country District Attorney William Keating said Martin Luther King Day is more than just a celebration of one man's life, it is a call to continue Dr. King's legacy. While society has made great strides in improving race relations, more work needs to be done, said Keating.

"We are not here to build a monument, but we are here to re-energize ourselves to complete his work," Keating said of Dr. King. "The evil and hatred still exists, but we have to recognize that and move forward."

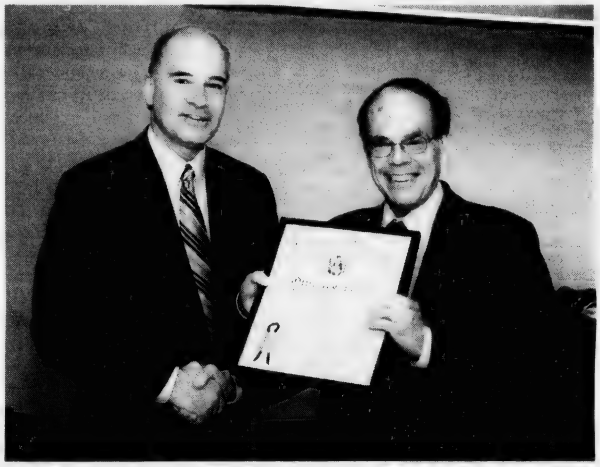
Rev. Sheldon Bennett from the United First Parish Church received two awards during the event. Keating and Mayor William Phelan's office presented Rev. Bennett with commendations for his work in promoting tolerance and human rights.

Rev. Bennett called it a humbling experience and said he was just doing his part to cultivate a more peaceful society.

"Our neighbors come from many different religions, languages and cultures," said Rev. Bennett. "And we all should strive to live peacefully together. We are doing our part to make this 'world house' more inhabitable."

Quincy resident Jean York also received the Martin Luther King Peacemaker Award from the Braintree Fair Housing Committee for her work as a civil rights and community activist.

The two-and-a-half hour event kicked off at 9 a.m. with a Pledge of Allegiance and salute to the flag with the North Quincy High School ROTC. Rev. Adolph Wismar from the Wollaston Lutheran Church provided an Interfaith Blessing.



The Germantown Neighborhood Center Girl Scout and Brownie Troops delighted the crowd with several song-and-dance routines dedicated to the late civil rights leader. The Harmony Chorus, led by Rachel Shetler Hollenback, followed with their own songs.

Mayor William Phelan was unable to attend this year's event due to a scheduling conflict. But several members of the mayor's staff and department managers attended the celebration in his absence.

Also in attendance were Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Bruce Ayers, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 6 Councillor Alicia Gardner.

SEVERAL COMMUNITY LEADERS attended this year's annual breakfast dedicated to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Among them were, from the left, Dr. Joseph McDermott, co-chair of the event; Pharnal Longus, keynote speaker; Rev. Sheldon Bennett; Jean York, Quincy resident and longtime community activitist; Ed Grogan, chairperson of the Quincy Human Rights Commission, and Rev. Dr. Anita Faber, co-chair of the event. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

Plan E: 'The Impossible Dream'

The recent death of Alfred G. Helfrich brought back memories of Quincy's experiment with Plan E which turned out to be "The Impossible Dream."

Helfrich, who was 99, was the last surviving member of the Plan E city council, serving from 1950 to 1955. He was a level headed, respected councillor under Plan E and would have been under Plan A.

HELFRICH

Quincy divorced its Plan A charter of government to romance Plan E, touted as a magical cure for municipal ills. It was a stormy marriage.

A move to bring Plan E to Quincy was twice defeated in 1938 and 1940 elections but determined proponents got the question back on the ballot in 1947.

And this time Plan E was overwhelmingly approved by voters by a vote of 17,187 to 7,745.

The first election was held two years later and one thing you could say for sure about Plan E: it brought out the candidates. And the voters.

Fifty-nine candidates were on the ballot for the seven city council seats. And 15 for the six school committee seats.

It took six days to count the council ballots. The winners: Thomas Burgin, Edna Austin, Amelio Della Chiesa, Alfred Helfrich, Carl Anderson, Frank Orcutt and David Crowley.

The count of school committee ballots took two days. Elected were Dominic Chiminello, William Anderson, Dennis Ryan, A. Wendell Clark, Alexander Smith and Annie B. Forsyth.

Some 29,000 voters – 66 percent – went to the polls.

DEEGAN

The new council elected Burgin as mayor and selected 41-year-old William J. Deegan, Jr. of Superior, Wis. from a field of 28 applicants as the city manager. There were no Quincy applicants.

Deegan, as manager, would run the city. Burgin, as mayor, would preside over the city council, appoint council committees and serve as ceremonial head.

Quincy residents, who had heard and read so much about Plan E, settled back to watch the magic. And to wait for the promised benefits: a business-like government, better services, higher wages, lower taxes, etc.

McINTYRE

But Plan E was doomed thought the late former mayor James McIntyre who was coming into office as a young councillor in 1956 when Plan E was on its way out.

"It was oversold as a Utopian non-political government which would provide better services with lower taxes," he said.

Deegan got off to a good start streamlining the government by consolidating departments. He instituted an in-service training program and launched various surveys.

First criticism of Plan E came in May after the new tax rate of $45.20 was announced. The $4.20 increase really belonged to the previous Plan A government, Plan E supporters argued.

Councillor Orcutt was quoted as wanting to know: "When is the city manager going to make some savings? The people were sold a bill of goods on Plan E. They expected miracles, a bed of roses, but all they got was an increase in taxes."

ANDERSON

Councillor Anderson stood up to defend Deegan declaring "the job he has done is most commendable."

Anderson later would become Deegan's and Plan E's most bitter foe and probably the man who chased Plan E out of town.

Deegan was looking good in 1951 when city employees got a $300 pay raise and the tax rate went up only $1.36. The Ledger, praising Plan E for the slight tax increase, chided Orcutt:

"Yes, it looks as though Quincy was certainly sold a bill of goods when Plan E was foisted upon it. The only catch is that the bill of goods looks like pretty good merchandise."

The "merchandise," however, went up in 1952. Another tax increase ($7) and with it a demand from Orcutt, Anderson, Crowley and former Mayor David McIntosh that Deegan resign. Orcutt, however, bolted the ouster bloc "because of new information." Deegan and Plan E weathered that storm.

Deegan, however, then got an indictment against Anderson charging him with six counts of interfering with administrative affairs of the city. A Norfolk County jury deliberated just 73 minutes and found Anderson innocent. He happily wept at the verdict.

A $3 tax rate drop in 1953 heartened Plan E supporters. In 1954 it went up $1.20 to an even $52. Things weren't so bad.

In 1955, however, Deegan surprised everyone by announcing he was resigning to enter private industry. There had been talk he and Anderson were packing guns. Then came Plan E's crushing blow: an $8.60 tax rate hike.

On the ballot went the question of returning to Plan A. Yes, said the people by a 1,500-vote majority. Plan A would return in 1958.

Despite the tax increases, the big crisis for Plan E was the Anderson case, according to McIntyre.

Deegan, he thought, made a fatal mistake seeking court action against Anderson. Even if Deegan had won that legal round, he would have lost the political battle, McIntyre felt.

There would always have been a strained relationship between Deegan and the council, McIntyre explained. Deegan would forever remain the man who brought a member of the council into a criminal court.

McIntyre thought Deegan should have immediately resigned in the resulting chaos of the trial.

He should have resigned, McIntyre said, because Deegan "personified Plan E." He should have "assumed the cloak of martyrdom if necessary to insure the success of the plan."

Plan E might then have survived, thought McIntyre, who went on to become a strong mayor under Plan A and one of Quincy's most powerful political figures.

Wonder what Quincy would be like today if Plan E had survived?

Scenes From Yesterday

THE CRANE AT FORE RIVER SHIPYARD, QUINCY POINT, MASS.

THIS 1912 POSTCARD is a view of the first overhead crane built at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point. This large crane was built over the original shipbuilding basin at the end of the main fabrication shop. Sometimes called a ship-shed, or ship-house or gantry crane this one once had a sheet metal roof attached to it, which may explain where its different names came from. At the start of World War I, two smaller cranes were built over new basins along each side of this one. In the 1970's that group of three cranes was demolished to make room for the new Goliath crane that is still in place at the now closed shipyard. The three large overhead cranes similar to the one above that were recently demolished by Dan Quirk were built in the boom days of the shipyard at the start of World War II. At that time, the yard was expanded into Braintree by building three additional basins with cranes in Hayward's Creek. That was on the Quincy Avenue side of the crane shown here. And now with the most obvious remains of the old shipyard fading away, the Goliath crane, which is for sale and standing there alone, will probably be disassembled and shipped overseas. O'Donnell Urges Support For Food Pantries

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Norfolk County and the employees and customers of the Registry of Deeds for their participation and generosity in our Third Annual Norfolk County Registry of Deeds Food Drive.

Through your generous donations, we were able make distributions to local food pantries in Norfolk County. Unfortunately, the problem of hunger and families in crisis does not diminish after the holidays. Many families continue to be faced with choosing between mortgage and rent payments, heating costs, and food.

With this in mind, I urge all citizens of Norfolk County to remember their less fortunate neighbors in 2005. Food pantries in our communities are always in need of nonperishable food items such as canned goods, breakfast cereals, pasta, and coffee.

Please consider making a donation this year. For convenience, food pantries and phone numbers are listed in a news release on the Registry web page, www.norfolkdeeds.org. Please call your local food pantry for hours of operation and directions.

Thanks again to all who participated in the Holiday Food Drive. I wish all the citizens of Norfolk County a safe and healthy 2005.

Emergency Agency Offers Wintertime Tips

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) has issued tips for survival of the New England Winter Season, including a "Suggested Winter Weather Supply List" for the home and a "Winter Emergency Car Kit."

"Our New England weather can be anything but predictable," said State Sen, Michael Morrissey. "It's a very smart idea to keep a supply kit in your home in case you find yourself and your family snowed in."

The Supply List includes non-perishable food, a non-electric can opener, bottled water (one gallon per person per day), extra blankets, sleeping bags and a fire extinguisher.

"Flashlights and extra batteries around the house, along with a portable radio or NOAA Weather Radio in case of power outages or other emergencies caused by a winter storm are also suggested," said Morrissey.

Also needed is a Family Emergency Communication Plan.

"During a winter storm there is always a real possibility of family members being separated during the day with adults at work and children in school," he said. "Make sure your family has a plan for getting back together."

MEMA suggests that an out-of-state relative or friend be asked to serve as the "family contact." After a disaster, it is often easier to call long distance. Make sure everyone knows the name, address and telephone number of the contact person.

A "Winter Emergency Car Kit" should include a flashlight with extra batteries, a basic first aid kit, necessary medications, a pocket knife, booster cables, a blanket or sleeping bag. extra clothes (like rain gear, mittens and socks).

Also non-perishable food, a non-electric can opener, sand for generating vehicle traction, tire trains or traction mats, a basic tool kit (pliers, wrench, screw driver), a tow rope, a container of water and a brightly colored cloth to serve as a flag.

"Make sure before traveling that you listen to the latest weather and road condition reports," said Morrissey.

Ensure that your tires have adequate treads and keep your tank at least half-full of gas, plan long trips carefully, travel during the day and if possible try to take someone along with you.

For additional information contact Sen. Morrissey's office at 617-772-1494.

Proposes Parking On Library Lawn

This Week
1952
53 Years Ago

Colleagues on the City Council looked askance at a proposal by Councillors David J. Crowley to construct a parking area for 150 cars on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Councillor Carl W. Anderson, who usually voted with Crowley in what had become known as the Anderson-Crowley Axis, announced his strong opposition to destroying one of the few "beauty spots" in the city.

"To profane this beautiful building by turning its spacious lawn into a parking lot would be a serious error," said Councillor Edna B. Austin.

Crowley noted that the "cold-blooded" Council did not hesitate to destroy "the birthplaces and hearthstones of Quincy citizens" for parking and "human beings deserve more consideration than a lawn."

The Council voted to send Crowley's proposal to City Solicitor Arthur I. Burgess, who gave a preliminary opinion that the city could take the lawn but library trustees also could sue for damages.

CAR IN QUARRY

Quincy police could find no evidence of foul play in a 1950 sedan with a bullet hole in the roof which was found in New Fallon's Quarry, West Quincy, less than an hour after it was reported stolen in South Boston.

Capt. William Ferrazzi said investigation disclosed that the radio and lock were missing from the car indicating that robbery was a motive for its theft and abandonment in the water-filled quarry.

It was discovered at 1:30 a.m. by Patrolmen Gorden Parry and John Malvesti, who also found two empty but still warm shells from a German luger pistol a short distance away on Quarry St.

Arts & Entertainment

THE BAND MOTHERFUNK will be among the featured acts at a benefit concert in memory of Quincy resident and musician Frank Alyward Friday night at the Beachcomber on Wollaston Beach.

In Memory of Quincy Resident Frank Aylward

Benefit Concert Friday At Beachcomber

Friends of a Quincy resident who passed away in 2000 are getting together once again to hold a benefit concert in his memory.

The group, called The Friends of Frank Aylward, will host a concert tomorrow (Friday) night at 8 p.m. at The Beachcomber on Wollaston Beach. Aylward died in 2000 at the age of 32 after a battle with cancer.

Since Aylward was a musician, many of his friends are reuniting to play at the concert. Featured acts will be Motherfunk, a funk-and-roll group; Scarecrow and Dick-n-Jane.

FRANK AYLWARD

Door prizes, a raffle and silent auction will be featured.

A $10 donation is requested. All contributions will go to benefit The Beth Israel Melanoma Clinic of Boston and Fostering The Arts, Inc., a non-profit organization that provides children in foster care or involved with the court system with a variety of cultural experiences.

This is the third event held in Aylward's memory. Thus far, Friends has raised nearly $50,000 for the Melanoma Clinic.

Comedy Night At Club 58 Tonight

Club 58 and Annette's Comedy Asylum will host a comedy night tonight (Thursday) featuring established comedians as well as up and coming comedians from the local area. Past shows at Club 58 on Ross Way, Quincy Center have been popular hits.

The show will feature comedians such as Annette Pollack, Hugo Maienza, Jan Flanagan, and Tony Pike. Glen Gordon will be the host for the night. The headlining act is Jim Lauletta, a known comedian. Lauletta was in the 2001 Boston Comedy Festival and has performed in HBO's Aspen Comedy Competition. He has been on Comedy Central and NBC and he also performs on a regular basis in Las Vegas and Atlantic City.

The show will start at 7:45p.m. Doors open at 5, and there will be free pool until the start of the show. Tickets are $10 and can be bought at the door. As an added bonus all attendees of the show are invited to stay for a performance by World Premier Band, directly following the comedy show.

For more information call 617-471-7788, or go to www.annettepollack.com. Also check www.worldpremierband.com.

'Journey To Saturn' Tonight At The Thomas Crane Library

Space enthusiast Jim Baillie will host "Saturn: Journey to a Ringed World" tonight (Thursday) from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

This event was originally scheduled for Jan. 6 but was rescheduled for tonight due to illness.

In October 1997, the Cassini-Huygens spacecraft was launched. Seven years later, Cassini went into orbit around Saturn, beginning a four-year tour to study the solar system's second largest planet, its rings, moons and magnetosphere.

On Dec. 24, 2004, the Huygens probe successfully detached itself from Cassini, starting a 20-day dive toward one of the most mysterious bodies in the solar system - the giant moon Titan.

Titan will be the most distant object from Earth ever to be studied by a probe.

Cassini's findings from Saturn itself may help scientists understand the origin of the solar system, and on Titan they hope to find specific clues to the origin of life.

Baillie is enrolled in the Masters of Science in Astronomy program at Swinburne University and is a volunteer Solar System Ambassador for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, an operating division of the California Institute of Technology and a lead research and development center for NASA.

For more information about this multimedia program or the NASA @your library exhibit, call 617-376-1301.

Environmental Treasures Program To Host Winter Beach Art Sunday

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program will host a few event Sunday, Jan. 23 at 1 p.m. entitled "Winter Beach Art."

Participants will view the art created by wind, snow and tide on Wollaston Beach and have an opportunity to beachcomb to find natural objects to draw.

Joan Pierce will conduct art classes for beginners on drawing from nature at the Dawes Estate (to the right of the Exxon Station on Quincy Shore Drive, opposite the yacht clubs.) Participants should meet at the parking area in front of the Squantum Yacht Club on Quincy Shore Drive.

If the weather is inclement, the program will take place at the Dawes Estate.

For more information, call 617-376-1254.

Sacred Heart PTO Holding Lunar New Year Celebration Saturday

The Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) at Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy will sponsor its third annual Lunar New Year Celebration Saturday from 5 to 8 p.m. in the church's auditorium.

Dinner will be provided by Quincy Dynasty. Entertainment will include a dance performance by the Lskwelahang Pilipino Class and Tai Chi and Tai Chi Sword performances. Indian traditions will also be featured.

These special events allow the school community to experience the rich cultural heritage of its students.

All proceeds go to support the many cultural events and enrichment activities that students enjoy.

Rabbi Simon Jacobson Lecture Tonight At Congregation Beth Israel

Rabbi Simon Jacobson will give a lecture on "The Ecstasy Of Jewish Mysticism—Kabbalah" tonight (Thursday) at 7:30p.m. at Congregation Beth Israel, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point.

Rabbi Jacobson is the author of the book "Toward A Meaningful Life" which has been translated into seven languages. He has lectured in 130 cities worldwide and currently hosts a radio show and heads the "Meaningful Life Center".

Rabbi Jacobson will introduce the audience to the Kabbalah, an ancient Jewish wisdom that explains the laws of spiritual energy.

Until very recently, the Kabbalah was reserved for the elite, those who only after years of scholarship and practice were allowed to enter this mystical realm.

Now, with just a basic understanding of a few key concepts lives can be enriched immensely.

Cost of the lecture is $10. Light refreshments will be served. To register or for more information, call 617-653-8795 or visit the website www.quincyshul.com.

$50,000 Fuel Assistance For Families In Need

federal government. The funds are funneled through the state Department of Housing and Community Development to organizations like QCAP.

QCAP representatives praised the mayor's overture, saying the funds will be put to good use.

"It's very much needed," said Tracy Donohue, QCAP's director of Planning and Development. "Home heating prices are so volatile that some people are paying double what they paid last year. This is very good news."

According to QCAP, more than 1,000 Quincy families have qualified to receive fuel assistance this year. To date, about half that number have already received funds. More than 200 of those receiving assistance have exhausted their resources already, according to Janet Donovan, QCAP's Energy Program director.

Approximately 1,000 families will receive anywhere from $180 to $527 in funds for fuel assistance during the current season, she said.

Of the 1,000 families scheduled to receive benefits, about 277 have children six years old or younger, said Donovan. About 234 of those households are headed by an elderly resident, she said.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said Tuesday he intended to vote in favor of the mayor's proposal.

"I think this is an opportunity the city should take in order to help struggling families," said Coughlin. "This is an example of how the city can pick up the slack given the level of funding that comes from the state and federal government."

Ward 3 Democrats To Hold Caucus Jan. 29

Registered Democrats in Ward 3 will be holding a caucus on Jan. 29 at 10 a.m. in the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd to elect delegates and alternates to the 2005 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Delegates will be divided equally between men and women.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Ward 3. Candidates for delegate and alternative must consent to nomination in writing. All candidates must make a two-minute statement and may distribute material on their behalf. All ballots will be written and secret.

The convention will be held on Saturday, May 14 at the Paul E. Tsongas Arena in Lowell. At that time, Democrats from across the state will gather to review and approve the Party Platform, a document which will serve as the official political agenda of the Massachusetts Democratic Party.

A series of public hearings have been scheduled so that Democrats throughout the state will have input into the development of this important document.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, sexual orientation or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 10 Granite St., Quincy, MA 02169 no later than 10 days after the caucus date.

For more information, contact Ward 3 Chairperson Michael A. Covais at 617-328-8735.

Thomas Crane Public Library Quincy

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Trustees Alicia Coletti and Harold DiMattio enjoy the beauty of the Richardson Room.

Did You Know?

The library, designed by Henry Hobson Richardson, is one of the country's finest examples of Romanesque architecture.

The original Richardson Building was made possible in 1880 with a $20,000 bequest from Albert Crane who wanted the city to erect a public library as a memorial to his father, Thomas Crane.

In the 1930's the Crane family helped finance a major addition designed by Quincy architects Paul and Caroll Coletti. The Coletti Family continues their commitment to literacy and beauty. David & Alicia Coletti are active in Quincy affairs while Alicia is a Trustee and chair of the FRIENDS OF TCPL

Thanks to the Cranes, and a new generation of Committed citizens, politicians and staff, the library continues to grow. The recent expansion by architect Richard Bertman added space for programs and enhanced beauty of the building.

QEN Meeting To Highlight Community Preservation Act

The Quincy Environmental Network is sponsoring a public meeting to explore the Community Preservation Act (CPA) on Jan. 26 at 7 p.m. in the main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Chris Saccardi, spokesperson for the Community Preservation Coalition, is scheduled to make a presentation and explain the CPA in greater detail. He will project the financial impact the CPA would have on Quincy residents as well as the increased revenue the city could expect to receive.

CPA was signed into law in 2000. The measure is a revenue source that helps communities preserve open space and historic sites, and create affordable housing.

Cities and towns that participate in the CPA benefit from a steady funding source for preserving and improving a community's infrastructure. Seventy-five cities and towns in Massachusetts have already adopted the CPA while several others are in the process.

For more information call Gail Macdonald at 617-773-5120.

Permitting and Licensing Informational Workshop Jan. 27 At City Hall

The City of Quincy, in partnership with Quincy 2000 Collaborative, will sponsor a free monthly workshop for business owners Thursday, Jan. 27 from 8:30 to 10 a.m. in the second floor conference room of Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

The workshop will focus on the city's permitting and licensing process.

Other workshops are held the last Thursday of the month.

Representatives from city departments and the architectural, building and legal professions will be on hand to answer questions.

Topics include change of use restrictions and allowances; zoning and the Board of Appeal process; licensing and registration procedures; Board of Health rules and regulations; business signage, and handicap accessibility requirements.

One-on-one assistance and professional referral information will be available during the informational workshop.

Business owners planning to open a new business or relocate an existing business in the city are welcome to attend.

To pre-register for the free workshop, or for more information, contact the Mayor's Office at (617) 376-1990 or Quincy 2000 Collaborative at (617) 847-1454.

EDUCATIONAL FUND COMMITTEE members hold several books that were purchased from funds raised from Quincy residents. The committee is once again asking for donations to benefit Quincy Public Schools. Committee members are, from the left, Patrick Carnes, Broad Meadows Middle School teacher; Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, superintendent of Quincy Public Schools; Jo-Ann Bragg, school committee member; Susan Milone, parent; and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin. Not pictured is Roseann Russell.

To Benefit Quincy Public Schools

Educational Fund Committee Seeks Donations

The Quincy Educational Fund committee is once again looking for help from residents.

For the second year, the committee is asking Quincy residents for voluntary contributions to the fund, which benefits Quincy Public Schools and students.

Last year, residents contributed $18,000 to the fund. During the first round of spending, the committee purchased library books and network printers for schools. Committee members received input from principals, department heads and media specialist to make their purchases.

As of Nov. 30, 2004, roughly $3,500 remained in the fund.

The city recently sent out property tax bills that include a section allowing residents to make a voluntary contribution to the education fund. Contributions are tax deductible.

"All of the money collected benefits Quincy Public Schools," said Jo-Ann Bragg, school committee member and chair of the Fund.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, also a member of the committee, concurred with Bragg, saying, "Donations received in the midst of a difficult economy not only magnified their importance, but clearly demonstrates citizens' commitment to public education."

Family Fitness Expo At YMCA Jan. 22

The South Shore YMCA will hold a Family Health & Fitness Expo on Jan. 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

The event will offer free health and fitness screenings, such as blood pressure and body fat assessments. Local health and wellness professionals will also be available during the event.

Local health care providers will be on hand to answer questions and distribute information about child, adolescent, adult and senior health topics, which include info and demos of YMCA program classes.

Admission is free and open to the public.

For more information contact Cindi Long, Fitness & Wellness director of the South Shore YMCA at 617-479-8500, ext. 117.

STUDENTS AT ST. Ann's School in Wollaston recently raised more than $6,000 for the fight against cancer in children. During a Math-A-Thon, students raised funds for the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. St. Ann's Students Raise $6,000 To Fight Cancer

Math was never so fulfilling for students at St. Ann's School in Wollaston, who recently raised more than $6,000 for the fight against cancer in children.

By improving their math skills, students raised $6,112 to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, which treats young cancer patients.

Students engaged in a "Math-A-Thon," sponsored by St. Jude. Students in grades K-9 participating in the program obtained sponsors for the number of math problems completed in special workbooks provided for them.

The program is sponsored nationally by Six Flags Theme Parks, who provide free passes to their parks for every student raising $35 or more.

"We are very proud of our students for working so hard on the Math-A-Thon," said Sister Catherine Lee, volunteer coordinator. "With their help, St. Jude Hospital will be able to create new treatments that may one day lead to a cure for many forms of cancer that will benefit the children of our state, our country, and around the world."

Sister Catherine Lee also thanked the Wollaston community for supporting St. Ann's students in their quest.

"It takes all of us to make a difference in the lives of children with cancer, and we can all feel proud of our response," she said.

MetLife Resources Donates Computers To Broad Meadows Middle School

MetLife Resources of Southboro, Mass., recently donated four laptop computers to the Broad Meadows Middle School.

The computers are fully functional and equipped with Windows operating systems.

"We are extremely grateful to receive these computers," said Colleen Roberts, principal of the Broad Meadows Middle School. "This donations allows us to expand our technological capacity and training for our children, which is critical in today's digital age."

Michelle Pedigo, director of strategic alliances for MetLife Resources, said the gift reflects MetLife's commitment to the education, healthcare and not-for-profit sectors nationwide.

"MetLife exists to provide support and guidance to employees within the education, healthcare, and non-profit organizations," she said. "Donating computers to schools, churches and other worthy organizations is a logical step that ultimately enhances the services provided by these groups. With better tools at their disposal, these groups can more adequately meet the demands of their patrons."

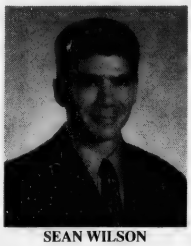
Marc Branca New Sales Associate At Century 21 Annex Realty

Art Foley, Broker/Owner of Century 21 Annex Realty, with offices in Hanover and Quincy, announces Marc Branca has joined the company as a sales associate based in the company's Quincy office.

MARC BRANCA

After receiving his real estate sales license in 2002, has worked full-time as a sales agent. He previously worked at a residential construction firm.

"It is a pleasure to welcome Marc to the Century 21 Annex Realty team," Foley said. "His sales experience, combined with his vast knowledge of construction and renovations, will help our customers make informed decisions when purchasing or selling a home."



A resident of Weymouth, Branca earned a B.S. in management information systems from UMASS-Boston. In his spare time, he enjoys computers, sports and staying informed of changes and trends in the residential real estate market.

Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., offers comprehensive real estate services with offices in Quincy and Hanover and a staff of more than 50 professional Realtors.

For more information, call toll-free 800-207-8647.

Sean Wilson Residential Loan Officer For Bank Of Canton

Sean V. Wilson has been promoted to Operations Officer of Residential Loans at the Bank of Canton, announces President and Chief Executive Officer James D. Egan.

SEAN WILSON

Formerly the mortgage system administrator for Bank of Canton, Wilson is based at the company's Canton branch at 557 Washington St., reporting directly to George DiMello, senior Vice president of Residential Lending.

Wilson's expanded responsibilities include supporting and maintaining the Mortgage Department's residential loan origination computer system and performing secondary market functions for the bank's investor-sold mortgage loans. He is also working with DiMello on Bank of Canton's new Online Mortgage Application System, which is expected to launch this March.

Wilson first joined Bank of Canton in 1994. He has worked in several departments including customer service, accounting and mortgage processing. He began his banking career as head teller at South Shore Savings Bank in Weymouth, a title he held for six years through the company's merger with Bank of Boston.

Wilson lives in South Easton and is a competitive racquetball player and cyclist.

Bank of Canton, with office locations in Canton, Quincy and Randolph, is a Massachusetts-chartered mutual savings bank established in 1835.

For more information, call 888-828-1690.

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop Feb. 5

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will host a First Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, Feb. 5 at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

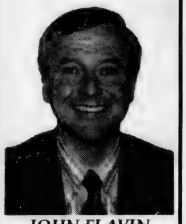
The one-day workshop, sponsored by Consolidate Mortgage Services, will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend the educational workshop. At this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to be pre-qualified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works, and other presentations from real estate professionals.

Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

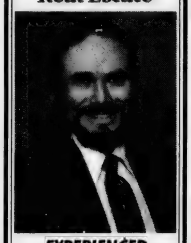
Prior to attending a First Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend an introductory session to evaluate credit history and determine mortgage readiness. It is strongly suggested that participants obtain a copy of their credit report for this session.



The next introductory session will be held Monday, Jan. 31 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Call (617) 770-2227 ext. 31 to register in advance or to learn dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person which covers the introductory session as well as the first time homebuyer workshop. The fee also covers all workshop materials.



Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Do-It-Yourself Patio Tips

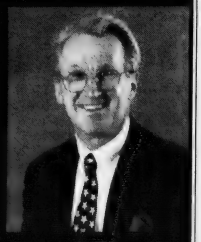
(NU) – Thinking of installing a brick patio?

Here are some tips from Laura Schwind, a registered landscape architect for Pine Hall Brick, the largest supplier of clay pavers in the United States.

• Consider the size. Most people make their patios too small. The average patio is 150 square feet. To get an idea of the size and space, place furniture, a grill and your kids' toys in the proposed area and outline the area with a garden hose.

• Decide on the shape. Rectangular and linear patios are considered more formal. A curved patio allows you to bring planting beds into the space, adding interest by creating depth and dimension.

• Choose the pattern. The most popular pattern is herringbone but you can use a combination of patterns or colors to make your space more visually appealing.



Visit www.pinehallbrick.com for more information.

Brighid Kyle Lifts Quincy Over North

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Brighid Kyle couldn't have picked a better time to have her breakout game for the Quincy High School girls' basketball team.

The sophomore forward, who played on the North Quincy freshman team last season, scored all 13 of her points in the second half to lift the Presidents to a 45-41 victory in last Friday's city showdown on Hancock Street.

"She just came into her own," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "She hit quite a few big shots for us. She played great on defense, too. She's been our go-to defender all year."

Quincy (5-4, 3-1 Atlantic Coast League) played Falmouth Tuesday and will host Dennis-Yarmouth tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

North Quincy (6-2, 2-2 ACL) battled Brockton Tuesday and will travel to Bridgewater-Raynham today (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m.

A sluggish first half, the Red Raiders built a 14-6 lead with about seven minutes left before their offense went stale, hitting three free throws the rest of the way.

Quincy, though, netted four baskets, including two huge jumpers by junior forward Ashlee Scott, to trail 17-14 at the break. Scott scored six of her eight points in the first 16 minutes.

"We were strong defensively, but we were a little tentative on offense," Bretsch said. "I think that had to do with some nervousness and the emotions of this game."

In the second half, the Presidents attacked offensively and opened with a 14-7 run to grab a 28-24 lead with about 10 minutes left.

Senior co-captain Nicole O'Sullivan knocked down three shots in the paint in the first three minutes and Kyle capped the run with five straight points, including a basket just before the shot clock expired.

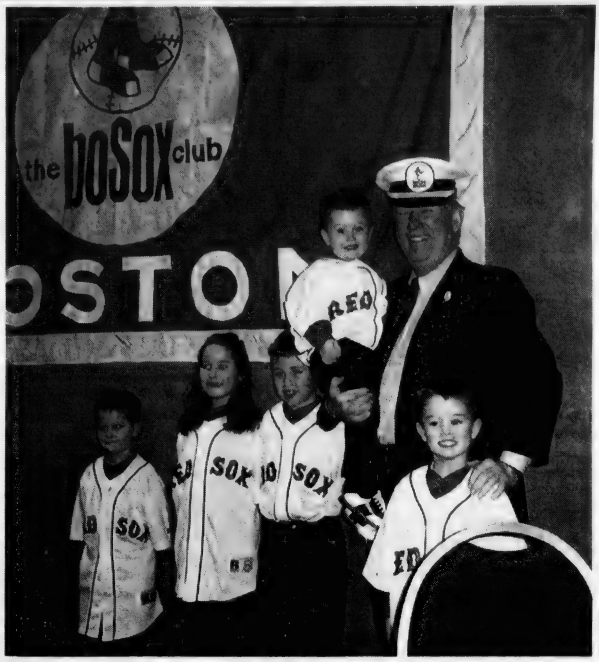
"It's very frustrating," said NQ head coach Doug MacFarlane. "We played good defense and then they hit shots at the end of the shot clock."

A see-saw affair throughout the second half, the Presidents delivered clutch plays down the stretch while the Red Raiders failed to execute some fundamentals.

Down one, Kyle hit the front end of a one-and-one to tie the game at 39-39 with 2:42 left. After NQ senior tri-captain Sarah Goreham hit both free throws to regain the lead, Kyle evened the score again with a strong post move with 1:58 left.

The Red Raiders didn't convert a one-and-one and the Presidents also missed one of their own, but junior forward Jessica Page gathered the offensive rebound and laid it back in for the go-ahead basket.

NQ had a chance to tie the game with 20 seconds left but missed both free throws. Quincy missed another one-and-one, but Page again grabbed the rebound and was fouled. She hit both at the line to close out the scoring with 15 seconds remaining.



"Foul-shot rebounding hurt us at the end," MacFarlane said. "We didn't execute the little things down the stretch and that killed us."

Page and O'Sullivan each scored eight points in the second half to finish with 10 apiece.

For NQ, Goreham scored 12 points with nine rebounds and four steals, and senior tri-captain Shauna Kelly chipped in eight. Senior tri-captain and point guard Caitie Peters had five points and four steals while junior Elyse O'Connell scored six points in the second half with five rebounds.

Earlier in the week, Quincy dropped a 62-48 decision at Archbishop Williams as it couldn't overcome seven three-pointers. Page turned in a monster double-double with 25 points and 14 rebounds. Senior co-captain Rebekah Sorensen scored seven points and Kyle five.

NQ crushed Plymouth North, 68-33, on the road as its press generated 24 steals. Goreham scored 12 points to go with six steals. Junior Kelly Barden added 10 points and O'Connell eight. Sorensen tallied eight rebounds and four steals.

QUINCY'S ED KEOHANE was recently installed as president of the Bosox Club, the largest professional baseball team fan club with more than 850 members. The club was founded in 1967 as a way to stimulate ticket sales at Fenway Park. It has accomplished its mission and now supports the Red Sox Foundation and the Jimmy Fund. It also supports youth baseball by giving scholarships to deserving youth to attend baseball camp. Among those congratulating Keohane are five of his eight grandchildren: Declan Nelson, Hannah Nelson, Patrick Keohane, Matthew Keohane and Tim Keohane. Bosox Club members are also invited to attend luncheons during the season with the Red Sox organization and visiting team members. Quincy High Boys' Basketball Appreciation Dinner Tonight

Quincy High School will hold an appreciation dinner for three recently retired coaches of the boys' basketball program today (Thursday) at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Road.

The school will honor John Franceschini, Ray Papile and Mike Draicchio for their 20 years of hard work and dedication.

Cocktail hour will begin at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Tickets are $40 per person.

For more information, call Robin Franceschini at 617-773-9176 or Bob Sylvia at 617-984-8753.

Babe Ruth World Series Committee Meeting

The Quincy Babe Ruth World Series Committee will hold an informational meeting for those interested in being a host family tomorrow (Friday) at 7 p.m. at Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

Families would have to host at least two players from around the country and Italy during the World Series to be held Aug. 19-27 at Adams Field. Players arrive Aug. 16 and 17.

Food will be served at the meeting and a cash bar will be available.

Those interested are asked to call Dick Lombardi at 617-479-5724.

Presidents' Defense Prevails

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By DAN DUGGAN

In a game dominated by defense, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team was able to muster up enough offense to prevail over rival North Quincy last Friday night, 52-39.

"We lost twice last year to North Quincy, so it's nice for our kids to beat them in their gym," Quincy head coach Bob Fisher said.

The Presidents (6-1, 3-1 Atlantic Coast League) traveled to Falmouth Tuesday and are on the road at Dennis-Yarmouth tomorrow (Friday) night.

North Quincy (3-5, 3-1 ACL) didn't have much time to dwell on the loss as it has had a full schedule this week. NQ traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and hosted Barnstable Wednesday. Tomorrow night the Red Raiders will play at home against Falmouth at 6:30.

In Friday's game, the combination of both teams' stifling defense and the jitters of playing in front of a big crowd led to the score being tied at 4-4 almost seven minutes into the game.

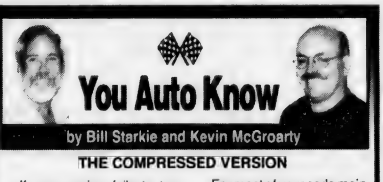
"I loved the first half," North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle said. "I thought that was great basketball. But we didn't play with the same defensive intensity in the second half. I think the lack of numbers hurt us and we got tired."

Quincy held a slim 14-10 lead at the break, but in the second half the Presidents' relentless defensive pressure and depth proved to be too much for the shorthanded Red Raiders.

The Raiders were forced to play without junior forward John Murray, who has been battling a groin injury for two weeks, and the loss of one of their top scorers clearly was a factor.

Without Murray, North Quincy had to look to Kyle Costa for almost all of its offense. The junior guard did his part, scoring 22 points, including a couple of three-pointers from NBA range. But aside from junior Imad Elkatrib's eight points, no one else stepped up for the Raiders offensively.

"Kyle can't do it alone," Rendle said. "He kept us in the game, but we needed other people to step up and we weren't able to get that."



The Presidents had a much more balanced scoring attack. Senior Parker Scott and junior Lavell Johnson paced the offense for Quincy with 14 points apiece, and senior Kenny Johnson chipped in 10. Scott and Lavell Johnson played especially well in the second half, with Parker netting 11 points and Johnson scoring all 14 of his after the break.

With six minutes remaining North made one last run to cut Quincy's lead to 11, at 39-28. But Johnson, who has made big shots all year for Quincy, stuck a three to give the Presidents a comfortable lead they would not relinquish.

"At halftime we told Lavell to keep shooting," Fisher said. "Your shooters have to shoot and he found his shot in the second half."

The Presidents' superior depth was evident as they were able to generate points despite the fact North Quincy played excellent defense on leading scorer John Folino. The senior center had to work hard for his eight points, as NQ's Akil Benjamin prevented him from getting the ball inside and kept him off

THE COMPRESSED VERSION

If your engine fails to turn over, the problem may be due to lack of compression. If the charge of air and fuel cannot be compressed properly, the combustion process will not take place as it should. Possible reasons for lack of compression include worn piston rings (allowing air/fuel to leak past the piston during compression), improper sealing of the intake or exhaust valves (allowing a leak during compression), or a hole in the cylinder. Most commonly, a "hole" in the cylinder occurs where the top of the cylinder (also known as the cylinder head) attaches to the cylinder itself. If the thin gasket between the cylinder and cylinder head breaks down, small leaks occur.

For most of your car's maintenance and repair needs rely on our ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. For the best service in town, we're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. CITY CHAMPIONS in the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest. Front, from left: Elizabeth Kelly, Colin Evans, Patrick Gould, Michelle Connolly. Back: Recreation Director Barry Welch, Matt Goreham, Elks Exhaulted Ruler John McHugh, Molly Clifford, Hoop Shoot Chairman Ed Miller.

City Crowns Local Elks Free Throw Champs

Six Quincy boys and girls have been crowned city champions in the recent Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest.

They are Elizabeth Kelly and Colin Evans in the 8-9 age group, Michelle Connolly and Patrick Gould in the 10-11 age group, and Molly Clifford and Matthew Goreham in the 12-13 age group.

They advanced to the Circle District Championship last Saturday. The National Championship will be conducted at the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield.

There are over 3 million boys and girls in the first level of the shoot-offs, which involves shooting 25 free throws with the best shooters advancing.

The city championship was sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks and supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department.

"For more than 20 years the Quincy Lodge of Elks has committed its money and, more importantly, its time to ensuring that the youth of Quincy have the benefits of this fine program," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "I want to thank the lodge and the Exhaulted Ruler, John McHugh, on behalf of our participants."

McHugh and Hoop Shoot Chairman Ed Miller presented trophies to all champions and finalists at the city championship. Bob Evans of the Park and Recreation Board also was a trophy presenter. More than 250 youngsters took part in the contest at local neighborhood gyms.

The runners-up in each age group were Tim Keenan and Maryssa Dwyer in the 8-9 age group, Julie Nee and Ryan Evans in the 10-11 age group, and Andy Ng and Devon McKay in the 12-13 age group.

Third-place trophies went to Ryan Harty and Kiley Shionis in the 8-9 age group, Taylor McKay and Kyle McKay in the 10-11 age group, and Donny Pound and Kerry Turok in the 12-13 age group.

Other center champions in the Elks National Free Throw Contest were:

Ages 8-9: Lauren Coleman, Abby Smith, Erin McGinnis, Tara Nealon, Jarred O'Brien, Mike Alibrandi, Joey Critelli, Andrew Jaehnig, Ryan Higgins, Matt McLellan, Patrick Janeiro, John Grasselli, Aidan O'Connell.

Ages 10-11: Breana Basset, Paige Lucas, Starleina Murphy, Devin McMahon, Stacy Duggan, Elizabeth Goldrick, Patrick Morrissey, Austin Tobin, Luke McDonough, Zach Cocco, Eddie McDonough, Tim McDonald, Reggi Cesar, Chris Morschella.

Ages 12-13: Gryn Curran, Jesse Collins, Mark Saunders, Dan Messing, Nick Carbone, Ned Gould, Nick Couture, Rob Kreuger, Brian Lally.

Welch also commended recreation leaders who supervised center championship events at 13 school locations. "These leaders enthusiastically support this program and encourage each participant to enjoy the Hoop Shoot experience," he said.

"They did a nice job defensively on Folino," Fisher said. "But I thought Kenny Johnson did a good job rebounding and Joe Griffin came off the bench and did a great job for us. It was a tremendous team effort. What we do best is defense and that's what carried us tonight."

Rendle said Murray could be back next week, but he feels it will be important for some of his younger players to contribute more.

"We've lost some kids to injury lately and we're bringing kids up," he said. "But it's a lot to ask kids who were playing JV two weeks ago to go out and do it under the intense pressure Quincy puts on them. It's a new level, and it's going to take them a little while."

Red Raiders Extend Unbeaten Streak To 5

BOYS' HOCKEY

The North Quincy High School hockey extended its unbeaten streak to five games with a win and tie last week.

The Red Raiders stumbled out of the blocks this season with a 0-3-1 mark, but have regained their footing in the new year with an unbeaten 4-0-1 record.

Last Wednesday, NQ escaped Pilgrim Arena in Hingham with a 2-1 triumph over Archbishop Williams and last Saturday it skated to a 2-2 stalemate against Falmouth at Quincy Youth Arena.

NQ (4-3-2, 2-2-1 Atlantic Coast League) played Canton Monday and Sandwich Wednesday and will host Nauset Saturday night at 8.

Junior goalie Frankie Sorrento delivered a mesmerizing performance against the Catholic school, turning aside 33 shots to keep his team in the game before it collected two third-period goals.

A scoreless affair, AW struck three minutes into the final frame with a goal by Joe Bartone.

The Red Raiders quickly answered when senior left winger Matt Haskins netted the equalizer while on a two-man advantage at 4:14. Sophomore center Jimmy Fitzpatrick tallied the game-winner with seven minutes remaining.

In the Falmouth game, sophomore left winger Josh McKeon put NQ on the board in the waning seconds of the second period.

Trailing 2-1, NQ evened the score midway through the third with a goal by senior center and tri-captain Paul Graham, assisted by senior right winger Stephen Maggio.

How To Tell If Your Child Has An Ear Infection

(NAPS) — Catching a cold or flu is commonly followed by a secondary infection, such as pneumonia, sinusitis and, particularly in children, an ear infection. Although common in young children, many parents don't know the classic symptoms of an ear infection or when to head to the doctor.

Ear infections occur when bacteria causes a buildup of fluid and inflammation in the ear. Other factors that may increase a child's risk of getting an ear infection include some allergies, bottle-feeding in a lying-down position and breathing tobacco smoke. Three out of four children have an ear infection before the age of 3.

Telltale symptoms of ear infections include: Evidence of pain such as crying, ear tugging or fussiness; hearing problems; fluid draining from the ear; fever; dizziness (not very common).

If a child has these symptoms, it is important to see a pediatrician. A child's doctor may recommend parents watch their child and wait to see if symptoms worsen. Doctors in the meantime may suggest giving children ibuprofen or acetaminophen (never give aspirin products), placing warm compresses over the ear and maintaining a semi-upright position to decrease ear pressure.

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics' treatment guidelines on ear infections, antibiotics may be the right choice for children under the age of 2 or those whose symptoms linger after two days.

If a doctor has prescribed an antibiotic, the symptoms usually begin to go away within a few days. Even if the child is feeling better, it is important to take the full course of treatment to help prevent antibiotic resistance.

To make treatment easier for both you and your children, ask your doctor for an antibiotic that tastes good, has convenient dosing options and does not require refrigeration.

Some antibiotics also offer a higher dose level (250mg/5mL), which allows for less medication for parents to administer.

Health Plan Options For Seniors Topic March 10

The Quincy Council on Aging will present a Health Plan Options for Seniors seminar in conjunction with Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts Thursday, March 10 at 10 a.m. at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St.

A BCBS representative will discuss Medicare and also explain how Medigap and Medicare HMO's work.

All are welcome regardless of your insurance coverage.

For reservations, call the Quincy Council on Aging office at (617) 376-1506.

Men's Health

(NU) – The Food and Drug Administration estimates that millions of American men may suffer from low testosterone levels.

Many studies have found that low testosterone levels contribute to a variety of men's health problems, while higher levels can have significant positive effects on their health.

The good news is that there are natural supplements that can increase men's testosterone levels. For instance, Red Stag, manufactured by Nature's Youth, is formulated with some of the most frequently studied natural ingredients that are shown to increase testosterone levels.

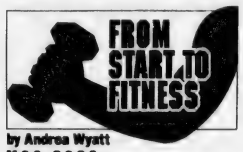
Volunteers Needed For American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days

The American Cancer Society needs volunteers to help deliver and sell the first flower of spring as part of the 2005 Daffodil Days.

Representing hope in the fight against cancer, daffodil orders are collected from companies, organizations, and communities in the winter months.



In conjunction with the first week of spring, the orders are delivered and Gifts of Hope (anonymous gift bouquets) are brought to cancer patients in the community. Daffodil Days volunteers are needed for an hour or two one morning to deliver daffodils and vases to local businesses, schools, and individuals.

Volunteers are also needed to sell daffodils at local grocery stores and other community locations.

Help from volunteers is a crucial aspect of what makes Daffodil Days such a successful fundraising event.

In 2004, the New England Division of the American Cancer Society raised $2.8 million through the Daffodil Days campaign.

For more information about becoming a volunteer for the American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days, call Elise Kerrigan at 508-897-4343.

The Twilight Zone of Fat Burning

Q: The cardiovascular machines at my gym display a chart that shows where your heart rate should range according to your goals. There is a range called the "fat-burning zone" that indicates that keeping my heart rate within this zone burns fat. How beneficial is this really?

A. The notion of a "fat-burning zone" comes from earlier research that suggested that working out at a slow and but steady pace keeps your heart rate within a certain percentage and forces your body to use fat as its source of energy. With many exercisers seeking to decrease body fat, the idea of a fat-burning zone was very appealing.

However, more recent research has discovered that the answer lies not in burning fat, but rather in burning calories. It is now known that body-fat reduction takes place when there is more energy being burned than is consumed.

This by no means should encourage someone wanting to lose body fat to attempt to burn as many calories as possible during every workout. Developing a balanced cardiovascular program that takes into account your level of fitness, experience and frequency of exercise is important.

If you are an exercise beginner, pace yourself. You can't start at level 12 on the treadmill or incline bike in an effort to burn more calories. Set an achievable goal at an achievable intensity to allow your body to adapt.

A more advanced exerciser may want to try interval training and cross training, since both increase calorie expenditure.

Finally, the best way to lose body fat is to combine a consistent and balanced cardiovascular workout with a total-body strength-training routine and proper nutrition.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws @hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

SECOND THOUGHTS

By now, most parents are well aware of the risk that secondhand smoke presents to their children. Now, however, researchers have added another potential risk to the list. According to a study involving 3,531 children (which was recently published in the Journal of the American Medical Association), children between ages four and eleven who were exposed to large amounts of secondhand smoke were found to be twice as likely to show signs of tooth decay as children were with little to no secondhand smoke exposure. This is not the first study to show that the harms of smoking can extend to teeth and gums. Research has also shown that secondhand smoke increases the risk of gum disease in adults.

We all know that smoking is hazardous to your health, and to the people surrounding you. We encourage regular dental check-ups, cleanings and home care. Early detection of problems minimizes the expenses related to major tooth repair. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we keep abreast of all the latest advances and procedures that technology has to offer. For more information or to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Researchers found that nicotine can increase the growth of the cavity-causing bacterium that lives in the human mouth.

OBITUARIES

Rose M. Whalen, 76

Retired Secretary

A funeral Mass for Rose M. (Trottier) Whalen, 76, of Quincy, a retired secretary, was celebrated Jan. 14 at St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

She died Jan. 10 at Milton Hospital.

Mrs. Whalen worked for A.H. Miller of Boston for many years.

Born and raised in Yonkers, N.Y., she lived in Boston before moving to Quincy 32 years ago.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A crisis and confusion is a part of living. Each of us must face some sort of crisis or confusion sooner or later. To face a crisis requires courage -- and courage is a personal matter. Courage can not be leased, borrowed or bought. It must be drawn from one's self for one's self. And when courage is shown, confusion can and often does disappear.

Ever since time began, the greatest source for courage has been traced to a foundation on a faith. Faith creates hope. Without faith and hope, courage is difficult to come by. In spite of dark clouds, faith, hope and courage will always be the means to let us see the rays of sunshine again. . .

"Life would not be worth living without faith. Faith in God; faith in ourselves; faith in our fellow-men; we should omit none of the three. Without faith in God, there is no hope for the soul; without faith in self, life is a miserable failure; without faith in each other, we should miss the sweet joys of friendship. Keep your faith bright, let its lustre never grow dim!" - Isa Scott Taylor

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Use that Arian charm to help make a difficult workplace transition easier for everyone. News about a long-awaited decision can be confusing. Don't jump to conclusions.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Although you might well be tempted to be more extravagant than you should be at this time, I'm betting you'll let your sensible Bovine instinct guide you toward moderation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An opportunity for travel could come with some problems regarding travel companions and other matters. So be sure you read all the fine print before you start packing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Make an effort to complete your usual workplace tasks before volunteering for extra duty. Scrambling to catch up later on could create some resentment among your colleagues.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A financial matter could have you rethinking your current spending plans. You might want to recheck your budget to see where you can cut back on expenses until the situation improves.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) One way to make your case for that promotion you've been hoping for might be to put your planning skills to work in helping to shape up a project that got out of hand. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Be careful about "experts" who have no solid business background. Instead, seek advice on enhancing your business prospects from bona fide sources with good success records.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Standing up to support a colleague's viewpoint — even if it's unpopular — can be difficult if you feel outnumbered. But you'll win plaudits for your honesty and courage.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) While progress continues on resolving that recurring problem, you might feel it's taking too long. But these things always need to develop at their own pace. Be patient.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close to you might have a financial problem and seek your advice. If you do decide to get involved, insist on seeing everything that might be relevant to this situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A personal matter takes an interesting turn. The question is, do you want to follow the new path or take time out to reconsider the change? Think this through before deciding.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Moving into a new career is a big step. Check that offer carefully with someone who has been there, done that, and has the facts you'll need to help you make your decision.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your warmth and generosity both of spirit and substance endears you to everyone.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Finn Decides Not To Run For Mayor

sible. I have no regret regarding this decision because ultimately my first commitment is to my family, their welfare and my own well-being.

"When I first ran for City Council it was because of my belief that in an election no holder of public office should run unopposed. I believe that the body of politics is not served well by an unopposed incumbency. Elections provide the tension and the accountability necessary to breed the best in ideas and keep a community moving forward. Despite obvious conflicts, disagreements or differences in political values, ultimately, all are better served by competitive and substantive contested elections.

"Conflict, although at times uncomfortable, is a sign of political health. That is why it is critical that I make my intentions known early, so that I may not be perceived as inhibiting anyone considering a campaign for the office of mayor. I have nothing, given my own experience over the last six years, but admiration and respect for those willing to throw themselves into the fray and seek any public office.

"As for the future, I will continue to work hard as Quincy councillor at-large. I will try to work in the best interests of all the people of Quincy and continue to call the issues as I see them. I will support what I believe is in the best interests of all, but I will continue to try and give voice to those who are often not heard. For now, politically, beyond this decision, I will keep all my options toward the future open. I will always strive in good conscience to meet the commitments and the challenges God places before me and my family. I would like to thank all of those who have supported my endeavors in the past and I hope you will support this difficult decision as well. I hope that I will be able to continue to serve Quincy for years to come."

Jan. 24 Blood Pressure Screenings Canceled

Weekly blood pressure screenings for elders, scheduled for Monday, Jan. 24, have been canceled. They will be resumed Jan. 31.

Thereafter, clinics will be held every Monday from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy.

Gail Crawford, a registered nurse, will donate her time and talents to assisting senior citizens in having their blood pressure taken weekly.

Appointments can be made but walk-ins also are accepted. For more information, call 617-376-1506.

Blizzard Of '05 Tamer Than '78 But:

City Still Digging Out!!

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

As the city struggled to dig itself out of last weekend's blockbuster storm, another six inches of snow was expected to hit Quincy midweek.

Adding insult to injury, forecasters were predicting six inches of snow on Wednesday, topping off the remnants of the Blizzard of '05, a monstrous storm that dumped more than two feet of snow, crippled roadways, closed schools and brought much of eastern Massachusetts to its knees.

Over the weekend, Quincy received 28 inches of snow, making it one of the biggest storms ever to hit the City of Presidents.

Despite the storm's magnitude, it was a relatively safe event: No deaths, evacuations or major power outages in the city were reported by emergency crews.

Mayor William Phelan said city crews will continue to work around the clock to remove snow from the streets and sidewalks, as well as bring Quincy back to some semblance of order.

"This is a monumental task, considering it was one of the largest storms in New England's history," Phelan said Tuesday.

The mayor asked Quincy residents to "bare with us and be patient."

Phelan also asked residents to help their fellow neighbors and check on senior citizens who may be homebound due to the storm.

Fire Dept. Asks Help Shoveling Out Hydrants

The Quincy Fire Department is asking all able-bodied residents to help shovel out snow-hidden fire hydrants.

The city's fire hydrants were buried under several feet of snow, and they will be needed in case of a fire or emergency, according to fire officials.

"It would be nice if residents shoveled out the hydrants in front of their houses, but we understand that not everyone should be out there shoveling," said Deputy Fire Chief Tim Pettinelli. "We will continue to find them and dig them out."

Pettinelli said firefighters will be making the rounds all week in an attempt to find hidden hydrants.

"We have more snow coming so it's making it difficult," he said.

Owners Reminded To Clear Storefronts Of Snow

The Quincy Police Department reminds store owners to clear snow from their properties after each snowstorm.

Owners found not to be in compliance will be subjected to $50 fines, according to police.

Mid-Year Exams Delayed At High Schools

Mid-year exams at Quincy and North Quincy High School will be delayed until today (Thursday), Friday and Monday due to the storm, according to school officials.

Students should report to class at regular times.

Originally, exams were scheduled to begin Tuesday, but principals decided to delay them because of the storm.

At United First Parish Church

Quincy Memorial Service For Tsunami Victims Feb. 3

An Ecumenical memorial service for the victims of the recent tsunami in Southeast Asia and Africa will be held Thursday, Feb. 3 at 7:30 p.m. at United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents), 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The service is co-sponsored by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home and Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI).

"Many Quincy residents have been affected by this tragedy," said Joseph Reardon, a funeral director with the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home and a member of the QARI Board of Directors. "This service will honor the memory of their family and friends who died in the disaster and it will begin the healing process."

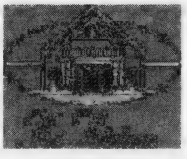
The public is invited to join with representatives of Quincy's many different faith communities to formally remember those affected by the devastating tsunami. The service will feature prayers and music from the Islamic, Buddhist, Hindu, Jewish and Christian traditions practiced in the areas where the disaster occurred.

"Quincy is home to many Pan-Asian communities," said Ken An, president of QARI. "QARI is proud to be able to work with these communities to serve those experiencing the pain and loss left in the wake of the tsunami."

At the service, QARI will collect donations for relief agencies working to rebuild the areas destroyed by the disaster. All donations will go directly toward relief aid.

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. is a non-profit social service agency dedicated to promoting the development of the Asian-American community to benefit the wider community. QARI provides information and referral services, educational seminars, ESOL classes and Asian cultural events.

Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home is the oldest funeral service provider in Quincy. Located at 74 Elm St., the firm has been providing South Shore families with funeral, burial, cremation, memorial and prearrangement services since 1917.



For more information, contact QARI at 617-472-2200 or Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home at 617-773-2728.

Victory Supermarket Food Drive To Aid Families In Need

As part of the city's continued effort to help families in need, Victory/Hannaford Supermarket in North Quincy will hold a food drive Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Shoppers and residents are encouraged to bring non-perishable foods, canned goods, pasta, cereal and other foods with nutrional value.

The city has teamed up with several local supermarkets in an effort to aid food pantries and those in need of assistance. The coalition, called the Quincy Hunger Network, will hold food drives throughout the year.

"I think it is important for everyone to remember that it's not just during the holiday season that the food pantries need help," said Mayor William Phelan. "Anything we can do as a city to help out is greatly appreciated, especially during the winter months when the cost of fuel is so high."

Seven supermarkets are participating in the program on a revolving basis. They are: Stop & Shop, Newport Ave.; Stop & Shop, Southern Artery; Roxies, Southern Artery; Victory/Hannaford Supermarket, Hancock St.; Roche Brothers, Falls Blvd.; Kam Man Foods, Quincy Ave.; and Star Market, Granite St.

Despite being competitors, supermarkets banded together for a common goal.

" We are not competitors in this case - we are just trying to be good neighbors in the business community," said Steve Beane, store manager at Victory/Hannaford Supermarket

Roche Brothers kicked off the program with a successful food drive last October.

SHIPMATES Cadet 3c Mark Dondero and Cadet 4c Jeffrey Bossart, both of Quincy, prepare to depart from Mass Maritime Academy in Buzzard's Bay for the annual six-week seaterm cruise aboard the training ship Enterprise. Dondero and his parents, Hank and Joanne Dondero, are at left, while Bossart and his parents, Trish and Bob Bossart, are at right.

Coughlin Re-Files Two Measures To Help Seniors

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin has re-filed two home rule petitions designed to help senior citizens.

Coughlin is looking to set up senior citizen "Safety Zones" in the city where there are elderly housing or near facilities that provide services to seniors. The measure would allow for special roadway and traffic controls and restrictions to help protect seniors.

"I think it's a fundamentally sound piece of legislation that will provide the city with a significant tool to enhance public safety for senior citizens," said Coughlin.

The home rule petition was originally filed in 2003. At the time, Coughlin testified in support of the measure during a hearing before the state Legislature.

In addition, Coughlin filed a home rule petition that calls for a reduction in and local authority over the interest rates charged to seniors who choose to defer payment of their property tax bills.

Under state law, interest charged on deferred payments can be as high as 16 percent. Coughlin's measure seeks to reduce that level by employing a formula where the rate would not exceed eight percent.

"The statutory rates currently set are a disincentive for people who want to utilize this option," said Coughlin. "We want to do everything we can to provide seniors with another option that is attractive to them."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 27, 1302, poet and politician Dante Alighieri is exiled from Florence, where he served as one of six priors governing the city. Dante wrote his masterpiece, "The Divine Comedy," as a virtual wanderer, seeking protection for his family in town after town.

• On Jan. 26, 1838, the first Prohibition law in the history of the United States is passed in Tennessee, making it a misdemeanor to sell alcoholic beverages in taverns and stores. Fines collected for retailing "spirituous liquors" would be used in support of public schools.

• On Jan. 24, 1907, in Ormond Beach, Fla., Glenn Curtiss, an engineer who got his start building motors for bicycles, sets an unofficial land-speed record of 136.29 mph on a self-built V-8 motorcycle. An automobile would not surpass that speed until 1911.

• On Jan. 25, 1924, the first Winter Olympics are held, at Chamonix in the French Alps. Spectators were thrilled by the ski jump and bobsled as well as 12 other events involving a total of six sports. Canada won the hockey gold, scoring 110 goals and allowing just three goals in five games.

• On Jan. 29, 1964, Stanley Kubrick's black comic masterpiece, "Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb" opens in theaters. Kubrick's satirical attacks on the U.S. and Russian policies of nuclear stockpiling and massive retaliation struck a chord with the American people, particularly after the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962.

• On Jan. 30, 1972, in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, 13 unarmed Northern Catholic civil-rights demonstrators are shot dead by British Army paratroopers in an event that becomes known as "Bloody Sunday."

• On Jan. 28, 1996, Jerry Seigel, creator of Superman, dies at age 81. Seigel, a writer, created Superman with artist friend Joe Shuster when they were teenagers. When they finally landed a comic-book deal in 1938, Superman became an instant hit.

Remembering The Blizzard Of '78

(The weekend Blizzard of '05 is one we will remember but it didn't pack the fury — in this area — as the historic Blizzard of '78.

Following is a reprint of the Feb. 16, 1978 Sunbeams column on how Quincy coped with the latter storm out of which came a now fondly remembered feeling of togetherness.)

It was a storm you would like to forget but will vividly remember for as long as you live.

Awesome. Devastating. Furious. Horrendous. Mean. Terrible. You may have even a stronger one-word description.

But as bad as it was with the suffering and the losses it brought — in lives and damages — and the inconveniences, it had one nice side effect: it brought out the best in most people.

People opened their hearts and extended helping hands to those in need. Not just neighbor helping neighbor, but stranger helping stranger.

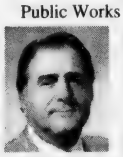
A feeling of togetherness and unity descended upon the area in a way we hadn't seen since World War II. People were united again by catastrophe. They shared a common cause: survival. And they were more than willing to make personal sacrifices to help one another get through the ordeal. Most important: they cared for one another.

Houghs Neck and Germantown were the hardest hit in Quincy. Squantum got pretty well battered, too.

Compared to neighbors in Hull and Scituate, however, Quincy overall was lucky, as far as damage and other losses were concerned.

But Quincy got its fair share of the record near 27 inches of snow. The city was virtually paralyzed during most of the week. Business came to a costly standstill.

Overall, we think the city of Quincy deserves a "well done." New Mayor Arthur Tobin certainly has gotten his baptism under fire. He had been in office just 34 days when he got hit with the two worst snowstorms in our history.



TOBIN

We got a chance to personally observe him during this second storm — the all-time champ in fury and meanness — and saw a man calm and in complete control of the situation. He never reached for the panic button.

And so it was, all down the line.

Public Works Commissioner James (Pete) Ricciuti proved an able general as his army of weary workers fought around the clock to win the Big Battle of the Snow.

RICCIUTI

There were many others who did an outstanding job during the long hard week: Police, firefighters, Civil Defense units, nurses and doctors and hospital employees, snowmobilers, school personnel, and many volunteers in varying shapes and sizes who all pitched in to help Quincy residents in need.

There were many unsung heroes — and many of their heroics will never be known except to those directly affected.

Of course, it wasn't all 100 percent peaches, cream and let's-all-sing-together. A lot of people came down with cabin fever in their homes. And even in snowfighting command centers where workers were cooped up for days under very trying circumstances, tempers flared now and then.

And there were gripes. About, for example, some people who managed to slip their cars by officials during the travel ban to stock up on food while most people had to trudge to stores on foot and lug small amounts of groceries home in their arms or on sleds.

Some didn't like the way their streets were plowed. Someone complained about snow being pushed against his fence, and another into his driveway. And there was the story about the guy who harassed one of the plow operators to the point where the latter stopped his truck, got out and flattened him.

And there was another one about the weirdo who telephoned a resident to report that his wife, who was in the hospital, had died. Police brought the grief-stricken man to the hospital, the story goes, where he found his wife very much alive.

That cruel prank, meanwhile, delayed police from taking needed medicine to another resident with high blood pressure.

Most of those and other similar incidents will be forgotten by the time the first robin gets up enough courage to put in an appearance here.

But there is one character we hope will not be forgotten: the looter.

Fortunately, for Quincy, there were only isolated cases of looting although some homes are still empty and could yet be plundered.

The looter, in our book is a creep — a wart on humanity. He takes advantage of a tragic situation to steal from homes evacuated because of floods or lack of heat. Or steals from stores where windows have been blown in.

We hope anyone arrested for looting and convicted after a fair hearing gets what he should: severe punishment.

We hope judges here in Quincy and elsewhere feel the same way about that. The looter deserves no sympathy.

He is as bad as the thief who steals from the blind, the bully who picks on the invalid and the rapist whose victim is the innocent.

Overall, Quincy came through it well. And most of us may even be better off in the long run for the experience. It sure humbled us.

Ward 1 Democrats Hold Caucus Jan. 29

Registered Democrats in Ward 1 will hold its caucus on Jan. 29 at 1 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., to elect 12 delegates and six alternates to the 2005 Massachusetts Democratic Party Platform Convention.

Delegates and alternates will be divided equally between men and women.

Candidates for delegates or alternates must consent to nomination in writing. All candidates may make a two-minute statement and may distribute materials on their behalf. All ballots will be written and secret.

Those not elected as delegate or alternate, who meet the qualification, may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority and disabled.

The convention will be held Saturday, May 14, 2005 at the Paul E. Tsongas Arena in Lowell, 300 Arcand Dr.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, sexual orientation or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited. Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 10 Granite St., Quincy, MA 02169, no later than 10 days after the caucus date.

For more information, please contact Michael J. Berry, Ward Chairman, at 617-479-2787.

QHS Improvement Council Meeting Feb. 3

Quincy High School will hold a School Improvement Council meeting Thursday, Feb. 3 at 4 p.m. in the Pride Room.

The public is invited. The council will be selecting next year's school improvement goals and changes to the high school's current handbook.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD is a view of the then new North Junior High School in Atlantic just after it was completed in February 1927. When the city adopted the Junior High concept the relieve its overcrowded eight-year grammar schools this was the first 7-9th grade junior high school to open. South, Central and Point were soon to follow. This building cost less than $500,000 and was built on filled-in city owned marshland. The present right wing of the building was added in 1934 and it then became the six-year North Quincy High School. In 1936 it was expanded again with the left wing adding 24 more classrooms. It remained a six-year school until the Atlantic Junior High was built in the early 1960s on nearby Hollis Avenue. The junior highs are now all middle schools and this is a four-year high school. Quincy Council On Aging Receives $97,403 Grant

The Executive Office of Elder Affairs has awarded the City of Quincy with a $97,403 Council on Aging grant, announces state Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and A. Stephen Tobin.

"The funding will go towards supporting transportation, Asian outreach and social service programs, employ custodial and program administrative staff and provide for conference/training costs, volunteer recognition, computer upgrading and dues support," Mariano said.

Grants are calculated based on the senior populations of municipalities. "Each Council on Aging then determines its own priorities for expenditures," Tobin said.

"The entire COA grant budget for the fiscal year was $600,000, a 10 percent increase over last year," Ayers added.

Morrissey called the grants "an invaluable means of support for senior activities in the community and contribute to Quincy's quality of life."

The legislative delegation expressed their gratitude to the members of the Quincy Council on Aging for their time and efforts on this important program. Interested individuals who want more information about the Quincy COA should contact Thomas Clasby at 617-376-1245.

READERS FORUM

Fr. William English A Very Humble Man

During these troubled times, when you read negative stories about the church, it is a great comfort to know that if you ask a priest to do a special favor he responds.

A good friend of mine lost a son during the Christmas season. I asked Father English if he would please visit the family. Even though he had a busy schedule, he agreed. He put on his Red Sox cap and drove to Hingham.

This humble priest is very much loved and respected in the Houghs Neck community. Soon, he will be pastor for Germantown, Adams Shore and Merrymount as well. This is a big responsibility. I would like to tell all his new parishioners he is a very humble man.

Over 10,000 Apply For Jobs At GD Shipyard

This Week
1964
41 Years Ago

More than 10,500 men applied for work at the soon-to-be reopened Fore River Shipyard during a four-day application period at the State Division of Employment Security office at 160 Parkingway.

The Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics, the new owner of the shipyard, announced it would be hiring several hundred workers initially for the reopening of the yard which was expected in two weeks.

The Bethlehem Steel Co. ceased operating the shipyard on Dec. 31 and sold it to General Dynamics. Many of those in the employment line had worked at the yard before and expected improved conditions under the new owner.

"I hear it's a progressive company," said James Moses of Hyde Park, who had worked as a welder at the yard for 11 years before being laid off in December.

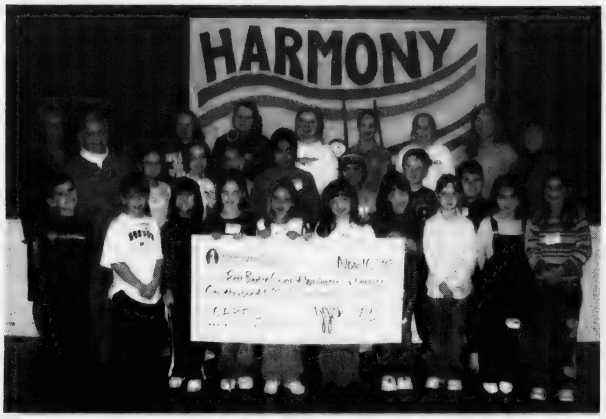
Meanwhile, the Fore River Metal Trades Council opened an office at 23 Chestnut St. in a drive to organize the workers, who had been represented by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers under Bethlehem.

WORLD'S FAIR EXHIBIT

City Historian William C. Edwards was making a cost study of a proposal to sponsor a Quincy historical exhibit at the New York World's Fair which was scheduled to open in April.

The proposal was made by Rep. Joseph E. Brett and would include a replica of one of the cars that was used on the first commercial railroad in West Quincy.

RAPID TRANSIT OPPOSED



Felix C. Favorite, executive secretary of the Quincy Home and Property Owners Association, said his board of directors had voted to oppose an extension of the Boston rapid transit system to Quincy.

Reasonable estimates were that the MTA deficit would add at least $6 to the Quincy tax rate, he said, "an unjustified amount for homeowners to pay for the transportation of less than 3 percent of the population of Quincy."

SOUTH COASTAL BANK has awarded a $1,000 grant to First Baptist Church of Wollaston from the bank's C.A.R.E.S. community giving program. C.A.R.E.S. helps local non-profit groups promote and encourage a sense of Community, Achievement, Responsibility and Excellence in children through exposure to the arts. First Baptist Church of Wollaston will use the grant to expand its Harmony Youth Chorus. Using song and poetry to promote tolerance and understanding, the city-wide chorus is open to children of all faiths, backgrounds and races. The chorus will present a full concert at the end of the fall session. Among those on hand for the check presentation were (from left) Susan D. Lincoln, senior vice president, South Coastal Bank; Amy Susan Kehew, layperson, First Baptist Church; Rachel Shetler Hallenbeck, director, Harmony Youth Chorus; and the Rev. Anita Farber-Robertson, pastor, First Baptist Church.

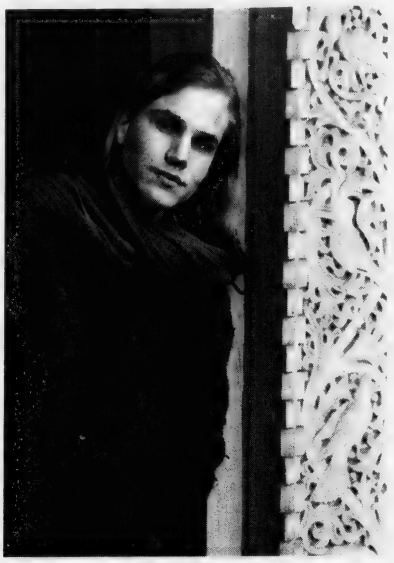
Guy Mendilow Concert At Crane Library Jan. 30



Multinational musician Guy Mendilow will perform a combination of world music styles in the first of the series of free concerts Sunday, Jan. 30, at 3 p.m., at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The free concert is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Mendilow performs music inspired by the places he has lived and traveled, from Jerusalem to old Salvador, the highland of Chiapas and the parched desert of Sinai.

Mendilow's performances feature his vocals in six languages, including overtone singing (a style permitting one singer to produce two or more voices at once) as well as a variety of instruments such as the berimbau, electric mbira (thumb piano), guitar, flute and saxophone.

Mendilow will be joined by award-winning Russian-American vocalist Yulia Van Doren and multi-instrumentalist Andy Bergman. The concert is tailored for audiences of all ages and backgrounds.

GUY MENDILOW

On Feb. 6, Boston Jazz Voices, a mixed a cappella chorus, will offer harmony in jazz, swing and popular styles. On Feb. 13, guitarist Mark Leighton and flutist Peter Bloom will perform instrumental arrangements of songs from different eras and continents. All concerts will begin at 3 p.m. and are free to all.

Anthony DiPietro Named AP Scholar

ANTHONY DiPIETRO

Anthony DiPietro of Quincy has been named an AP Scholar by the College Board in recognition of exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement Program exams.

DiPietro, a first year student at Providence College, was a senior at Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree when he took the exams last May. He was one of only 17 percent of the more than one million high school students worldwide to be named an AP Scholar, an honor given for scoring three or higher on three or more exams.

DiPietro was one of eight Williams students to receive AP Scholar Awards.

"Over the last three years, Administration, Guidance and AP teachers here at Archbishop Williams have worked hard to expand and strengthen our AP program," said Academic Dean Jane Funderburk. "The class of 2004 was the first class to benefit from this expansion through increased course offerings both within our Academic Departments and through our Virtual High School offerings. We are proud of Anthony's outstanding achievement," she said.

The AP Exams are given following a year of challenging college-level courses. Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit, advanced placement, or both based on successful performance on the AP Exams.

Mardi Gras At Point Congregational To Benefit Tsunami Victims Feb. 5

The Quincy Point Congregational Church will hold a Mardi Gras celebration to raise funds for the victims of the tsunami disaster Saturday, Feb. 5 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the church, 444 Washington St.

Minimum donation is $10, and all receipts will go directly to Church World Service (CWS), whose Emergency Response Program was one of the first on the disaster scene in Southeast Asia.

CWS already has provided at least 500 family shelter kits, 75 emergency medicine boxes enough for 75,000 persons for three months, 44,000 "gift or health" kits, and 3,000 lightweight blankets.

The Mardi Gras will feature food and prizes with appetizers at 6 p.m., a dinner buffet beginning at 6:30 p.m., a silent auction until 7:30 p.m. and dancing until 10 p.m. This is an alcohol-free event.

For more information or to purchase tickets call Joyce at 617-472-7446 or Deanna at 617-843-6099.

OYCE ROMERI OF Quincy shows off her mask and beads in anticipation of a mardi gras celebration to be held Feb. 5 at the Quincy Point Congregational Church. All receipts from the event will go to benefit victims of the tsunami disaster in Southeast Asia.

Lincoln-Hancock School Bake Sale Raises Over $400 For Tsunami Survivors

A bake sale inspired by two fourth graders at the Lincoln-Hancock School raised more than $400 for the survivors of the horrific tsunami in the Indian Ocean.

The fourth grade students coordinated the bake sale on the inspiration of fellow fourth graders Chris McMahon and Dillon Darcy.

On Friday, Jan. 14, the children and parents worked together selling the goods for 25 cents each. The leftovers were refrigerated and sold on Tuesday, Jan. 18.

The bake sale raised over $400.

The effort was most impressive for the sheer quantity of baked goods brought in. The parents and children gave more than quarters and baked goods, they gave their precious time, baking and packaging the goods.

The children and families of the Lincoln Hancock School have demonstrated that it's not what you have in life that is important, but what you give.

Open House Sunday At St. Ann School

Saint Ann School, 1 St. Ann Road, Wollaston, will have an open house Sunday, Jan. 30, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Registration for children in grades pre-kindergarten through grade 8 for the 2005-2006 school year will take place at this time. Anyone intending to register a child must have the child's birth certificate, baptismal certificate and immunization records.

Copies of the child's most recent report card and standardized test results are required for children in grades 2-8. There is a registration fee of $50 per family.

Catholic Schools Week

January 30th - February 4th

Schools With Faith in Every Student

Today, more than ever, it's critically important to instill an unshakable faith and hope for the future in your child. At Saint Joseph School, children grow spiritually and develop a personal connection to God that will serve them for a lifetime.

Our faith in every child also means no child is ever left behind. Low teacher-to-student ratios and a total commitment to giving each child personal attention are hallmarks of a Catholic school education. Your child will be challenged in a Catholic school – challenged to grow academically, spiritually, and as an individual.

Give your child a strong foundation for a lifetime of confidence, faith and service.

St. Ann's Students Celebrating National Catholic School's Week

St. Ann's School in Wollaston next week will celebrate National Catholic School's Week beginning Jan. 30 and running through Friday, Feb. 4.

The school has several events planned to commemorate the week. On Tuesday, Feb. 1, students from grades 1-8 will present the play, "Happiness Is A Life of Faith," from 1:15 to 2 p.m. The play is written and performed entirely by students.

The middle school will present their projects at an education fair on Feb. 2 and 3 from 1 to 2:10 p.m. on both days and Thursday night from 6 to 8 p.m. for parents.

The sixth grade will present projects on ancient civilizations, and the seventh grade's project will cover United States history. Students will present both written and visual work with their projects. The visuals will include display boards, artwork and photographs.

The eighth grade will build simple machines such as pulleys or catapults for the education fair.

Christine Schuster Vice Chairman Of Chamber Government Affairs Office

Christine Schuster, RN, MBA, president and CEO of Quincy Medical Center, has been elected to a two-year term as vice chairman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Government Affairs office.

Schuster will help lead the advocacy efforts on Beacon Hill and in Washington, D.C. for the 2,500-member businesses of the South Shore Chamber. Schuster has served on the Chamber Board since 2002.

"I welcome the opportunity to provide further support for the Chamber's lobbying and advocacy initiatives," Schuster said. "The Chamber's leadership has long been recognized as a leading advocacy group for business in Massachusetts."

CHRISTINE SCHUSTER

Schuster is a member of the American Hospital Association's Regional Policy Board. She also serves on the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Hospital Association (MHA), and is chairwoman of the MHA's Clinical Issues Advisory Council, which is designed to provide advice and counsel to the association on key medical, clinical, and public policy issues. She also serves on the Quincy 2000 Board of Directors.

Coughlin Holds Office Hours Feb. 3

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin will hold office hours on Thursday, Feb. 3 at 6:30 p.m. prior to the meeting of the Montclair Wollaston Neighborhood Association in the basement meeting room of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, located at the corner of Harvard St. and West Squantum St.

Residents are encouraged to attend.

Has Until June 15
To Fine Another Home

Cat Shelter Gets A Second Life

A small cat shelter on Copeland St. has until June 15 to find a new home, under an agreement reached last week with the landlord of the property.

The Ce-Ce & Friends Humane Society averted a Jan. 31 eviction after lawyers for the society and landlord Tony Bandis of Quincy reached an agreement that allows the society and some 30 cats to stay for the time being. The group has no lease and pays $700 per month for a 700-square-foot space at 146 Copeland St.

The shelter has been looking for a new home ever since Bandis sent a notice of eviction effective Jan. 31. The society has been unable to find a new place; representatives sought legal help to stay the eviction.

"I'm confident we will find a place and be out by June 15," said Peggy Wright, president of the society's board of directors. "We were very thankful that the landlord gave us the extra time. We don't have to worry about the cats now."

The society's attorney, Robert Fennessy, thanked Bandis for entering into the agreement.

"He (Bandis) turned out to be a reasonable man," said Fennessy. "It's very difficult to find a place in the winter - this worked out for the benefit of everyone."

The shelter is staffed by volunteers and operates on donations and bequests. The shelter, which opened in Febuary 1999, has a policy against euthanizing any of the animals in its care.

Wright said the society is looking for a permanent home. Anyone interested in renting or leasing space can contact Ce-Ce & Friends Humane Society at 617-328-5812.

The shelter is open for adoptions on Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

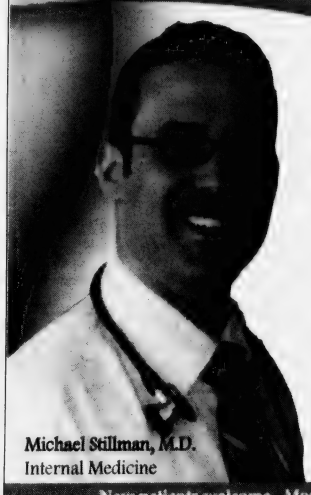
Free Permitting, Licensing Informational Workshops

The city of Quincy, in partnership with Quincy 2000 Collaborative, is sponsoring free monthly informational workshops for business owners who have questions about the city's permitting and licensing process.

The workshops will be held on the last Thursday of the month from 8:30 to 10 a.m., with the next one scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 27, in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

Representatives from city departments and the architectural, building and legal professions will be on hand to answer questions.



Topics will include such items as change of use restrictions and allowance, zoning and Board of Appeals process, licensing and registration procedures, Board of Health rules and regulations, business signage, and handicap accessibility requirements.

One-on-one assistance and professional referral information will be available during the informational workshop.

The workshops will help those planning to open a new business or relocate an existing one in the city and have questions on the permitting and licensing process.

To preregister for the workshop or for more information, contact the Mayor's Office at 617-376-1990 or Quincy 2000 Collaborative at 617-847-1454.

Ward 6 Democrats Holding Caucus Feb. 5

Registered Democrats in Ward 6 will be holding a caucus on Feb. 5 at 10 a.m. at Adams Inn Best Western, 29 Hancock St., to elect delegates and alternatives to the 2005 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Delegates will be divided equally between men and women.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Ward 6. Candidates for delegate and alternate must consent to nomination in writing. All candidates may make a two minute statement and may distribute materials on their behalf. All ballots will be written and secret.

Those not elected as delegate and alternate, who meet the qualifications, may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority and disabled.

The convention will be held Saturday, May 14, 2005 at the Paul E. Tsongas Arena in Lowell. At that time, Democrats from across the state will gather to review and approve the Party Platform, a document which will serve as the official political agenda of the Massachusetts Democratic Party.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, sexual orientation or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 10 Granite St., Quincy, MA 02169 no later than 10 days after the caucus date.

For more information contact the Democratic State Committee at 617-472-0637.

City Still Digging Out From Blizzard Of '05

(Cont'd From Page 1)

At presstime Tuesday, school officials had not made a determination whether to close public schools on Wednesday. Schools were closed on Monday and Tuesday.

City officials said solid preparation curbed many problems.

"We are doing well, better than most communities," said DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell. "We did a lot of planning for this storm."

About 80-90 pieces of equipment were deployed during the height of the storm Sunday morning, he said. DPW crews positioned key equipment near areas of concern prior to the storm, he said.

Work crews will continue to haul snow out of areas for the rest of the week, he said. DPW workers will be using snowblowers and bobcats to remove snow, he said.

"We have nowhere to put the snow, so we will be hauling it for the rest of the week," he said.

O'Donnell said problem areas included Quincy Shore Drive and parts of Germantown, where eight to 10-foot snow drifts made some roads virtually impassible. Several roads were closed due to drifting snow, he said.

And bitter cold temperatures guaranteed that the snow would be here for awhile.

DPW crews would continue to focus on schools, pedestrian walkways and sidestreets, he said.

O'Donnell said the city's snow removal budget - $300,000 - would be depleted due to the cleanup.

Police Chief Robert Crowley reported no serious accidents or injuries, despite white-out conditions along several roadways.

"Most people did the right thing and waited for the Patriots game," said Crowley. About 50 vehicles were towed because operators did not follow the city's parking ban, he said. Other vehicles were abandoned on Quincy Shore Drive, he said.

If there was a silver lining in the dark clouds, it was the fact that the snow was relatively light, unlike the snow which fell during the 1978 storm.

The '78 storm crushed New England with heavy, wet snow, flooding and $1 billion in damage. Fifty-four people died in that storm.

With cold temperatures, this storm brought fluffier snow that did not bring down power lines and was somewhat easier to shovel and plow.

The National Weather Service said snow totals placed the storm among the stop five in the past 100 years and called its force just shy of that seen in the Blizzard of '78.

Some areas of Massachusetts got three feet of snow, topping even the infamous Blizzard of '78. In Boston, however, about 22.5 inches of snow fell at Logan Airport, about five inches shy of the '78 event. Boston Common, measured 26 inches of snow.

Other areas of Massachusetts, including Plymouth, Salem and Haverhill, got pummeled with more than three feet of snow. Cape Cod and the Islands faced record snowfalls; Sagamore registered 35 inches.

The city's Emergency Management Department coordinated its efforts with the state agency, according to Director Tom Gorman. Minor flooding caused some headaches along Manet Ave. and Edgewater Drive, but much of the city was spared any major problems, he said.

Evacuation shelters set up at North Quincy High School and Atherton Hough Elmentary School were not needed, he said.

"Things have been going fairly well," said Gorman. "We were able to coordinate effectively with the DPW and police, which made a big difference, but I don't see things getting back to normal until next week.

"If there had been a little more moisture in the snow we would have had a lot of trees and power lines down," said Gorman.

Gorman said the city will be looking to secure federal disaster relief funds when they become available.

7 Year-Old Rescued From Deep Snow Bank

The Blizzard of '05, like other dire situations, always brings out the best in people.

On Monday, the 7-year-old son of Quincy resident Alan Flynn was playing in the snow with friends. The boy's friend got his boot stuck in a snowbank. While trying to help the boy, Flynn's son sank up to his chest in an eight-foot snow drift.

The boy's 12-year-old brother and neighbors, digging with their bare hands, were unable to retrieve the hysterical child.

Several neighbors and family members struggled mightly to extract the boy, but to no avail.

Motorists passing by noticed the scuffle and decided to assist the group. Without delay and ignoring the -15 degree wind chill, they jumped out of their car and worked to free the young boy.

Flynn said he didn't even get a chance to thank the two men who assisted.

"We may not have got their names, but we will never forget what they did for our family," said Flynn. "Thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

Where Does The Snow Go?

When Quincy streets can't take it anymore, people wonder where does all that snow go?

It goes to several locations, according to DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell.

DPW crews will haul the snow to the DPW yard on Sea St., or to parks that are dormant in the winter. The city also puts snow in a lot near Ricciuti Drive, according to O'Donnell.

John Guiney Earns 'e-Pro Certification' From National Realtors

JOHN GUINEY

John Guiney, sales associate with Century 21 Abigail Adams Agency with offices in Quincy, Norwell, Marshfield, and Duxbury, recently earned the nationally recognized "e-Pro Certification.".

This designation is currently held by less than 1 percent of real estate professionals nationwide.

e-Pro is the official technology certification program of the National Association of REALTORS.

The e-Pro program trains participants in the professional use of web based communications, development of interactive web sites, and the use of on-line research and marketing tools.

Graduates emerge with extensive knowledge of the growing consumer demand for web-based real estate services.

Real Estate Professional Preferred By Sellers And Buyers, Report Shows

A new report on the home buying and selling preferences of Massachusetts consumers shows that use of a real estate professional during the home search and sale processes has risen across the Bay State in the past year, and that the public's satisfaction with the performance of real estate agents has improved as well. The 2004 Massachusetts Profile of Home Buyers & Sellers, compiled by the National Association of Realtors ® (NAR), also found that the number of first-time and minority buyers purchasing homes has climbed since 2003, despite steadily rising home prices in Massachusetts.

Among homeowners surveyed, the NAR study found that the use of a real estate professional to help sell the home increased 5 percent over the previous year, from 86 percent of sellers who used a real estate agent in the spring of 2003 to 91 percent of Massachusetts homeowners who used an agent to help sell their homes between August 2003 and July 2004. At the same time, the number of homeowners who sold their own home has dropped 39 percent in the last year, from 9.7 percent of home sellers in the spring of 2003 to 5.9 percent of sellers in the 12 months from August 2003 tot July 2004.

Among the most difficult tasks cited by homeowners in attempting to sell their home was preparing, fixing-up and staging the home for sale, which nearly on in three (27%) sellers identified as the most challenging aspect to perform, while 18 percent of sellers said determining the proper selling price and attracting buyers was the hardest part of selling the home.

Buyers are also increasingly seeking out the services of a real estate agent, according to the Massachusetts Profile of Home Buyers & Sellers. This past year, 93 percent of home buyers surveyed used a real estate agent during the home search process, which is up from 90 percent of buyers in 2003. In addition, eight out of 10 buyers in the Bay State bought their home with the assistance of a real estate agent during the August 2003 - July 2004 period, the same as in the spring of 2003.

Notably, the wider use of real estate practitioners among home buyers has occurred even as the Internet has become an increasingly popular source of information for consumers during the home search process. In the past year, nearly two-thirds of Bay State home buyers (65 percent) frequently used the Internet in their home search, compared to 44 percent in 2003.

Furthermore, the study found that buyers who used the Internet as part of the home search are more likely to use a real estate agent to assist them with their home purchase than non-Internet users, by a margin of 84 percent to 52 percent.

One unexpected finding in the report is that consumers' use of a buyer representative in the home search process fell slightly from 53 percent a year ago to 47 percent in 2004. This is likely a temporary decline however as legislation passed last summer, and due to take effect in July 2005, is intended to promote the practice of buyer agency by clarifying relationships between consumers and real estate agents during the property transaction process.

As for the actual home purchase process, data shows that the typical Bay State home buyer searched 10 weeks and walked through 10 homes last year before completing their purchase, and they bought eight miles from their previous home or apartment. Meanwhile, the top five factors influencing buyers' decisions as to where they bought were: quality of the neighborhood, proximity to family/friends, proximity to job/school and school district.

Based on the NAR study, the average home buyer in Massachusetts is a married couple, at the age of 37 with a median household income of $81,900, who has previously owned two homes. The second largest household composition was that of single females who made up 18 percent of home buyers in 2004, followed by unmarried couples who comprised 11 percent of buyers, and single males who represented 4 percent of buyers.

Program Helps Local Families Facing Winter Cold

More than 11,000 households in Quincy are eligible for one of the programs under a new alliance of the state's investor-owned utility companies, energy efficient organizations and Community Action Programs.

The program, called Energy Bucks, offers access to three different programs: fuel assistance, utility discount rates and energy efficiency services.

Energy Bucks is an integrated campaign combining grassroots outreach, community-based activities and advertising to build awareness of the variety of energy efficiency and discount services available to income-eligible families.

Energy Bucks can help families save up to 30 percent on energy bills. With just one phone call, income-eligible customers can discover how to save. Help is available, but less than 30 percent of eligible households currently utilize the money-saving options available to them.

For information on applying, contact Quincy Community Action Programs at 617-479-8181.

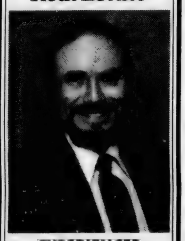
The Energy Bucks campaign encourages people to visit their local Community Action Program and increase their energy savings. They can make their homes more energy efficient, enroll in money-saving programs and stay warm this winter.

The gas and electric utilities offer discount rates and energy efficiency services to income eligible customers. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts offers fuel assistance with federal funding accessed through local Community Action Programs who also assist with the delivery of the energy efficient services. Energy Bucks creates one point of contact to ensure that eligible customers receive all appropriate services.

The Quincy Community Action Council operates the federally funded Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) in Quincy, providing assistance with heating bills for low-income households.

Energy Bucks is sponsored by Massachusetts Electric Company, NSTAR Electric & Gas, Unitil, Western Massachusetts Electric Company, Bay State Gas, KeySpan Energy Delivery and the Cape Light Compact, an energy efficiency organization, the Low-Income Energy Affordability Network (LEAN) and Massachusetts Association for Community Action (MASSCAP).

Eligibility for these programs is determined each year and varies by program and household size. A family of four with a weekly income below $900 qualifies for some Energy Bucks programs.



For more information about participating in Energy Bucks, residents can call toll-free 1-866-LESS COST (1-866-537-7267). They will be referred to a Community Action Program representative in their area who can answer questions and help them enroll in the programs for which they qualify.

THIS IS A HAMMER

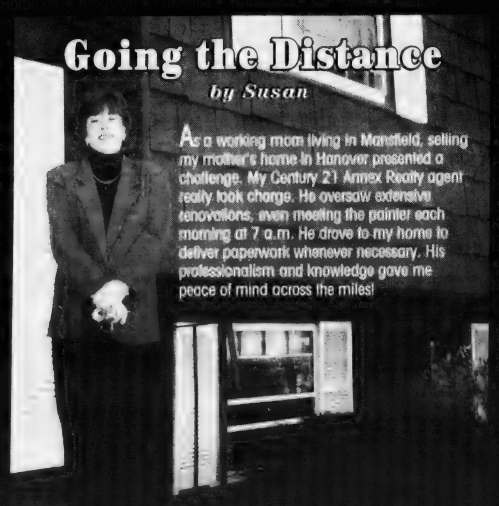
By Samantha Mazzotta

Sweaty House Is No Joke

Q. Our three-year-old, 3,000 square-foot house is sweating on the inside. The windows, the sheet-rock walls and some of the ceilings are dripping moisture. We are temporarily controlling this with a dehumidifier. We would like to know if there is a more effective or permanent way to control this problem.

It is a wood frame house with vinyl siding and 1/2-inch Styrofoam under the vinyl. The overhang is trimmed with soffits in which every other piece is vented. The roof is asphalt shingles with a continuous vent across the top. Inside the walls are 3 1/2 inches of R19 insulation, and the attic has 6 inches of R30 insulation. Do you have any suggestions? — Everett F., via e-mail

A. First, it's great that you've taken emergency measures so quickly to control the high humidity levels inside the house. Left unchecked, all that moisture in the walls and ceiling can lead to a serious mold problem. Second, finding the source (or sources) of the humidity and resolving the problem is a priority, and one you most likely need professional help with.



Humidity is constantly generated inside houses from a number of sources: daily showers, laundry and cooking, for example. In fact, a family of four can generate five pounds of water vapor in the home each day! All that moisture has to go somewhere, and if it can't exit the house, it will condense and drip down the ceiling, walls and windows.

To resolve this problem, you need to re-check the insulation and venting in the attic and along the roof, as well as the wall insulation, to ensure that vapor barriers were installed correctly. And, if you have a basement or crawlspace under the home, check to see if foundation vents were properly installed.

Look at other venting in the home, including dryer vents and stove exhaust fans (which should always be vented outside, not into the attic). If there are no exhaust fans in the bathroom, kitchen or laundry room, install them. Even small measures can make a difference, such as covering fish tanks and emptying radiator or refrigerator water pans frequently. If you have a fireplace, open the damper in winter to allow a free exchange of air. And, until the problem is resolved, keep running your dehumidifier and open two or three windows in the house — just a crack — to allow more moisture to escape.

Since your home is only three years old and the excess moisture presents a serious mold risk, resolving the problem and repairing any damage may be covered by warranty or insurance. Review options with your insurance representative.

Red Raiders Fall To Falmouth In OT

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School boys' basketball team let a win slip away last Friday night at home against Falmouth.

The Red Raiders held a four-point lead with just over a minute remaining, but Falmouth scored a basket near the buzzer to force overtime, where it pulled out a 62-59 victory.

They finished last week with a 1-2 mark, losing at Bridgewater-Raynham, 63-44, last Tuesday and beating Barnstable, 51-45, last Wednesday at home.

NQ (4-7 overall, 3-2 Atlantic Coast League), which was scheduled to play Sandwich Tuesday, will travel to Nauset tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30.

Trailing 29-28 at halftime, the Red Raiders stormed out of the break with a 16-6 run to grab a 44-36 lead with about nine minutes left in the game. Tied at 36-36, Imad Elkatrib factored in three straight hoops.

The junior guard drove to the basket for a layup, stole the ball and swooped in for another layup and created another turnover that led to a layup by junior point guard Kyle Costa. Junior forward Tom Power capped the run with a putback.

NQ led 55-51 when Falmouth hit two free throws with 52 seconds left in the game. On NQ's possession, it was forced to call a timeout with three seconds on the shot clock and 24 ticks in the game.

Costa hit the rim with his shot to reset the clock and hustled to grab the rebound. Falmouth fouled NQ with 13 seconds left but it missed the front-end of a one-and-one situation, giving the Clippers one more chance.

After calling a timeout with six seconds, Falmouth scored the equalizer as it fed the ball inside for any easy basket.

In overtime, junior forwards John Murray and Akil Benjamin scored the only points for the Red Raiders. Costa threw up a desperation shot at the buzzer before halfcourt that hit the backboard.

Costa scored a team-high 14 points, including four long-range three-pointers. Juniors Joe Howlett and Kevin Donovan each added 10 points and Elkatrib nine. Benjamin scored all eight of his points after the break.

Elizabeth Kelly, Colin Evans District Winners In Elks Nat'l Hoop Shoot Contest

The Quincy Lodge of Elks is the home of two district champions in the Elks National Hoop Shoot Free Throw Contest.

Elizabeth Kelly and Colin Evans, both Beechwood Knoll students, won the 8-9 age divisions in the recent Circle District Finals at Marshfield High School.

They will compete in the State Championship Saturday, Feb. 12, at Maynard High School. They will wear new warm-up suits with the Quincy #943 emblem, which were recently given to the youngsters by the Elks.

The Elks Hoop Shoot is a national contest that will end with six champions in three age groups. Over 3 million boys and girls compete annually in the event. The youngsters shoot 25 free throws at each level of competition, with ties broken with five-shot overtimes.

The Quincy youngsters were accompanied to the Circle District Finals by Lodge Exhaulted Ruler John McHugh, who is working with Lodge Hoop Shoot Chairman Ed Miller to ensure the best opportunities for the youngsters.

Locally, the youngsters qualified for the event at competitions supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department at programs in neighborhoods throughout Quincy. The Quincy Lodge has sponsored the event for over 25 years and provided trophies to all Quincy champions.

ELIZABETH KELLY and Colin Evans earned first-place trophies in the 8-9 age group at the recent Circle District Finals of the Elks National Hoop Shoot Free Throw Contest at Marshfield High School. They will compete in the State Championships Feb. 12.

Big Performances For Quincy, North Girls' Track

The North Quincy/Quincy girls' winter track team continues to come up with big performances and Invitational accolades.

At the Dartmouth Relays, featuring teams from all over the Northeast and Canada, Eileen Price took the lead with a lap to go in the mile and never looked back, running a personal best time of 5:28:2.

She ran in the unseeded morning sections, repeating her win of a year ago. Her last lap was 33 seconds.

"She looked very powerful," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "I've never seen her run with such control."

Other competitors were shot-putters Paula Morgan and Jackie Watkins.

At the Auerbach Freshman-Sophomore Invitational, Kelly Pineo placed second in the shot-put with teammate Rachel Barrett finishing fourth. Freshman Alex Nee took fourth in the high jump.

Other competitors included Eileen Ann, Kristin Newsom, Hailey Murphy, Tara McFarland, Kerry Regan, Rebecca Stanton, Meredith Palmer, Jessica Johnson and Christine Caples.

In an Atlantic Coast League contest against Mashpee and New Bedford, NQ/Q turned back the powerful Big 3 school with a win in the relay, 51-44, and beat Mashpee, 62-33.

Winners included Price (600 meters), Jenna Furey (1,000), Johnson (mile), Palmer (two mile), Morgan (shot-put), and the relay team of Price, Murphy, Ali Coughlin and Molly Griffin.

At the team Pentathlon, NQ/Q put in an "A" and "B" team and finished 11th and 12th, respectively, in a 24-team field.

Athletes on the "A" team were Lisa Tran (hurdles, 11.49), Kim Allen (high jump, 4'11.25"), Nancy Yee (long jump, 13'01"), Morgan (shot-put, 31'9") and Price (800, 2:29.6).

The "B" team included Nee (hurdles, 11.49), Stanton (high jump, 4'02"), Newsom (long jump, 13'05"), Pineo (shot-put, 30'02") and Regan (800, 2:38.2).

Recreation Dept. Offering Soccer Skills Programs

The Quincy Recreation Department will offer two soccer skills programs for girls as part of its expanded after-school and evening activities utilizing neighborhood school gyms during non-school hours.

The program, offered free to Quincy residents, will be held on two separate days and for two separate age groups. Both programs will be at the Lincoln Hancock Community School gym.

On Mondays beginning Jan. 24, the program is for girls in grades 5-7 from 6 to 8 p.m. On Thursdays beginning Jan. 27, the program is for girls in grades 8-11 from 6 to 8 p.m. The sessions will continue for eight weeks.

Registration will be held on the first night of each program and enrollment is limited. After the registration period there will be a full program of skills on the first night. Participants are asked to wear sneakers and appropriate gym attire.

Each program will feature activities and instruction designed to improve the fundamental soccer skills of each youngster. Participants will also take part in mini-games and contests.

The program will be directed by Don Martin, the head coach of the Quincy High School girls' soccer team, who will be assisted by members of the Recreation Department staff.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Squirt C's Second In Waterville Valley Tourney

The Quincy Squirt C travel hockey team finished second at the recent Deep Freeze Squirt Tournament in Waterville Valley, N.H.

Quincy lost to the Coastal Stars in the championship to conclude the four-day tournament. The entire team played well throughout the tourney.

Ice Skating Classes

Bay State Skating School's Learn-to-Skate program is on-going at the Quincy Shea MDC rink, Willard Street.

Classes are Fridays at 4 p.m. and Sundays at 11 a.m. The program is for children ages 5 and up and adults. Skaters wear figure or hockey skates. To register, call 781-890-8480.

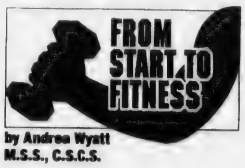
STALLED

A vehicle that stalls may have a problem with its charcoal canister-based fuel evaporative system. This system controls fuel emissions by collecting raw fuel vapors from the fuel tank and carburetor bowl. Air is drawn through the canister by engine intake manifold vacuum, and the hydrocarbon fumes are burned inside the engine instead of being released into the atmosphere. Generally, the emission system is trouble-free, but problems can develop when the air inlet to the canister becomes plugged. This air inlet acts as a vent for the fuel tank. When fuel flows out of the tank, air must be allowed to enter. Otherwise, a vacuum develops, and eventually, the fuel pump cannot pull anymore fuel out of the tank.



Is your car stalling or running rough? LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every maintenance and repair need. If you need us to look at most any system in your car or truck, including its emission control system, our ASE Certified service technicians have the skills to handle it. You'll find us located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: The problem described above will create a situation in which the vehicle seems to be out of fuel despite the fact that the fuel gauge says otherwise.

Making Big Lifestyle Changes

Q: This year I want to change my lifestyle. I haven't exercised in more 20 years, my diet needs to change and I need to lower my stress levels. I have some idea of what I need to do, but I'm not sure where to start. Can you help?

A. Lifestyle changes such as you have outlined can sometimes seem overwhelming. Let's take a look at each specific change you would like to make and try to develop a realistic plan of action.

If you haven't exercised for 20 years, I strongly urge you to begin by consulting your physician. He or she will make sure all is well with your heart, blood pressure, cholesterol, sugar levels, bones, joints and muscles. If you currently have any medical conditions, discuss these with your doctor in relation to exercise to see if any modifications need to be made.

Once your physician has cleared you, begin by taking one step at a time. Decide between starting an exercise program, developing proper nutritional habits or eliminating stressful situations from your current lifestyle. By focusing your time and energy on one task at a time, you'll be able to learn that task and see progress. As you become comfortable with the first task, you will find yourself motivated to tackle the other goals.

As you begin to set goals, allow for the time it will take for you to incorporate them into your schedule. For example, if one of your goals is to exercise three times a week, you need to find time within your schedule to make that happen. Continuing with your current schedule can allow for excuses that keep you from exercising.

Ask for professional assistance from a certified personal trainer, nutritionist or dietician. They will advise you how to safely get on track toward changing your lifestyle. Meeting with a professional can also help keep you accountable to your goals.

It's wonderful that you have decided to work toward a healthier lifestyle. Take one step at a time and be patient and persistent. You'll soon see the new you begin to emerge!

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Cold Weather Won't Stop The Sun's Rays

During the winter months, many people are more concerned with protecting their skin from the effects of the wind and cold weather than from the sun. But protecting skin from the sun's harmful ultraviolet radiation (UV rays) is a must all year-round.

UV rays cause skin cancer, the most common type of cancer in the United States — and they do not stop causing damage when the weather turns cold.

UV radiation is also reflected or scattered by different surfaces. Snow, for example, can reflect as much as 80 percent of UV radiation and UV levels increase significantly as altitude increases. Winter sports such as skiing can present UV exposure as intense as a day at the beach.

People taking winter cruises or tropical vacation should also use caution. Sand may reflect as much as 15 percent of UV rays and sea foam as much as 25 percent. While the sun may not climb as high during the winter months, UV levels are still strong during midday and the sun's intensity is highest near the equator.

Winter trips to tanning booths cause exposure to UV rays just as the sun does. In fact, a study by the National Cancer Institute found that using tanning booths more than once a month can increase the risk of getting skin cancer by 150 percent.

"Skin cancer, especially melanoma, can be deadly," says Lily Lai, M.D., skin cancer expert at City of Hope Cancer Center in Los Angeles. "Fortunately, skin cancers are preventable and highly curable if found and treated early."

Several risk factors increase the chance of skin cancer, but everyone is at risk of developing the disease. Some of these risk factors include: having fair skin that freckles easily; living in warm climates with increased sun exposure and/or high altitudes; occupational exposure, such as working outdoors; overall lifetime exposure to the sun; and having many moles.

Tips to protect your skin from harmful UV rays all year-round.

• Avoid exposure to midday sun, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. when UV rays are most dangerous.

• Use sunscreen with a sun protective factor (SPF) of 15 or higher whenever you spend time outdoors. Remember to reapply sunscreen every 1 to 1 1/2 hours.

• Wear protective clothing such as hats and long-sleeved shirts that block the sun's rays.

• Protect young children from the sun's rays. The damaging effects of UV radiation can begin in childhood.

• Be careful when taking certain medications that may cause the skin to burn more easily. Check with your doctor or pharmacist to determine if your medication could be a problem.

• Avoid sun lamps and tanning booths.

"Having a tan, natural or artificial, is a sign that the skin has already been damaged," says Dr. Lai. "Since tanning booths expose you to ultraviolet rays just as the sun does, using a sunless tanning lotion is the best way to add color without damaging your skin."

Exercising With Pets: A Recipe For Weight Loss

(NAPS)—If your weight loss program is going to the dogs, there could be good news: A study called People and Pets Exercising Together (P-PET) found people and their pets are both more successful in staying with a weight loss program when they exercise together.

The news comes at a time when experts say more than 60 percent of Americans and 30 million cats and dogs in the U.S. are overweight. If you and your four-footed friend need to shed a few pounds, try these tips:

• Talk with an expert: Be sure to talk with a doctor before starting a weight loss program, and make sure you speak with a veterinarian before putting your dog or cat on one.

• Progress, not perfection: Set realistic goals for you and your pet. If your pet is 25 percent overweight, it will probably take one-quarter of a year to reach his target weight. Similarly, healthy weight loss in humans takes time. Measure your progress in small victories, not sweeping changes.

• Reward success, but not with food: If you lose a few pounds, treat yourself to a movie or show. If you lose a few more, buy yourself a new outfit — just don't reverse your success by indulging in unhealthy behavior. Similarly, reward your pet with praise, not food. It's also a good idea to keep him out of the kitchen while you cook. That way you won't be tempted to toss him some scraps.

• Pace, don't race: Eating slowly can help you eat less and still feel satisfied. It takes 15 minutes or longer for your brain to get the message that you are full. When you feed your overweight pet, try not to do it at the same time that you feed your other pets. That will make it easier to keep an eye on how much he eats.

Dogs in the P-PET study were fed a low-fat, nutritionally-balanced food, Hill's Prescription Diet Canine r/d, which is specially formulated to help dogs lose weight while keeping them feeling satisfied. Over the course of a year, the people and pets in the study dined together, exercised together and hit the scales together.

The dogs shed an average of 12 pounds — or 15 percent of their initial body weight — and their owners lost an average of 11 pounds — 5 percent of their initial body weight. Doctors say the owners gained something as well: The motivation to stick to specific diet and exercise strategies with their dogs and succeed at weight loss for the long term.

If you are interested in getting involved in the P-PET program, visit www.petfit.com or speak with your veterinarian.

What To Feed A Cold

(NAPS) – Chicken soup and hot tea are important and legitimate medical treatments, according to ear, nose and throat specialists. They help the cilia – microtubules found on the surface of the nose, throat and lung cells – move more quickly. Menthol vapors also act on the cilia to produce a cool, clearing sensation.

The primary purpose of cilia is to move fluid around, mucus or cells over surfaces within the respiratory passage. The quicker they move, the better they defend the respiratory system against contagious illnesses.

One prescription for morning sneezing and coughing is chicken soup in bed. Soothing soup and hot tea under blankets helps the sneezing and coughing caused by a sensitivity of the body to cold before activity.

A safe, natural way to temporarily refresh nasal passages and soothe stuffy noses with a pleasant, invigorating, aromatic action is to use an Ayr Mentholated Vapor Inhaler. Learn more a www.bfascher.com.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

One of the quickest, safest, and most conservative ways to improve a smile is through dental contouring, or tooth reshaping. This procedure corrects crooked teeth, chipped teeth, and sometimes overlapping teeth. Dental contouring may even be a substitute for braces under certain circumstances. The procedure involves the use of a sanding drill to artfully remove minute amounts of tooth enamel gradually, to attain the desired shape or eliminate any unwanted characteristic. The dentist will likely mark the teeth with a pencil prior to the procedure to outline the work. As the teeth are sculpted, imperfections are eliminated or minimized. Finally, the teeth are smoothed and polished. Anesthetic is usually not needed.

During the consultation, you and your dentist will discuss the changes that you would like to make in your appearance. We can help you regain that bright white smile. Please call us at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Help is available through cosmetic dentistry. You will feel more confident when you can freely smile whenever you want. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you'll find that our staff is knowledgeable, friendly, and accommodating. We're confident that you will be pleased with our professionalism and high standards. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. It is common to combine bonding with tooth contouring to achieve a beautiful smile.

Meeting Sunday At First Church Of Squantum

Star Of The Sea Parishioners Urge Archdiocese To Compromise

The Friends of Star of the Sea Committee will host another "town meeting" Sunday, Jan. 30 at 2 p.m. in the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Road.

The purpose of the meeting is to establish the agenda of this organization as it continues its mission to convince Archbishop Sean O'Malley that Star of the Sea church should be reopened as a worship space.

Star of the Sea Parish was suppressed on Oct. 24, 2004. The Friends of Star of the Sea organization was formed on Nov. 4, 2004 after the external review committee on reconfiguration was created by Archbishop O'Malley.

Friends of Star of the Sea was formed to establish a dialogue with the external review committee and shed new light on a five-year-old proposal to make Star of the Sea a mission church of one of its sub-cluster parishes.

"We were ready to become a mission church five years ago, and we would like to be given an opportunity to prove that we can make it work," said Maureen Mazrimas, former vice-chairperson of Star of the Sea's Parish Pastoral Council.

"We would like the Archdiocese to reconsider this proposal because it's a win-win solution for both the Archdiocese and the heartbroken parishioners of this community," said Mazrimas.

"All we are asking for is fairness," said Sean Glennon, co-chairperson of the Friends of Star of the Sea. "Our mission proposal is extremely reasonable. It would allow us to celebrate Sunday Mass without having a priest in residence.

"This is exactly the kind of resource-sharing that Archbishop O'Malley called for when reconfiguration began," Glennon said.

"Furthermore, several other churches have remained open as worship spaces," said Glennon. "This is obviously an arrangement that Archbishop O'Malley is willing to consider, and we have new information which we believe will convince Archbishop O'Malley to reopen Star of the Sea as a worship space."

The Friends of Star of the Sea Committee has called for meetings with both, Archbishop O'Malley, and the external review committee on reconfiguration.

In preparation for these meetings, the Friends of Star of the Sea will continue their discussions about the possibility of filing litigation in order to save the church.

"Due to the new information we've received, litigation shouldn't be necessary," Glennon said. "We want to resolve this situation as amicably as humanly possible, and with Archbishop Sean's help, we can work together to rebuild God's church."

Mardi Gras Celebration At St. Chrysostom

The Parish Church of St. Chrysostom, 1 Linden St. (off Hancock St.), Wollaston, invites the public to a Mardi Gras celebration Tuesday, Feb. 8.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

WHAT IS MATURITY? Many quotes come to mind. . . "When you can sense your concern for others outweighing your concern for yourself." "A frank acceptance of barren realities." "Implies otherness. . . the art of living with." . . . One of the best we have come across is by Dr. William C. Menninger. He said that the criteria of emotional maturity are:

Having the ability to deal constructively with reality.

Having the capacity to adapt to change.

Having a relative freedom of symptoms that are produced by tensions and anxieties.

Having the capacity to relate to other people in a consistent manner with mutual satisfaction and helpfulness.

Having the capacity to sublimate, to direct one's instinctive hostile energy into creative and constructive outlets.

Having the capacity to love.

Having the capacity to find more satisfaction in giving than in receiving.

We at the Deware Family Funeral Home would like to thank the many readers who have taken the time to phone us or write us about these articles. It is most appreciated. . .

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Mixed signals could create problems. Make sure your views are presented clearly, and insist others do the same. Don't let an unanswered question go by without a full explanation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Financial pressures ease, allowing for more budget flexibility. But as the money-wise Bovine will appreciate, thrift still beats out splurging. Expect news from someone special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Getting things done is what you do so well. But be careful not to overtax your energy reserves. Take time out to relax or to do something different to help keep them at optimum levels.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is a good time to satisfy the Moon Child's growing sense of wanderlust. Choose a really special place to go to, with a very special person to share it all with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You love being in the spotlight. But be careful it doesn't blind you to the truth behind a seemingly wonderful opportunity. Look closer and you might be sadly surprised at what you find.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Isn't it time to take a break from your hectic schedule? Sure it is. And the sooner you do, the sooner you can return fresh and more than ready to take on all those new projects.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent family incident can help bring everyone closer, and there's no one who's better at making that happen than you. Accept (indeed, insist on!) help from others to get things off and running.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Long-held habits are often difficult to break. But the change from how you always did things to how you can do them now can be liberating. So, be flexible and give it a try.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Someone you met in your professional world last year and thought you would never hear from again could make a sudden reappearance in your life, along with an interesting job offer.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Once again, you delight everyone by coming up with a solution for a problem that actually works. On another note, it's not too early to get started on those travel plans.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Before you go ahead with finalizing your plans for your new project, check them over to see if you can make some improvements or if you can find ways to cut costs.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The Fabulous Fish might have been out of the social swim for too long, and it's time you plunge back in. Reinforce your old friendships and be open to starting new ones.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your creative talents help bring beauty to the world and the people in it. On their behalf, thank you.

James P. Saunders, 92

Former Owner of Murphy's Restaurant

A funeral Mass for James P. "Jay" Saunders, 92, of Plymouth, a former restaurant owner and Quincy city employee, was celebrated Jan. 22 at St. Bonaventure's Church, 799 State Rd., Plymouth.

He died Jan. 18 at Mayflower Nursing and Rehabilitation Center.

Mr. Saunders owned and operated Murphy's Restaurant in Quincy Center for 30 years. He worked for the City of Quincy, before and after running the restaurant, until he retired.

He sang and played bass in the Jay Saunders Orchestra, which was popular throughout Greater Boston during the 1940s, 1950s and 1960s.

An avid sportsman, he enjoyed flying, sailing, hunting, fishing and golfing, as well as playing football, baseball, pool and cards.

Mr. Saunders recently completed more than 5,000 hours of volunteer work at Jordan Hospital in Plymouth. He was also a member of the Knights of Columbus, Elks, John Alden Sportsman's Club and the Bonnie Seniors at St. Bonaventure Church.

A resident of Plymouth for more than 20 years, he previously lived in New Bedford and Maine.

Husband of 54 years of the late Viola (Luisi) Saunders, he is survived by his sister, Kay Stanton of Atlanta, and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Arrangements were made by Richard Davis Funeral Home, Plymouth.

Democrats To Hold Caucus In Ward 2

Registered Democrats in Quincy's Ward 2 will hold a caucus at the Fore River Club House, 10 Nevada Rd., on Saturday, Feb. 12 at 10 a.m. to elect 12 delegates and 6 alternates to the 2005 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Delegates will be equally divided between men and women.

The convention, which will be held Saturday, May 14 at the Tsongas Arena in Lowell, will focus on energizing grassroots activists, as well as attracting young people into the Democratic Party. This reformatted convention will offer a range of public policy discussions, professional campaign training and special forums which will highlight issues of concern to young people.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Quincy's Ward 2. Candidates for delegate and alternate must consent to nomination in writing. All candidates may make a two-minute presentation and may distribute materials on their behalf. All ballots will be written and secret.

Those not elected as delegate and alternate, who meet the qualifications, may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority and disabled.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, sexual orientation or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited. Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 10 Granite St., Quincy, MA 02169 no later than 10 days after the caucus date.

For more information, contact the Democratic State Committee at 617-472-0637.

NQHS Senior Stay-Out Fundraiser Feb. 3

Roche Brothers Supermarket is promoting substance-free parties for high school seniors by donating funds based on cash receipts collected on Thursday, Feb. 3 from 5 to 8 p.m.

Volunteers from the North Quincy High School Senior Stay-Out 2005 Committee will be collecting cash register receipts at the Quincy Roche Brothers Supermarket at Falls Blvd. The supermarket will donate five percent of the total cash register receipts collected to support after-prom parties.

Residents can also purchase gift certificates during these hours at the Quincy store. They will be credited to the NQHS Senior Stay-Out.

Free Charitable Gift Annuity Seminar At Quincy Medical Center Feb. 3

Quincy Medical Center will host a free Charitable Gift Annuity Seminar Thursday, Feb. 3 from 2 to 3 p.m. at 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy.

Charitable Gift Annuities (CGA) provide donors with a guaranteed fixed annual income for life, as well as the potential for charitable tax deductions and reduced probate and estate costs.

Featured speakers include Thomas F. Williams, Esquire, a Quincy attorney specializing in real estate conveyance and estate planning, and Charles B. Gordy, III, managing director and division dead of Planned Giving Services for The Bank of New York.

To register for the free seminar, call 617-376-5495.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services.

The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community. At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine, and psychiatry.

Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work with community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

For Outstanding Community Service

Frank McCauley Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Francis X. McCauley, who rose from Houghs Neck clamdigger to serve Quincy in an historic and distinguished political career, is The Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year for 2004.

McCauley, now 75 and in the 32nd and final year of that career, was selected by a panel of judges from among 44 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

The four-term mayor and present City Council president is the 20th recipient of the annual award for outstanding community service.

He is only the second political figure to be selected. The late Paul Harold was honored posthumously in 2002.

McCauley is the only person in the city's history to be elected (and re-elected) to all four municipal elective offices: mayor, councillor at-large, ward council and school committee.

During the years, he established a reputation as a tight-fisted, no-nonsense chief executive while mayor and a fiscal watchdog as a member of the City Council.

And as both mayor and city councillor, he has been known for calling them as he sees them — never afraid to make an unpopular stand on an issue even though it might cost him votes or alienate some constituents.

And during those years of public service, he also found time to participate in many charitable causes. Among them six 26.2 mile Jimmy Fund Marathon Walks personally raising $34,000. And, to date, donating 129 pints (16 gallons) of blood to the Red Cross.

CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT Frank McCauley, selected as The Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year for his long public service, is shown in his office at City Hall. He is retiring at the end of this year, his 32nd as an elected official.

The Sun award will be presented to McCauley at a reception in April at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

"I am very honored," he said when informed by Sun publisher Henry Bosworth that he had been selected as the recipient. "This is a most prestigious award and I am honored to be in the company of the outstanding past recipients."

Bosworth congratulated McCauley and also the other nominees.

"Being nominated is an honor in itself," he said. "Again this year we had a number of outstanding nominees who impressed the judging panel."

McCauley was nominated by Marilyn Cadogan of North Quincy and his eight colleagues on the city council: Kevin Coughlin, Jay Davis, Joseph Finn, Alicia Gardner, Doug Gutro, John Keenan, Leo Kelly and Daniel Raymondi.

His colleagues pointed to his long service and accomplishments in office and noted:

"In a political career that has spanned five decades, Frank McCauley established a well deserved reputation for honesty, integrity and fiscal responsibility. Whether one agrees or disagrees with his policies and positions, it is difficult to argue that Francis X. McCauley has not left an indelible mark on the city of Quincy."

Marilyn Cadogan, in her nomination, said of McCauley:

"He has dedicated his life to serving the people of Quincy, always with honesty and integrity. As he approaches retirement, he deserves a 'well done' from those he has served."

McCauley, a political history buff, is also an author.

A Republican, McCauley was asked by then Mayor James Sheets, a Democrat, to write a political history of Quincy for the city's millennium celebration in 2000. Sheets obviously trusted him to keep it straight.

McCauley researched

Storm Cleanup Costs Top $1M

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Costs associated with the city's storm cleanup efforts have topped $1 million for the current winter season, according to city officials.

And February, traditionally New England's snowiest month, has just begun.

Last week alone the city spent approximately $800,000 mopping up after two storms - a monstrous blizzard and a midweek blast - dropped up to three feet of snow in Quincy.

"It is safe to say we are well over $1 million at this point," said DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell. "We have been hauling snow, clearing major roadways and opening up sidewalks for more than a week now."

Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide, supported those numbers, but cautioned that the winter is far from over.

"It's been a wallop so far," said Murphy. "But we still have another six weeks of winter."

Traditionally, the city budgets $300,000 to pick up the costs associated with storm cleanup. Murphy said the city will be looking to defray some of the costs by applying for federal relief when it becomes available.

Costs beyond that will be picked up by the city, he said.

"We are hopeful that we will be able to recover a significant percentage of the costs, and we have instructed our department heads to make sure they keep the necessary records and paperwork so we will be ready to take advantage of the reimbursement," said Murphy. "Once the snow season is over we will have to identify the funding sources accordingly."

O'Donnell thanked DPW crews for their efforts in tackling one of the worst storms ever to hit Quincy.

"Our crews worked around the clock to ensure that streets were cleared and safe for passage," he said. "I want to thank the residents for their patience and cooperation as we recovered from one of the biggest one-week snowfalls in 114 years of re

Extending School Year To June 27 A Possibility

Decision Due At End Of Month On Making Up Snow Days

Public school officials will make a decision at the end of February as to how students will make up snow days, according to school committee member Elaine Dwyer.

Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro will recommend a course of action at the end of the month, and the school committee will vote on the plan, she said.

To date, students have used six snow days, one in December and five during the recent blizzard.

"We have a few options at this point," said Dwyer. "But I think it's a good idea to wait until the end of February before a decision is made."

February is traditionally the snowiest month in New England so more snow days

City Sets Up 'Pothole Hotline'

Mayor William Phelan urges residents to report problem potholes by calling the DPW's "Pothole Hotline" at 617-376-1914.

Requests for pothole repairs and all other city services can be made by visiting the Office of Constituent Services link on the City of Quincy's webpage, www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

"After a tough stretch of winter weather, we anticipate potholes becoming a problem this time of year," said Phelan. "We have dedicated the personnel and resources to address this problem and we request residents' help in reporting potholes so we can correct any problems as quickly as possible."

The second phase of the mayor's pavement management plan will commence in late winter and early spring, according to city officials. The first phase of the plan got underway this past fall.

"Our pro-active work to address our aging roadways is showing immediate benefits, but I recognize that we still have work to do," said Phelan. "I appreciate the residents' cooperation as we work to fix problem potholes and improve our roadways."

$2.1M Settlement; $1.2M Gifted To City

City, Owners Reach Agreement On Dickinson Property

The city and owners of the Dickinson property on East Squantum St. have reached a $2.1 million settlement which resolves litigation against the City of Quincy.

Mayor William Phelan and Donald and Anita Dickinson have reached a $2.1 million settlement, of which $1.2 million of the value of the parcel will be gifted to the city. The property was taken by eminent domain by the city in June, 2000.

The Dickinsons contested the city's original taking price of $525,000.

A portion of the settlement will be paid for through the city's hotel/motel tax account, according to the mayor's office.

"We are pleased with the resolution to this matter," said Phelan. "The city protected an important piece of open space habitat and protected Marina Bay from further development."

Phelan thanked the Dickinsons for their cooperation on that matter. "We are grateful to the Dickinson family for working toward a cooperative solution," he said.

Two Killed, Four Others Injured

Safety Officials Investigating Cause Of Shipyard Accident

Safety officials are investigating the cause of last week's accident at the former Fore River shipyard which killed two workers.

A piece of the gantry once used to build ships tumbled into a turret fabrication building on Jan. 26, killing two workers and injuring four others who were inside removing asbestos.

The Norfolk County District Attorney's office identified the victims as Elvis Munoz, 44, of Lawrence and David P. May, 36, of Manchester, N.H.

The Quincy portion of the gantry was demolished Nov. 30. The Braintree side of the gantry was expected to come down at the same time, but was delayed because a permit was not issued at the time.

Braintree issued a permit on Dec. 16 allowing demolition of the gantry and the turret fabrication building.

The gantry is a large framework that holds various types of cranes and sits on the Quincy-Braintree line.

The U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) is investigating the accident, but officials said it could be weeks or months before any conclusions are revealed. Safety officials said they did not know what caused steel beams from the gantry to come crashing down on the old turret fabrication building Wednesday morning.

A pile of rubble, debris and twisted metal could still be seen at the yard this week.

Braintree building inspector Robert Galewski said he found no obvious problems with the structure's stability. But he also said it was up to the contractor, Testa Corp. of Lynnfield, to have a structural engineer assess safety at the site and make sure the remaining part of the gantry was not damaged in the initial demolition.

If Galewski found concerns about a structure he can order it torn down.

The demolition of the gantry is one of owner Dan Quirk's plans to launch a new shipping operation at the yard. Quirk wants to fill in two dry docks, once used to repair ships, allowing cargo ships to access an adjacent berth.

Quirk bought the shipyard at auction, but Testa purchased the gantry and is responsible for dismantling it.

Clear Snow From Exits, Fire Dept. Urges

The Quincy Fire Department reminds store owners and residents to clear snow of storefronts and property exits.

An exit discharge is that portion of an exit outside of the exit door to free and unobstructed egress from the building, according to fire officials. Exits should be free of snow or any other obstruction, said fire officials.

"Access to an exit door with proper signage is of no use to an occupant or patron in the event of an emergency if it cannot in fact be opened and used," said Fire Capt. Thomas Lyons.

Local SEABEES Activated For Iraq

Naval Reservists assigned to the Northeast Region's Naval Mobile Construction Battalion (SEABEES) 27 are being called to active duty as part of the mobilization for Operation: Iraqi Freedom, it was announced recently.

A significant portion of these Reservists resides in Quincy, Brockton, Hingham, Hull, Canton and Boston.

The mission of the Naval Mobile Construction Battalion is the construction and defense of infrastructure for Marines deployed in support of the Iraq War. SEABEES have traditionally been involved with rebuilding projects and humanitarian efforts.

Last week, the Naval Reserve Center hosted a pre-mobilization brief for local SEABEES assigned to the Quincy location, 85 Sea St.

Topics covered included medical/dental benefits and family support services.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 6, 1820, the first organized immigration of freed slaves to Africa from the United States departs New York harbor on a journey to Freetown, Sierra Leone, in West Africa. The immigration was largely the work of the American Colonization Society, which later founded the colony of Liberia south of Sierra Leone.

• On Feb. 1, 1898, the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., becomes the first company to issue an automobile insurance policy to an individual. Dr. Truman J. Martin of Buffalo, N.Y., paid a premium of $11.25 for the policy that covered $5,000 to $10,000 of liability.

• On Feb. 5, 1937, President Franklin Roosevelt announces a controversial plan to expand the Supreme Court to as many as 15 judges, allegedly to make it more efficient. Critics charged that Roosevelt was trying to "pack" the court and thus neutralize justices hostile to his New Deal.

• On Feb. 4, 1941, the United Service Organization, a civilian agency, is founded to offer support for U.S. service members and their families. The USO is best known for sending actors, musicians and other performers to entertain U.S. troops.

• On Feb. 3, 1959, rock stars Buddy Holly, Ritchie Valens and J.P. "The Big Bopper" Richardson are killed when their chartered airplane crashes in Iowa minutes after takeoff. Holly, 22, had just scored a No. 1 hit, "That'll Be the Day," while Valens, 17, also had hits with "Donna" and "La Bamba."

• On Feb. 2, 1982, David Letterman's offbeat late-night talk show debuts. A favorite of college students, the show aired after Johnny Carson's "The Tonight Show."

• On Jan. 31, 1990, the Soviet Union's first McDonald's fast-food restaurant opens in Moscow, and throngs of people line up to pay the equivalent of several days' wages for Big Macs, shakes and french fries. An American journalist reported the customers seemed most amazed at the "simple sight of polite shop workers."

Mayoral Snap Shots

Mayor William Phelan, if he has an opponent, will have history on his side in his bid for a third term this year.

Incumbent mayors do pretty well when it comes to running for re-election.

PHELAN

Since 1917 when Quincy adopted the present Plan A form of government, 13 mayors have run for re-election a total of 29 times.

For 23 wins and only six losses.

The last incumbent to lose, of course, was James Sheets who was upset by Phelan by 17 votes in 2001 in the city's closest mayoral election.

SHEETS

Sheets, ironically, holds the record for re-election victories with five. And his six terms (12 years) as mayor makes him the mayoral longevity champ under Plan A.

Amelio Della Chiesa also served 12 years as mayor, eight under Plan A and four under Plan E.

Under Plan E the mayor was actually a city councillor elected by his council colleagues. He was like the city council president, conducting the council meeting, appointing committees and was also the city greeter.

The chief executive of the city was a city manager who was also elected by the council.

Seven mayors rang up 16 re-election victories without a defeat:

Joseph Whiton (1), Charles Ross (3), Thomas Burgin (3), Amelio Della Chiesa (3), James McIntyre (2), Arthur Tobin (1), Frank McCauley (3).

Five other mayors who lost re-elections were William Bradford, Gustave Bates, Thomas McGrath, Walter Hannon and Joseph LaRaia.

BARBOUR

McGrath and Hannon each won and lost a re-election. Bradford, Bates and LaRaia were defeated after one term.

Perley Barbour served one term in 1925-1926 and apparently decided that was enough. He's the only Quincy mayor to serve just one term and walk away from the mayor's office.

A GOOD MAYOR'S race is usually seen as the main bout in a city election and the main reason for a good voter turnout.

But the Sheets-Phelan clash in 2001 didn't live up to expectations as a voter magnet. A 61 to 63 percent turnout was forecast but only 47 percent of the registered voters actually made it to the polls.

The Sheets camp, many think, just failed to get their supporters out. Perhaps, because Sheets with six terms under his belt had become somewhat of a winning habit in the eyes of voters who felt, "Oh, he doesn't need my vote." And stayed home.

The Phelan camp, on the other hand, got out their vote and with endorsements by McCauley and the late Paul Harold, it all added up to a stunning 17-vote upset.

The last good voter turnout was 60.6 percent in 1989 when Sheets won the mayor's office over Peter O'Connell.

They had set the stage for a voter attracting showdown after eliminating former Mayor LaRaia and Councillor Steve McGrath in a hard-hitting preliminary runoff that year.

But that 1989 turnout didn't come close to the one 30 years earlier. That was the 1959 battle between veteran and popular incumbent Amelio Della Chiesa and James McIntyre, the young (29) and popular city council president. That one brought out 79 percent of the voters.

McINTYRE

DELLA CHIESA

Della Chiesa won that one by 2,117 votes — 17,650 to 15,533. McIntyre later rose to political stardom.

That vote was a whopper compared to Phelan's 12,355 and Sheets' 12,338 in 2001.

WHICH MAYOR CLIMBED the highest on the political ladder? You would have to say Charles Francis Adams.

ADAMS

The city's fourth mayor (1896-97), Adams went on to serve as Secretary of the Navy under President Herbert Hoover from 1929 to 1933.

But, of course, he had a pretty well known name going for him as a direct descendant of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams.

ONLY ONE OF Quincy's mayors has died in office.

John Miller took office in 1914 when the mayoral term was only one year and was soon diagnosed with cancer.

MILLER

Under the city charter back then, a special election would be called if a mayor for some reason vacated the office before the last 90 days of his term.

In Miller's case, if he died or had to leave office before Oct. 5, a special election would have to be called to elect his successor.

Miller obviously was a conscientious, dedicated individual.

Frank McCauley writes about Miller's "deathbed wish" in his Political History of Quincy.

"As he lay dying," McCauley says, "he wished he could live long enough to spare the city the cost of a special election."

And, he did.

Miller, who was only 60, lived to Oct. 6, beating the special election requirement by a day.

City Council President Joseph Whiton who would later become mayor himself, finished out the remaining days of Miller's term.

"Imagine," McCauley says in admiration, "lying there dying and thinking of just living long enough to save the city money."

That's really going above and beyond — far above and beyond — the call of duty.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1925 postcard reproduction of the Quincy Rotary Club's float in the Quincy Tercentennial Parade. The parade was a celebration of the 300th anniversary of Quincy's first settlement at Mount Wollaston. It drew 140,000 spectators when the city's population was only about 50,000. This prize-winning entry was one of 182 floats in the parade. The large gear rotated as the self-powered float moved forward. Standing in front of the gear with the straw hat was John "Joe" Quinn, president of the Quincy Rotary Club in 1925. He was the superintendent of the Citizens Gas Light Company's plant and storage-tank yard on Brackett Street near the old canal. The Rotary motto on the side of the float: "He Profits Most, Who Serves Best," was unchanged until last year when the gender specific terminology was removed to read: "They Profit Most, Who Serve Best." Today this has become a secondary motto of Rotary since its more widely used motto is: "Service Above Self." Organized in 1922, the Quincy Rotary Club is one of over 31,000 Rotary service clubs in 166 countries around the world. This year, 2005, the club's parent organization, Rotary International, has elaborate plans to celebrate the Centennial of its founding. The City of Quincy, on the other hand, will not likely be doing much to celebrate its 380th anniversary. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

MEMA Offers Extreme Cold Weather Safety Tips

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency offers precautions to take to minimize the dangers of current extremely low temperatures.

Agency Director Cristine McCombs lists the following cold weather tips:

• Be aware of the weather conditions by monitoring the media.

• Minimize outside activities, particularly the elderly and very young. Also consider your pets.

• Dress in several layers of loose-fitting, lightweight clothing, rather than a single layer of heavy clothing. Outer garments should be tightly woven and water repellent. Wear a hat, mittens and sturdy waterproof boots, protecting your extremities. Cover your mouth with a scarf to protect your lungs.

• Excessive exposure can lead to frostbite, which is damage to body tissue that is frozen. Frostbite causes a loss of feeling and a pale appearance in extremities, such as fingers, toes, ear lobes or the tip of the nose. If symptoms are detected, seek medical help immediately. Slowly re-warm the affected areas as you await medical assistance.

• Hypothermia can occur in extreme cases. The warning signs are uncontrollable shivering, memory loss, disorientation, incoherence, slurred speech, drowsiness and apparent exhaustion. If the person's temperature drops below 95 degrees, seek immediate medical care. If medical assistance is not available, slowly warm up the person, body core first, wrapping them in a blanket or using your own body heat. Do not warm the extremities first, for this drives the cold blood towards the heart and can lead to heart failure. Do not give the person alcohol, coffee, tea or any other hot food or beverage. Warm liquids are best.

• If electricity is lost for an extended period of time, a snowbank in your yard can become a makeshift freezer for food.

• Ensure you have sufficient heating fuel, as well as emergency heating equipment in case you lose electricity.

• When utilizing alternate heating sources, such as your fireplace, wood stove or space heater, take the necessary safety precautions. Keep a fire extinguisher handy, ensuring everyone knows how to use it properly. Test smoke alarms.

• If you lose your heat, seal off unused rooms by stuffing towels in the cracks under the doors. At night, cover windows with extra blankets or sheets. Food provides the body with energy for producing its own heat.

• Check with elderly or disabled relatives and neighbors to ensure their safety.

• Allow a trickle of hot and cold water to run from a faucet that is farthest from your water meter or one that has frozen in the past. This will keep the water moving so that it cannot freeze. Learn how to shut off your water if a pipe bursts.

• Have a well-stocked winter home emergency supply kit that includes flashlights, portable radio, extra batteries, a first aid kit, bottled water and non-perishable food.

• Make sure your car is properly winterized. Keep the gas tank at least half full. Carry a winter survival kit in the trunk including blankets, extra clothing, flashlight with spare batteries, a can and waterproof matches (to melt snow for drinking water), non-perishable foods, windshields scraper, shovel, sand tow rope and jumper cables.

South Shore Council Of Churchs Formed

This Week
1966
39 Years Ago

A new South Shore Council of Churches was formed this week to replace both the Quincy Council of Churches and the South Shore Federation of Churches.

Seventeen of the 26 churches in Quincy attended the organizational meeting at Quincy Point Congregational Church which named Dr. Edward Mann as its first president.

The new council that includes churches from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Milton would assume the work of the former church council and federation, including chaplaincies at the hospitals and the district court.

Formal membership in the new council would be voted by each church at its annual meeting.

WASHINGTON ST. GAS STATION OPPOSED

For the second time in less than three months, the license board heard support and opposition for plans to build a service station at the corner of Washington St. and Southern Artery.

Applicants Exchange Realty, Duane Realty and Frank Brezniak wanted to build an AMOCO station at 476-486 Washington St. and 5 Baxter St. The two-bay garage would replace the existing block of stores.

Councillor Clifford Marshall led the residents' opposition to the station noting while everyone agreed that the existing block of stores were in bad condition, a garage was not the answer.

"With 17 gas stations, within 1 1/2 miles we are already called gasoline alley," he said.

Among those speaking in opposition were pharmacy proprietor Abraham Slobodkin.

INCREASE IN POLICE BUDGET

Mayor James McIntyre announced an addition of $132,000 to the police budget to add two additional cars and four new patrolmen. He said the additional manpower would allow for the experimentation with one-man cruisers.

Police Chief William Ferrazzi has asked for 12 new men and four new cruisers to supplement the five district cruisers that were in around-the-clock service.

With the mayor's added monies, the total monies for the department were a record $1.5 million.

'Blizzard Of '78' Slide Presentation Feb. 8

A narrated slide presentation of the "Worst Storm of the Century" will be presented Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Michael Tougias, author of "The Blizzard of '78," combines a unique array of photographs with his narration. The free event is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

On Feb. 6 and 7, 1978, New England was knocked to its knees by incredible snow and wind. Tougias chronicles the period before the storm, then follows its progression, which caused commuter nightmares and incredible devastation.

From Cape Cod to Connecticut, Tougias explains how people survived the storm by spending up to 48 hours in their cars and how coastal homes were first torn from foundations then smashed to smithereens by giant waves.

He also recalls the lighter side of the storm, including neighborhood parties, cross-country skiing down major highways and the way people helped total strangers stranded by the storm.

Tougias is the author of 15 books about New England's history and natural history. His outdoor humor/adventure book, "There's a Porcupine in My Outhouse!," won the Independent Publisher's Award for the "Best Nature Book of 2003."

For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Eastern Bank Donates $6,500 To Quincy Salvation Army

Eastern Bank employees raised $6,500 to benefit needy families in Quincy this holiday season through its annual Salvation Army fundraiser.

The bank's fundraising committee sponsored several fundraisers this fall, including a bake sale and pie auction, and drawings for everything from gift baskets to one extra week of vacation. Employees also participated in the fifth annual "Jeans Day," with more than 500 employees donating at least $5 each to wear jeans to work.

Jann Alden, manager of Eastern's branch in Wollaston, presented the $6,500 donation to Major Doug Jones of the Salvation Army in Quincy.

The following Eastern employees served on the fundraising committee: Cindy Bentz, Mary Ellen Browne, Elaine Burke, Jason Cronin, Edie DeFreitas, Christine Gomes, Marilyn Goodwin, Eileen Gridley, Jeanne Harper, Beverly Hoey, Teda Maes, Anna Tollis and Marsha Trott.

JANN ALDEN of Eastern Bank presents a donation of $6,500 to Major Doug Jones of the Salvation Army in Quincy.

Founded in 1818, Eastern Bank is the largest independent, mutually owned commercial bank in New England. With $5.1 billion in assets and 55 branches in Greater Boston, Eastern offers a full range of financial products for consumers, businesses, investors, government agencies and non-profit organizations.

$2.1 Million In HUD Grants Earmarked For Housing Services

The Quincy/Weymouth Consortium has been awarded $2,132,925 under the 2004 McKinney Program administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, announces Mayor William Phelan.

The funds awarded will assist agencies located throughout Quincy and Weymouth in providing housing and services for the homeless.

Here is a breakdown of the new grants:

• Supportive Housing Program - $713,475. This new project with the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) as project sponsor creates a permanent supportive housing program that will move 25 chronic homeless individuals directly from shelter and/or streets into SRO housing.

Supportive services will be provided by a network of agencies including employment services, substance abuse treatment, support groups, mental health case management, and educational services.

• Supportive Housing Program - $661,500. This new project with the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) as project sponsor creates a permanent supportive housing program that will move eight homeless families directly from shelter and/or the streets into permanent supportive housing.

Once housing is located, supportive services will ensure stability and continuity of housing through connecting the families to mainstream resources and community-based services. The program seeks to stabilize housing homeless families while significantly raising the earning potential of the family.

• Supportive Housing Program - $259,530. This renewal project of QISC as project sponsor seeks to continue its "services" only Supportive Housing Program (SHP). The program's purpose is to link homeless persons to job placement, training support and stabilization services; to assist participant's secure appropriate transitional/permanent housing; and to provide ongoing supportive services for the participants in housing.

• Shelter Plus Care - Tenant Based Individual Rental Assistance Program - $284,328. This is a one-year renewal for Quincy Housing Authority for 22 certificates that serve individuals.

• Shelter Plus Care - Tenant Based Individual Rental Assistance Program - $129,240. This is a one-year renewal for Quincy Housing Authority for 10 certificates that serve individuals.

• Shelter Plus Care - Tenant Based Individual Rental Assistance Program - $84,852. This is a one-year renewal for Quincy Housing Authority for 5 certificates that serve individuals.

Since 1996, the Consortium through the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development has successfully secured $9,152,881 of McKinney funds to be used for programs that serve the homeless population in the Quincy/Weymouth area.

Jillian Baker Of St. Anselm Dean's List

Jillian R. Baker was named to the Dean's List for the first semester at Saint Anselm College in Manchester, N.H.

A senior, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Baker Jr. of Quincy.

Jennifer Logue Guest Speaker At Montclair/Wollaston Meeting

Jennifer Logue, executive director of Discover Quincy, will be the guest speaker at the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 15 Harvard St.

JENNIFER LOGUE

As head of Discover Quincy, Logue develops and implements strategies promoting Quincy as a tourist destination and producing advertisements and promotional materials on Quincy's many historical, cultural and recreational offerings.

Born and raised in Quincy, Logue is a graduate of North Quincy High School and American University, where she graduated magna cum laude with a degree in journalism and communications. She has more than 15 years of experience in public relations and corporate communications, and most recently spent eight years as a senior publicist and writer for WGBH and the PBS television series "Frontline."

A community activist, Logue served on the Quincy High Siting Commission and was a founding member of the Quincy Tourism Advisory Council, established in 2002 by Mayor William Phelan to assess the feasibility of mounting a tourism initiative. She is also a registrar of voters and is currently the president of the Quincy Lions Club. A lifelong Quincy resident, she lives in the Beechwood Knoll section of Wollaston with her husband, David, and their three children.

Kevin Coughlin, Ward 3 city councilor, will hold office hours from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. prior to the association meeting to discuss neighborhood issues with constituents. He will also participate in the meeting and will provide a short update to the association after the completion of the question and answers session following Logue's talk.

Women and Heart Disease Seminar

Wednesday, February 9th
6:00 - 7:00 p.m. at Granite Medical

Presented by Jeanne Benoit, RNC, NP

Most people think of heart disease as a man's problem. The truth is that heart disease is the leading cause of death among women over 65 and women are 4 to 6 times more likely to die from heart disease than from breast cancer. Heart disease in women is different than in men and at this seminar you will learn what these differences are and how to reduce your risk of heart failure.

All are welcome — you do not have to be a Granite Medical patient to attend. Light refreshments will be served.

Smoking Cessation Seminar

Three Wednesday evenings
6:00 - 7:30 p.m. at Granite Medical
February 16 • March 2 • March 16
Attendance at all 3 sessions is recommended.

Presented by Granite Medical Physicians and Nurses

This seminar is FREE and open only to Granite Medical patients.

To Provide Prescription Drugs To Low-Income Individuals, Families And Children

Manet Community Health Center Receives $40,000 State Grant

Attorney General Tom Reilly announces a $40,000 grant has been awarded to the Manet Community Health Center to provide prescription drugs to low-income individuals, families and children.

Reilly awarded the funds as part of a multi-million dollar settlement he and 19 other states reached in April 2004 with Medco Health Solutions, Inc., to resolve allegations that the company engaged in improper drug switching programs.

Medco is a pharmacy benefit manager, or PBM, that administers prescription drug programs for health insurers, large employers, and government employee benefit plans.

"Too many people throughout our Commonwealth are literally forced to choose between heating their home, feeding their family, or paying for their prescription drugs," Reilly said. "I hope that these grants will make a difference in helping people obtain medications that, in some cases, make the difference between life and death."

As part of the Medco settlement, Reilly awarded a total of $480,000 to 12 community health clinics across Massachusetts to buy prescription drugs. The participating community health clinics provide care for many individuals, families and children who do not have health insurance or access to prescription drugs.

"Well over 700 of our 15,000 patients have diabetes," CEO Toni McGuire said. "This grant will help Manet to supply diabetes monitoring equipment to patients who could otherwise not afford to pay."

Founded in 1979, the Manet Community Health Center provides healthcare to uninsured and underinsured individuals and populations experiencing cultural, geographical and financial disadvantages.

The Medco grant will provide monthly supplies of blood sugar test strips for eligible diabetes patients. The cases against Medco, a New Jersey-based PBM company, addressed allegations that the company violated the Massachusetts Consumer Protection Act as well as the state's False Claims Act.

Medco contracted with the state's Group Insurance Commission (GIC) to administer its prescription drug program to Massachusetts employees and retirees between 1994 and 2000. The settlements provide important new consumer protections and set a new standard for sweeping reform of the PBM industry.

The consumer protection case required Medco to pay Massachusetts and 19 other states $20.2 million to fund state pharmaceutical initiatives and $6.6 million in costs and fees.

Massachusetts received $750,000 from the $20.2 million settlement for consumer-related programs. The majority of that amount, $480,000, is being distributed to community health clinics to fund these low-income prescription drug programs.

Quincy Employee Wins Shields All-Expense Trip

Sheri Weintraub of Easton has won an all-expense-paid (up to $3,500) trip to a destination of her choice as one of six 2004 Employees of the Year in the Quincy facility of the Shields Health Care Group.

Weintraub is chief physicist at the Group's South Suburban Oncology Center in Quincy. Shields is the state's largest provider of diagnostic imaging services.

Under the vacation program, started 25 years ago, employees are nominated annually by their colleagues and the winners are chosen by a team of four managers.

"This is one way that we honor our employees who personify the Shields culture of great service and kindness to colleagues and patients," said President Jack Shields.

"The program allows us to help return that commitment."

"Sheri has been instrumental in developing a new treatment program, overhauling quality assurance protocols and launching new technology.

"In addition to her expertise, she is always cheerful, friendly and a pleasure to work with."

NARFE Meeting Feb. 14

The next meeting of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, Quincy Chapter 430, will be Monday, Feb. 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the Torre Dei Passeri Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy.

The guest speaker will be Marcie Freeman, director of the Harvard Cooperative Program on Aging. The topic will be "The Heart."

Judges Panel For The Quincy Sun Citizen Of The Year

The following served as judges for the selection the 2004 Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award.

Tony Agnitti, Agnitti Insurance Agency, chairman Quincy Medical Center Foundation Board.

James (Jay) Asher, president radio station WJDA; chairman Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Bette Campbell, executive director Quincy Access Television.

Jackie Gardner, executive director American Red Cross South Area.

Maralin Manning, executive director Quincy Business Association.

Steven Mansfield, partner Mansfield & Nolan P.C., and past president Quincy Lions Club.

Richard Meade, Daniel J. Flynn & Co., acquisitions and development; former Quincy City Planning Director.

The panel was moderated by Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Sun Editor Robert Bosworth.

Frank McCauley Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

the material and wrote the book in long-hand. His wife, Sandra, then typed the chapters on a word processor and helped in the editing.

Neither charged a fee.

One thousand copies of the book "A Political History, 1889-2000" were published and most of them scooped up at $21 each, tax included. The city netted something like $3,200.

"I think there may be a few left at the Historical Society," McCauley says.

McCauley was Quincy's 30th mayor, serving four terms from 1982 to 1990. During his tenure, several major municipal buildings were constructed. Including a $9,245,000 police station addition and renovation; a $60,200,000 Quincy Hospital new wing later named for him and a $275,000 animal shelter.

While a member of the School Committee (1972-1977, 1996-1997) he was involved in the addition to the Merrymount School and the addition and renovation of North Quincy High School and construction of the Lincoln-Hancock School.

McCauley was appointed to the Quincy Housing Authority by Gov. Francis Sargent in 1969, serving until 1974, the last two years as chairman.

During that period, four senior citizens housing facilities — Sawyer, Pagnano, O'Brien and Tobin Towers — were completed.

McCauley has also seen considerable other public service:

Appointed to Quincy Draft Board No. 25 by President Lyndon Johnson in 1968 and serving until 1972.

Executive Director of the State Board of Retirement in the administration of State Treasurer Joseph Malone, 1991-1997.

Chairman MBTA Advisory Board, member Quincy Retirement Board, chairman Quincy College Board of Trustees.

McCauley is the only Republican in Quincy municipal office today. He was selected to a four-year term as Republican State Committeeman in 1992.

He is past president and life member of the Quincy Lions club and a recipient of the Melvin Jones Fellow, the Lions Club's highest award named for the founder of the Lions Club in Chicago in 1917.

He is a past president and member of the scholarship board of the Houghs Neck Community Council; a life member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks and a member of the McKeon Amvets Post.

McCauley served in the Navy 1948-1949 in the Cold War aboard the carrier USS Cabot.

A graduate of Bentley College, he attended Boston College and is a graduate of Boston College High School.

He was associated with the Presidential Cooperative Bank from 1958-1981, retiring as bank president on his election as mayor.

McCauley and Sandra have five children and 13 grandchildren.

The children: Michael J. of Quincy; Robert H., Natick; Melissa Higgins, Braintree; Julie Tympanick, Plymouth; and Jennifer Logue of Quincy. The latter is executive director of Discover Quincy.

The grandchildren: Dawn McCauley, Kyril and Samuel McCauley, Lindsay, Lauren, David and Andrew Higgins; Matthew, Andrew and Zachary Tympanick and Bryan, Samantha and Katharine Logue.

Frank fell in love with Sandra MacKinnon when they met at the K.T. Deli in Houghs Neck where she was a waitress and he and his fellow clamdiggers were steady customers and hanged out.

They were married Friday, Aug. 13, 1954. He was 24 and she 18.

There were predications it would not last.

Sandra could have gone to Radcliffe but picked Frank instead.

"Imagine giving up a chance to go to Radcliffe to marry a clamdigger," someone said. "He won't amount to much."

To which Sandra replied: "Well, if it doesn't work out, we can always blame it on the fact we got married on Friday, the 13th."

But it lasted.

Last Aug. 13 (also a Friday), Frank and Sandra McCauley celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

And that young clamdigger has done pretty well.

NORFOLK COUNTY COMMISSIONERS John Gillis of Quincy (center) and Francis O'Brien (right) of Dedham are sworn in by Norfolk County Clerk of Courts Walter Timilty. Gillis, Quincy city clerk for 37 years, is starting his fourth term. He was first elected Norfolk County commissioner in 1992. Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti was the guest speaker at the swearing-in ceremony. In his remarks, Gillis thanked the many county officials and employees who work together to run Norfolk County. "We have great people from Sheriff Bellotti, Register Of Deeds William O'Donnell, my fellow commissioners Fran O'Brien and Peter Collins, right down to the office staff, and we all work hard to bring county services to the people," Gillis said.

Stroke Screenings Feb. 14 At Town Brook House

Life Line Screening will conduct stroke screenings Monday, Feb. 14 at Town Brook House, 45 Brackett St., Quincy.

Appointments will begin at 9 a.m.

A stroke, also known as a "brain attack," is ranked as the third leading killer in the world, and the second among women. Through preventive screenings, the risk of having a stroke can be greatly reduced.

Each screening requires 10 minutes or less to complete. The complete wellness package includes the stroke/carotid artery, abdominal aortic aneurysm, ankle brachial index (hardening of the arteries) and osteoporosis screenings.

For more information regarding the screenings call Life Line Screening at 1-877-237-1354.

License Revoked By City On Jan. 24

Court Decision Due This Week On Reopening Of Ritz Motel

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

A Norfolk County Superior Court judge this week is expected to decide whether to temporarily reopen the Ritz Motel after the city effectively closed its doors on Jan. 24.

Lawyers for the city and Ritz presented their arguments on Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Mitchell Sikora took the matter under advisment and said a decision would be forthcoming by tomorrow (Friday), according to sources.

The owner of the Ritz, Gloria Nichols, 74, is fighting the city's decision to revoke the longtime establishment's motel permit.

If granted a preliminary injunction, the Ritz could reopen pending the outcome of Nichols' overall appeal.

Citing several health and safety code violations, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele revoked the motel permit, effective Jan. 24. The motel has not re-opened.

Attorney Christopher DiOrio said he requested an expedited hearing and injunction to keep the motel open because it is the only source of income for Nichols.

"This is the sole income for a 74-year-old woman," said DiOrio. "This is all she has - there is nothing else."

DiOrio questioned what prompted the city's sudden fixation on the motel and its owner. The business has never been called before licensing authorities.

"If this place has been a problem for years, why did it suddenly become such a pariah that needs to be shutdown," he asked. "It seems odd and raises a red flag in my mind."

DiOrio said the motel property is potentially valuable, and real estate developers are looking to pounce on Nichols' misfortune.

"As soon as this hit the papers my client heard from real estate speculators," said DiOrio. "There are many people that would like to see the place fail so they can swoop in and develop it - they smell blood in the water."

City officials say they are prepared to block any move to keep the motel open.

"We will be opposing any motion to reopen the Ritz," said Assistant City Solicitor Robert Quinn.

Nichols keeps a residence in the motel, as does her son, John Black, and his four children. A maintenance employee also lives there.

At a public hearing last month, police described the Ritz Motel as a retreat for unsavory characters, drug dealers and prostitutes.

But Black pleaded with city officials to give operators a chance to rectify any problems.

Quincy Police conducted a month-long review of the motel's register, finding inaccuracies, missing information or false names.

On some occasions rooms were rented out several times in one day, police said.

After reviewing rentals over a 30-day period, police said they could not identify 178 of 248 entries in the register. Of the identified guests, 33 had a criminal record, which includes drug and narcotic activity, police said. Five identified guests have been charged with prostitution, according to police.

More than a dozen people were arrested at the motel over an 18-day period in November, police said.

Chamber's Fancher Chosen To Direct Base Development

Terry Fancher, the general manager of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce since 1985, has been named executive director of the public corporation that is overseeing development of the old South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Pending successful contract negotiations with the Board of Directors, he will take over as head of the South Shore Tri-Town Development Corporation sometime this month. He was chosen from an original list of 38 applicants for the past.

"I am thrilled to be given this position," said Fancher, who also was the Chamber's manager of Business Development and Transportation and a member of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station Citizens' Advisory Committee.

"For over 21 years I have worked on various projects that have spurred economic development through the South Shore. I look forward to facing the challenges that this project will pose and will use all my skills and experience to bring this project to completion."

The job is particularly difficult and often frustrating since the former air station occupies land in three communities and any decision made by the corporation must be approved by town meetings in Abington and Rockland and the town council in Weymouth as well as the Navy.

Quincy Receives National Award For Affordable Housing Projects

Mayor William J. Phelan and the Quincy Planning Department announce the city of Quincy was one of the winners of the first Terrance R. Duvernay HOME award from the National Community Development Association (NCDA) for its Claremont Project.

This award recognized exemplary affordable housing projects across the country which have used HOME Investment Partnership (HOME) Program funds from HUD.

The Claremont Project is a 12-unit SRO development in Quincy that created permanent sober housing with supportive services for former homeless women. The project is a joint venture of Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore (NHS) and Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC), better known as Fr. Bill's Place.

The site was formerly a blighted rooming house in deplorable conditions, known for numerous illegal drug activities and police complaints. The City decided to support this project as well as complementary NHS-QISC development, currently under construction, that targets currently homeless men.

Both projects were designed to meet a high need for permanent housing among homeless individuals who have passed through shelters. The target beneficiaries are unable to get into public housing and their low incomes cannot meet the very high market rents in the Boston area. Here, priority is given to the chronic homeless women.

Using $325,000 of HOME funds as its key financial base, purchase the site and rehabilitate the property. The development also received $100,000 from Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development, $70,000 from the Center for Community Recovery Innovations, $38,250 from Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation, a $220,000 bank loan from the Rockland Trust and $12,000 from private fundraising.

NHS reconfigure the structure to create 12 permanent, safe and affordable SRO units. Father Bill's Place identified and placed the formerly homeless women who were ready to move to permanent housing. Three of the first tenants, who occupy the first floor units, , have serious mental illness and benefit from supportive services.

Such services provided by Fr. Bill's Place are well thought out and planned based upon the individual resident needs.

Funding for these services are mainly provided through funds secured by QISC and the income from the property. Through a unique partnership, the two organizations jointly provide property management services through a staff person who has both property management and social service work experience.

Phelan, together with Dennis Harrington and Angelito Santos from the Planning Department, Normand Grenier and Rob Corley of NHS and John Yazwinski of Fr. Bill's Place, received the award from the NCDA during a special ceremony at the Senate Office in Washington, D.C.

"The City of Quincy is blessed with having two outstanding non-profit organizations that understand the community needs and know what it takes to put together a viable solution," Phelan said. He also thanked the Planning Department, especially Angelito Santos and Nancy Callanan, who was unable to attend the ceremony, for facilitating the Project.

Grenier, NHS director, also spoke and highlighted the hardships being endured by the chronic homeless.

For more information, contact the Planning Department at 617-376-1362 or Normand Grenier, NHS director, at 617-770-2227.

THE MARK WAHLBERG Foundation for Urban Youth recently donated $2,500 to the Quincy Community Action Emergency Food Center. Making the presentation are Rosemary Wahlberg, a local volunteer working to help raise funds to address the issue of hunger in Quincy, and Jim Wahlberg, director of the Wahlberg Foundation. The donation was made after the Foundation learned the City of Quincy had been identified by Project Bread as a community with hunger as a concern. The problem was discovered during Project Bread's statewide assessment of the issue of hungry children in Massachusetts. Jim and Mark Wahlberg were also happy to assist their Aunt Rosemary and Uncle Archie address this issue close to all the Wahlbergs' hearts, "No child should ever be hungry in our communities of plenty."

Something Special For Your Valentine!

Sarah Esterquest To Benefit For Asian Tsunami Victims

Sarah Esterquest of Quincy is using her acting talents to raise money for the victims of the recent tsunami in Southeast Asia.

Sarah, a student at Boston University Academy, performed in the role of Mrs. Gibbs in the school's production of "Our Town" that raised $2,300.

BU Academy performances usually are free but in the wake of the tsunami's destruction, students, faculty and staff requested donations at the door.

The donations were turned over to Oxfam America, the relief agency.

Sarah is the daughter of Jay Esterquest and Marjorie Jordan.

BU Academy is a coeducational day school for student in grades 8 through 12, affiliated with Boston University.

Valentine's Day Specials

When I was asked to prepare a Valentine's Day recipe, I didn't want to print a heart shaped cake or pink cupcakes. And so when I spoke to two of our daughters on the telephone about it, they each offered great ideas.

The one our daughter Rita gave is one for pink risotto, and is one of the most delicious rice dishes we have ever had: the other recipe from Nancy is one husbands can surprise their wives and prepare the night before, and may serve it to their wives for breakfast in bed? Or if he is an early riser, he can make it in the morning. We had it recently at a brunch and it is fantastic!

Rita's Pink Risotto

1/3 cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 tablespoon olive oil
1/2 cup white wine
1 1/2 cups Arborio rice (available in all markets)
5 cups hot chicken stock plus 1/4 cup reserve set aside (canned chicken soup if not homemade)
1 bunch beet greens finely chopped
1/3 cup freshly grated parmesan cheese
salt and pepper to taste

On medium heat, sauté the onion and garlic in oil and butter until soft - do not brown.

Add the rice and stir well to coat with the oil and butter. Add the wine and stir for two minutes.

Begin adding the chicken stock one cup at a time, stirring continuously until each addition evaporates slightly and the rice mixture thickens, careful not to burn.

After about 18 minutes or so, test the rice for tenderness (should be al dente). Remove from heat and stir in the beet greens, the parmesan cheese, and the 1/4 cup chicken stock you saved.

Serve the beautiful pink risotto immediately on a white plate with any meat or fish, For that finishing touch, Rita suggests "garnishing the dish with an edible flower for added effect!" How romantic!

Here is the other recipe for the frittata

Nancy's Elegant Frittata

9 eggs
1/2 cup cheddar cheese
6 slices bacon, ham or any breakfast meat
1 pint light cream
6 slices white bread (cut in cubes)
1/4 stick butter (melted)
salt and pepper to taste

Cook the bacon or any other meat and set aside. Beat the eggs real well, add the cheese, cream and the meat together. Add half the cut up bread in the mixture and blend well.

Pour in a greased quiche pan or round pan and top it with the rest of the bread cubes. Drizzle the butter on top just before baking.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 40 minutes. It will look like a beautiful soufflé and will only shrink a bit.

Happy Valentine's Day!

PS If you prepare this dish the night before, don't put the reserved bread crumbs or the butter until ready to bake

Eliminate Top Safety Threats To Prevent Electrical Injuries

The Electrical Safety Foundation International (ESFI) reminds consumers that taking steps to eliminate the top electrical safety threats in and around the home may prevent numerous injuries and deaths that needlessly occur each year.

According to data from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), top electrical safety hazards include: electrical fires caused by aging wiring and misuse of surge suppressors, and electrocutions from wiring systems and large appliances.

CPSC research indicates that each year there are more than 40,000 electrical fires, which result in hundreds of injuries and death. Electrocutions associated with wiring and consumer products cost hundreds of lives annually.

"Despite the fact that many of these electrical hazards can be eliminated, we often fail to take steps necessary to protect ourselves from harm," said Michael G. Clendenin, executive director of ESFI.

The following electrical safety tips may help avoid tragic and costly injuries:

• Make certain that all appliances and equipment are approved by an independent testing laboratory, such as Underwriters Laboratories (UL), Canadian Standards Association (CSA), or ETL-SEMKO (ETL).

• Use appliances and equipment according to the manufacturer's instructions.

• Replace damaged electrical equipment or have it repaired at an authorized repair center. Replace frayed cords, broken plugs or cracks that could cause hazards; cut and throw out damaged cords.

• Use ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI) protection when working where water is near electricity, in areas such as the kitchen, laundry room, bathroom or outdoors, to protect against electric shock.

• When using a generator, plug appliances directly into the generator or use a heavy duty outdoor rated extension cord that is free of cuts and tears and has a 3-prong plug. Never try to power the house wiring by plugging the generator into a wall outlet, a dangerous practice known as backfeeding. If you must connect the generator to the house wiring to power appliances, have a qualified electrician install a power transfer switch in accordance with local electrical codes.

• Be alert for hazards of old wiring. Flickering or dimming lights can be signs of electrical wiring problems. Having wiring in homes 40 years or more, or those over 10 years old that have had major renovations, inspected by a licensed electrical inspector.

• Add protection by installing a new electrical safety device – an arc fault circuit interrupter (AFCI) – to detect and stop electrical arcs that can cause fires. Arcs are not detected by most breakers and fuses.

• Make sure power strips and surge suppressors are designed to handle the loads for their intended use. Avoid overloading circuits by plugging too many items into the same outlet.

For more electrical safety information, call 703-841-3329.

Norfolk Registry Expands Online Research

Register William P. O'Donnell announces substantial completion of a project to expand research information online at the Registry of Deeds website, www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"We now have available scanned images of almost all of the recorded land documents filed since 1974," O'Donnell said. "By expanding the online library, we hope to improve the usefulness of the system to both real estate professionals and the general public."

O'Donnell noted that some additional work remains on the project, including scanning of documents from calendar 1979, which is expected to be done in the coming months.

"Internet research saves on travel and allows research outside of regular business hours," O'Donnell said. "We are continuing our efforts to improve this service and welcome comments and suggestions."

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry receives and records hundreds of thousands of documents each year and is a basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate and accessible land record information.

What Is Homestead And How To File

By THEODORE RIORDAN

Question: What is a homestead?

Answer: Homestead is a paper filed in the Registry of Deeds. It prevents your principal residence from being attached and sold to satisfy your debts.

Q. Does that mean that if I default on my mortgage, the bank can't foreclose?

A. No, it doesn't. Your bank is what is called a secured creditor. "Secured" means you have agreed that the bank can seize the security (your house) if you don't pay. Since you have agreed that your bank can take your house if you don't pay, the homestead law does not help you.

Credit card companies and most other creditors are "unsecured." That means that they will go after whatever assets they can find if you don't pay your them. The Homestead prevents this kind of creditor from taking your home.

Q. Is there a dollar limit on how much I'm protected?

A. Yes. The law was changed recently. As of October 26, 2004, a homestead will give you $500,000 in protection. Before that date, the maximum protection was $300,000.

Q. Are there different kinds of homesteads?

A. Yes, there are two kinds: a regular homestead and an elderly/disabled person homestead.

The Homestead statute defines an elderly person as someone over age 62. The statute defines a disabled person as someone who has a permanent physical or mental impairment, as those terms are used under the federal SSI (Supplemental Security Income) statute. Basically this means the person is not able to engage in any gainful activity.

Any property owner can file a regular homestead on his principal residence. If the owners are married, only one spouse can file.

For an elderly homestead, both elderly spouses can file.

Q. How do I file a homestead?

A. Some Registry of Deeds have blank homestead forms right at the counter. It's a one-page "fill-in-the-blanks" form. You don't need a lawyer. You file the form and fee with the Registry.

(Theodore Riordan, Esq., is a Quincy attorney. He is a former clerk for the State of Rhode Island Supreme Court.)

THIS IS A HAMMER

By Samantha Mazzotta

Q. As a new homeowner, I'm interested in fixing as many things myself as possible. Are there some items that I would be better served by calling a professional to fix?—Trudy J., Huntsville, Ala.

A. Base your decision on whether to call in a professional on both the level of your home-repair skill and the time available to handle a repair. Some items are also more dangerous or dirty than usual — like electrical or plumbing repairs. If at any time you feel a repair can't be done in a timely or safe manner, call in a professional.

Almost without exception, some large-scale jobs should be left entirely to repair and maintenance pros. These include major repairs (like replacing a roof or siding) and installation of gas appliances. Most homeowners also hire contractors for grimy, time-consuming jobs like cleaning the drain-waste-vent stack and other large drains, cleaning the chimney and emptying the septic tank. Pest control and removal are also best left to the pros.

There are still quite a few items to take care of around the house, and they will take plenty of time to complete on your own. Here are just a few:

- Minor plumbing problems — like plugged drains, clogged toilets and leaky faucets.
- Painting and wallpapering, patching drywall holes and covering blemishes.
- Patching carpet, dealing with squeaky floorboards, replacing underlayment and installing tile, laminate or vinyl flooring.
- Installing small appliances, like garbage disposals.
- Maintaining the furnace and air conditioner, dishwasher, clothes washer and dryer, electronics and yard-care equipment.
- Repairing or refinishing furniture.

These are, of course, in addition to the regular tasks of cleaning house, mowing the lawn, feeding pets and so on.

Completing the above items yourself can save quite a bit of money, and you'll get a feeling of pride and ownership that hiring a contractor can't give you. However, always be aware of just how much you can really do. If you don't feel confident doing a repair or installation, or the amount of time needed to complete a job stresses you out, go ahead and hire a professional.

Presidents Bow To Sandwich, Plymouth S.

BOYS' ICE HOCKEY

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School hockey team turned in one of its better performances of what's been a disappointing season, but still skated away from Quincy Youth Arena Monday afternoon with a setback.

The Presidents (1-12-1) held a 2-1 lead through two periods but surrendered four goals to Sandwich (4-5-2) in the final frame to fall, 5-3. On Saturday night, they played well in a 5-0 loss to Plymouth South, the top team in the Atlantic Coast League with a 10-2 record.

"We deserved a better fate," said head coach Bob Sylvia following Monday's loss. "We played one of our best games of the year. We're 1-12 and you can say that's a bad team, but we play hard every game.

"We can't score goals and that's a tragedy. It's inexperience and young kids. It's been tough but we have to keep fighting through it and not get discouraged. We've taken it on the chin this year more than in the past. But we've played better these last two games."

Quincy has nine days of rest before it faces off against North Quincy (6-4-2) next Wednesday night at 8:20. A win over its cross-town rival would do wonders. In the first meeting Jan. 5, the Red Raiders held on to a 3-2 victory.

In Monday's game, the Blue Knights scored nine seconds into the game with a goal by captain Jarrod LaRollo, assisted by left winger Sean Flynn.

In the middle stanza, junior forward Mike McPherson netted the go-ahead goal at 6:39 with an assist from junior forward Mike McKeon.

Sandwich dominated the third period, tallying three straight goals to grab a 4-2 lead. Forward Colin Downey scored a pair of goals less than two minutes apart and LaRollo scored off a feed from Marc Casimassima at 11:25.

Quincy pulled to within one with 2:45 remaining when Giordani potted his second of the game with sophomore defenseman Jonathan Conso assisting.

But the Presidents couldn't muster the tying goal and Sandwich closed out the scoring with a goal by defenseman Matt Doyle with 23 ticks left.

Sylvia praised the efforts of junior goalie Alex Smith. "He's played extremely well in goal for us," he said. "He's kept us in games, giving us a chance to win."

Joe Duffy Football All-Conference Selection For Curry College

Joe Duffy of West Quincy capped off a brilliant football career at Curry College this past season.

Duffy, an offensive guard, received a First Team All-Conference selection for the New England Football Conference as well as a First Team ECAC Northeast All-Star selection.

He was the only lineman from the NEFC to be named to the ECAC Northeast All-Star team.

A four-year starter, Duffy's class was the most successful in school history, compiling a 36-8 career record. Curry earned back-to-back NEFC championships, the first team in the league to accomplish that feat, two NCAA tournament invitations and two ECAC tournament invites.

Duffy is also a dedicated weightlifter, setting numerous records at Curry, including a 615-pound squat, a 420-pound bench press and a 335-pound power clean. In the classroom, he carried a 3.42 grade-point average and made the Dean's List six times.

A 2001 Quincy High School graduate, Duffy hopes to become a police officer in the City of Quincy upon graduation this spring.

Bay State Skating School Learn-To-Skate Program At Shea Rink

Bay State Skating School's Learn-to-Skate program is on-going at the Quincy Shea MDC rink, Willard Street.

Classes are held Fridays at 4 p.m. and Sundays at 11 a.m. The program is for children ages 5 and up and adults. Skaters wear figure or hockey skates.

Professional instructors teach beginner, intermediate and advanced levels. To register, call 781-890-8480 or visit www.iceskatingclasses.com.

Relay For Life Meeting Tonight

The American Cancer Society Relay for Life Committee will meet tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. at the Braintree High School media center (second floor) to raise awareness for the fundraiser.

Quincy residents are invited to attend.

The Relay for Life is the signature event of the American Cancer Society. It is a fun-filled, overnight event that mobilizes communities throughout the country to celebrate survivors (anyone who has ever been diagnosed with cancer), remember loved ones, and raise money for the fight against cancer.

Volunteers are needed to organize and recruit teams, seek community support, coordinate logistics, find refreshments and prizes, plan entertainment and lend their support.

For more information on tonight's meeting, or to volunteer on the Relay for Life Committee, contact Jane Foley at (781) 849-7197.

Clinic For Softball Umpires At Bryan VFW Post March 8, 15

The Boston Amateur Softball Association will be conducting free clinics for individuals interested in becoming umpires for the 2005 softball season.

The clinics will be held Tuesdays, March 8 and 15, at Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 16, 24 Broad St., Quincy.

Umpires will officiate youth and adult recreational leagues in their surrounding cities and towns. For more information, call 781-665-9745 or visit www.asaboston.com.

WINTER CAR CARE

AAA Offers Winter Motoring Advice

Winter driving is tough on motorists and vehicles. To help drivers make it through the toughest winter conditions, AAA Southern New England offers the following tips:

Charge!! — Cold weather is tough on batteries. At 0 degrees, a car's battery loses about 60 percent of its strength. At a comparatively mild 32 degrees, a battery is 35 percent weaker. Keeping battery terminals clean helps, but a battery performance test performed by a qualified technician will help determine whether a car's battery is strong enough for winter starts.

Get a Grip —Make sure you car is equipped with tires that are able to handle New England's winter weather. For most motorists, all-season tires are adequate. In more northern or mountainous regions, switching to snow tires may be needed. If you are using snow tires on a front-wheel-drive vehicle, four snow tires are required.

See and Be Seen — Danger must be seen to be avoided. Driving with a snow-covered windshield, windows, side-view mirrors or lights invites a crash. Clear windows, mirrors and lights with an ice scraper, brush or spray de-icer. Make certain windshield wipers and defrosters are in good working order and that washer reservoirs are filled with no-freeze windshield washer fluid. Remember to clean snow off the roof of the vehicle.

Slippery When Wet — In temperatures at or just above 32 degrees, a thin layer of water can cover the ice, causing extremely slippery conditions. The distance needed to stop on ice at 32 degrees is twice as long as at 0 degrees.

Keep Your Engine Cool — Make certain cooling system antifreeze is mixed with an equal portion of water for maximum protection.

Fast Solution — A squirt of de-icer spray is a quick method to overcome frozen door locks. Once thawed, lubricate the lock with silicone or lightweight oil. Avoid penetrating oils.

Air It Out — Don't let frigid temperatures tempt you into starting your car in a closed garage or idling your engine for long periods with the windows closed. Carbon monoxide, present in exhaust fumes, is almost impossible to detect and can be fatal when breathed in a confined area.

Finish Up — Road salt, slush and grime are especially hard on a car's finish. To help prevent rust and paint damage, keep cars washed and waxed. A full or self-service car wash makes the job easier when temperatures are low.

Tips To Help Seniors Drive Safely Longer

Just as you would screen for high cholesterol or high blood pressure, AAA clubs across the country have introduced a first-of-its kind scientifically validated tool to help seniors screen for their driving health. And it can be done in the privacy of one's home.

"Roadwise Review: A Tool to Help Seniors Drive Safely Longer" is a CD-ROM that measures eight physical and mental abilities shown to be the strongest predictors of crash risk among older drivers, and then provides feedback to guide the user's driving decisions.

"As we age, we experience physiological changes which could affect our driving and there are steps you can take to keep driving safely longer," said Robert P. Murray, AAA Southern New England senior vice president of corporate affairs. "'Roadwise' helps seniors recognize and address common problems that affect their driving ability."

People over 65 are the fastest growing population in the United States and by 2020 there will be more than 40 million licensed drivers ages 65 and older. Because of their fragility, seniors have the highest crash death rate per mile of everyone except teenagers.

The computer-based screening program in "Roadwise" contains the most effective predictors of crash risk in eight functional areas as validated in research sponsored by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the National Institute of Aging. AAA worked closely with scientists at TransAnalytics, a leading transportation safety research organization, to create a tool that is both state-of-the-art and user friendly.

"In our extensive focus group testing, senior drivers viewed the program as simple, clear, valuable and even fun to use," Murray said. "Many were especially enthusiastic about the potential to keep themselves and their loved ones safer and said they would follow through with the program recommendations."

Using videos and easy-to-follow instructions, "Roadwise" screens drivers in eight functional areas:

• Leg Strength and General Mobility: Necessary to control acceleration and braking.

• Head/Neck Flexibility: Essential in checking blind spots, lane changes or merging.

• High Contrast Visual Acuity: Needed to identify pavement markings, as well as detect many types of hazards in or near the road.

• Low Visual Acuity: Vital for driving in low visibility conditions such as dusk, rain or fog.

• Working Memory: Important in following directions, remembering traffic rules and regulations, and using information on highway guide signs.

• Visualization of Missing Information: Helps a driver recognize hazards even when seeing only part of the picture.

• Visual Search: Safe driving requires the ability to quickly find and recognize traffic signs and landmarks.

• Useful Field of View: Ensures drivers can pay attention to what is happening right in front of them while also noticing safety threats at the edge of their field of view.

"Roadwise" uses an integrated data system that reports and provides users with confidential feedback about screening results, and its CD-ROM format is compatible with most home computers.

"This type of screening is like a blood pressure test, something you check periodically to stay healthy," Murray said. "We believe it is important to screen for your driving health just as you would your physical health."

"Roadwise Review" is offered at the deeply discounted price of $5 at all AAA Southern New England offices. AAA also has donated copies to Council on Aging in Massachusetts and to senior centers in Rhode Island.

Auto Safety

(NU) - More than 112 million people drive or carpool to work daily. With all of these people on the road, drivers need to take every precaution.

Carry an emergency kit with first-aid items and jumper cables.

Consider including an Autolite TriGlo safety lights as well. This compact light serves a daul purpose: It shines like a flashlight and alerts like a flare.

Also, decrease the distractions inside your vehicle with the Autolite SpotGlo seatbelt light source. This compact light clips onto a passenger's seatbelt and directs light right where passengers need it, without distracting the driver.

BENT OUT OF JOINT?

If your vehicle is experiencing a wandering ride, erratic steering, and uneven tire wear, chances are that the ball joints are worn. Ball joints serve as the pivot points between the tires and suspension. They also support weight. Ball joints are used on the front of virtually every car and light truck. On some vehicles, the ball joints may be used to make wheel alignment settings. A ball joint consists of a hardened-steel bearing stud and socket enclosed in a housing. The bearing stud is tapered and threaded and fits into a tapered hole in the steering knuckle. A protective boot prevents dirt from entering the joint assembly. Once the boot rips, problems are likely to begin.

For your safety make sure your car's undercarriage systems are in good shape. Bring your car to us. Don't hesitate to ask any questions about anything else related to your car, when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Feb. 7 At South Suburban Oncology Center

'Look Good, Feel Better' For Cancer Patients

The American Cancer Society will present its "Look Good...Feel Better" program Monday, Feb. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the South Suburban Oncology Center, 700 Congress St., Quincy.

The program is designed to help patients maintain their personal appearance while undergoing treatment for cancer. The free program features cosmetologists leading group sessions, providing tips and practical techniques for coping with hair loss and changes in the skin that often result from chemotherapy or radiation therapy.

To pre-register, call Colleen Whitehouse at 617-376-6435.

For more information, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345.Look Good ...Feel Better offers free, one-time beauty consultations with a licensed cosmetologist or aesthetician to women who are currently undergoing cancer treatment.

"Look Good...Feel Better is as much about improving and maintaining self-image and confidence as it is about appearance " said Gail Bork, American Cancer Society Community Executive for Cancer Control. "Patients enjoy the opportunity to spend time in a relaxed, non-medical setting with others in the same situation. And the free make-up and instruction from professionals helps them look and feel better."

The American Cancer Society estimates that approximately 668,470 American women will develop some form of cancer this year. The good news is that, thanks to advances in medicine, the five-year relative survival rate of all cancers is 63 percent.

A variety of patient services, support programs and comprehensive cancer information are available through the Society's toll free 1-800-ACS-2345 number, which operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in both English and Spanish and its Web site at www.cancer.org.

Gillian Serino Nurse Practioner At CHO

Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology P.C. (CHO) in Quincy announces Gillian Serino has joined the group as a nurse practitioner.

CHO is the largest community-based private cancer care group in New England.

"Nurse practitioners play an important role on the medical team at CHO, where our philosophy is to provide personalized, state-of-the-art care in the community setting," said Dr. Walt Kagan, CEO.

Prior to joining CHO, Serino was a nurse practitioner in private practice in South Dennis and Scituate. She also served at Upham's Corner Health Center in Dorchester.

GILLIAN SERINO

Serino is board-certified as a family nurse practitioner. She received an RN and MSN in nursing from MGH Institute of Health Professions, and a B.A. from Tufts University.

CHO was the first group practice in the state to develop treatment guidelines for specific cancers and the first group practice in the area to develop a computerized software program for chemotherapy ordering.

Fitness Checklist

Q. One of my New Year's resolutions was to lose weight by starting an exercise program and changing my nutrition habits. Although I have begun exercising three days a week and have modified my diet, after almost a month I am not seeing any changes. What am I doing wrong?

A. Congratulations on setting a resolution and carrying it out! One of the hardest elements of beginning to exercise and eating properly is waiting for the results. The following checklist can help determine if your workout routine and nutrition are leading you in the right direction:

• Set realistic short- and long-term goals. Setting a big goal is fine IF you can identify smaller goals to reach on the way to achieving a large goal. If your goal is to lose 30 pounds, set a realistic timeframe for this goal to be met. A short-term goal could be consistently completing your exercise routine three times a week, eating breakfast or decreasing your stress level. All of these other goals will help in the larger effort of losing 30 pounds.

• Certain medical conditions and their medications can affect how and at what rate the body loses weight. Some treatments for conditions such as diabetes, hypothyroidism, high blood pressure and menopause can alter the type, frequency and intensity of your exercise program. Be sure to get cleared by your physician.

• Keep an exercise journal and nutrition log. It may seem like a lot of work at first, but writing down each exercise routine and meal can help troubleshoot if results are not being seen. The bonus is that after you begin to see results and reach your goals, you will have a great record as to HOW you were able to do it. A written record can help you see what worked and what didn't.

• Have more than one way of assessing your progress. The scale can tell you how much you weigh, but it can't tell you much else. Choosing an assessment tool such as body fat, cardiovascular endurance, muscle strength or circumference can help you see how your body is changing. While you might not see changes on the scale, you could see changes with your circumference and body fat, which are very significant.

Stay patient and motivated. Exercise and proper nutrition are the keys to a healthy lifestyle. Stay on the right track and know that your work will pay off in the long run.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

TEACHING YOUR CHILD TO BRUSH

It is a good idea for parents to provide brushing instruction and assistance until their children reach age seven. According to one study of 534 five-year-olds, those who had parental supervision for their brushing had 32% fewer cavities than those left to their own devices. With this in mind, teach your child to hold the toothbrush at a 45-degree angle at the point where the gums meet the teeth. They should use a circular massaging motion around each tooth. This motion best removes the plaque that would otherwise accumulate on tooth surfaces every 24 hours. Stress the importance of brushing the back teeth, which are particularly vulnerable to plaque buildup and, consequently, cavities.

Proper brushing and flossing will help keep your and your children's teeth white and healthy. We will be happy to discuss any oral hygiene concerns that you may have. Any time you have a question, please don't hesitate to ask. Good dentistry is more than excellent clinical skills and state-of-the-art equipment. We feel that mutual trust is also a factor in the success of your treatment. Our entire staff believes that open communication can help build this trust. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Parents should teach their children that flossing is every bit as important as brushing.

Super Bowl Sunday At Union Congregational

A Super Bowl Party will be held Sunday at 6 p.m. at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston.

The event will include a pot luck dinner including football sandwiches, a fire in the fireplace, and festive decorations and a football cake.

Non-football fans are invited to attend and view the movie "Seabiscuit" about a special horse, jockey, trainer and owner who wouldn't give up no matter how hard things became.

The public is also invited to celebrate Super Bowl Sunday at Christ Church, 63 Miller St., Middleboro.

The sermon, which will be entitled "Wow," will be an inspirational Christian message using football in general and the New England Patriots in particular to make special points about faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior.

Special Patriots football cake and other treats will be served at the Fellowship Hour following the service, the sanctuary will be decorated with posters of Patriots players, football balloons and Super Bowl signs and the pastor will wear her "Be Silly on Philly" Super Bowl shirt.

Those attending are encouraged to wear football clothing.

A football signed by Patriots star kicker Adam Vinatieri will be on display.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Abraham Lincoln was a great man and patriot. Three factors stood out in Lincoln's life and contributed to his greatness.

The first was his moral character. Lincoln believed that he lived in a universe controlled by moral law. to him it was stupid and hideous that men should attempt to break that moral law. He believed that he, the nation of which he was a part, and all the individuals in the world were under the control of moral forces which they could defy only at their peril.

The second factor in his makeup was his sound common sense. Lincoln believed that the principles and policies which worked in the management of a grocery store at New Salem, the post office over which he had presided, and the little farm his father owned, could be made to work in Washington in handling of a nation.

The third outstanding factor of his life was his unusual spiritual insight. He could see straight into the hearts of men. He had a childlike dependence upon God. Every situation, no matter how secular it might appear, was to him a spiritual situation.

Lincoln as a man of great ability, but his overpowering genious lay in his penetrating insight into spiritual truth.

Vicker DiGravio, Sr., 87

Football, Basketball Star At Quincy High, College Basketball Referee

By TOM HENSHAW

VICKER DiGRAVIO, SR.

When they got around to choosing the first classes of athletes to enter both the football and basketball halls of fame at Quincy High School, the name of Vic DiGravio was right up there with the best.

A member of the depression year class of 1935, he was forced to turn down a football scholarship at Temple University and instead became a nationally known college basketball referee.

At the same time, for 40 years, he put in a full day's work designing ships for the U. S. Navy at the Fore River Shipyard and raising a family that eventually included six children, 11 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren.

Most of them were on hand at the home of his grandson, Dan DiGravio, in Plymouth last Christmas for a final clan gathering around the family patriarch.

Vicker DiGravio Sr., a Weymouth resident since 1940, died Jan. 25 in the Weymouth Healthcare Center at the age of 87. He would have been 88 on Feb. 19.

He was born in Montreal to Italian immigrant parents, Loreto and Concetta DiGravio, their fourth child and first son. His father worked for a company called Vickers Armstrong, hence the unusual first name Vicker.

He captained the 1934 team at Quincy High and starred in a 0-0 tie with North Quincy that saw his game-winning field goal nullified by an offside penalty. His booming punts, however, kept the Raiders at bay.

He was offered a football scholarship to Temple University, then a football power under the famed Coach Pop Warner, but was forced to turn it down because he had received $10 for playing for a Providence semi-pro team

"He played for money in that game to help the family in the Depression," said his brother, Nello DiGravio. "That made him ineligible to play college football.

"My mother hoped he would become a great trumpeter and he used to play at festivals in the North End in Boston. But he lost his front teeth in football and that ended his career as a musician."

Instead, Mr. DiGravio entered the apprentice program at the Bethlehem Steel Company's Fore River Shipyard to become a draftsman, a position he held until his retirement in the 1970s.

He married his high school sweetheart, Hazel Bosworth, a cheerleader and track athlete at North Quincy High School. She died in 1979 and he married Ellen Karhu, a widow, who died 2002.

While he devoted his days to supporting a growing family, he spent his nights and weekends following his first loves, football and basketball.

He played for and coached the Quincy Manets, a semi-pro football team that was among the best in New England. He had an opportunity to officiate at pro football games but turned it down to spend more time with his family.

Mr. DiGravio was best known as a basketball referee. He was a fixture at Ivy League games and traveled around the country to officiate at college tournaments.

Once, he called a fifth foul that put Princeton's All American Bill Bradley out of an NCAA tournament game. Later, Bradley sent him a copy of his autobiography with an inscription acknowledging the call.

"He wrote, 'you took me out of the Final Four with a reaching in foul.'" said Nello DiGravio. "But at the time, Bradley told him 'Nice call.'"

The story is told that once in a game in New York's Madison Square Garden he reached down to pick up a ball when his trousers split. The crowd gave him a standing O and he responded with graceful bow.

He was president of the College Basketball Officials Association and in 1960 he and another referee, Jimmy

Mr. DiGravio leaves two daughters, Karen J. Townsend of Houston, Texas, and Leslie H. Ellison of Roswell, N.M.; two stepdaughters, Nancy Barnes of Weymouth, and Linda Davis of Brockton.

Also three sisters, Loretta DeVito of Hingham, Lillian Pizzi of Weymouth and Lorraine Ferrante of Greenfield and Jupiter, Fla., and a brother, Nello E. DiGravio of Brockton, 10 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren.

He was the father of the late Vicker V. DiGravio Jr. former owner of the Spotlight Tavern in Quincy, and Ronald E. DiGravio, who starred at football at Purdue and the Canadian Football League and coached at Marshfield High School.

A funeral service was held at the McDonald Funeral Home in South Weymouth and burial was in Old North Cemetery, Weymouth.

Fred E. Bergfors Jr.

Retired President Of Quincy Oil

A funeral Mass for Fred Eric Bergfors Jr. of Squantum, retired president of Quincy Oil, was celebrated Wednesday at First Church in Weymouth.

He died Jan. 28.

Mr. Bergfors started with Quincy Oil as a service station attendant at age 12 and retired as president of the company.

He was an Army medic during World War II while stationed in Africa and Italy.

He was a Quincy Rotary Club member for more than 50 years, past president and a Paul Harris fellow.

He was involved in many local charities including the YMCA, American Red Cross and the Cancer Society.

A lifelong music lover, he sang in groups and choirs.

Born in Quincy, he moved to Weymouth 50 years ago. He attended Phillips Academy in Andover and graduated from Williams College where he played varsity baseball.

Husband of the late Elizabeth Jean (Calder) Bergfors, he is survived by a son, Dave DeSieno of Abington; three daughters, Karen Keenan and Cheryl McCarthy, both of Squantum, and Linda Alemian of Abington; a sister, Constance Bergfors Rice of Maryland; 11 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; two great-great-grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You need to be certain that all the right conditions are in place before you take that first step. It can't hurt to listen to good advice from those who have your best interests at heart.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Be careful not to get involved in other people's disputes unless you know the facts behind the disagreements. That's the best way to be assured of making wise and honest decisions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You still need to be careful about how you're going to spend those energy reserves you finally got around to restoring. Best advice: Avoid overdoing it. Let things take their course.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspect continues to favor travel — alone or with that special person. So if you've been putting off making those getaway plans, it's still a good time to get started on them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Those so-called golden opportunities that continue to dazzle the Lion still need to be carefully checked out. Be suspicious about anything that looks like the "perfect" prospect.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Changes at the workplace could make it more difficult to do things the way you prefer. But the wise Virgo who shows some flexibility could find it paying off in a big way.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might want to check out the explanation you were given for a sudden shift in your duties. There's a possibility that you haven't been told all the facts that you deserve to know.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Having confidence in your abilities is important, especially when you could be facing a new challenge, whether it's in the workplace or in a personal relationship. Good luck.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new work-related opportunity might not be all that it seems. Before making any decisions, you might want to check with others who have had some experience in that area.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A situation involving someone close could benefit from your timely intervention. Avoid being judgmental. There'll be plenty of time later for those "little talks" you like to have.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel could be a surprise element in that new project. Be prepared for other previously undisclosed aspects that might also come to light as you proceed with the work.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Try to balance your work-related responsibilities with the time you're spending on your recently revived social life. An old friend might be planning to return after a long absence.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sensitivity makes you aware of the needs of others. Have you considered a career as a counselor?

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HELP WANTED
Advertising Network Coodinator-The New England Press Association has an immediate opening for a full time Advertising Network Coordinator. The advertising network coordinator works closely with the advertising departments to coordinate the day to day activities of classified and display newspaper advertising accounts. This entry level position is an excellent opportunity for a detail-oriented, organized individual who works well in a deadline-driven environment. You'll need to juggle multiple priorities, and work independent while also functioning as part of a team. corded New England weather."

O'Donnell reported the following number associated with the Blizzard of '05:

• 90 snow plowing and sanding vehicles deployed during the height of the storm on Jan. 22 and 23;

• 780 tons of salt and sand spread on Quincy streets before, during and after the blizzard;

• 100,000 cubic yards of snow hauled and removed from the city's school yards, business districts, streets and sidewalks;

• 11,000 man-hours spent dealing with the storm from Jan. 22 through Jan. 27;

• 350 miles of Quincy streets plowed and cleared;

Quincy Police Chief Robert Crowley provided the following numbers associated with the storm:

• 108 cars towed from designated snow emergency arteries;

• 354 parking tickets issued for illegally parked cars near schools;

• 12 civil citations issued to Quincy businesses for violating the snow removal ordinance regarding storefronts;

• 25 cars towed as a result of weather-related accidents;

Residents with specific complaints about illegally parked cars or businesses that are not complying with city ordinances pertaining to snow removal can call the Quincy Police Department at 617-479-1212. Community police officers will also continue to follow up on similar calls.

Prison Book Program Now Located At First Parish Church

The Prison Book Program, a 32-year-old grassroots prisoner support organization, will have an office located in United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The program will celebrate its move to the church by holding an open house on Jan. 30 from 2 to 5 p.m. in the lower level of the church. Church members, local political leaders, and the community at large are expected to attend.

"Our congregation is delighted to provide a home for the Prison Book Program," said Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church. " Their work is so important for opening minds to new possibilities. Their program is in excellent accord with the principles of our Unitarian Universalist faith.

"It well complements other social outreach initiatives of the congregation, including our work with the Greater Boston Interfaith Organization, hosting the Quincy Crisis Center Covenant Meal Program, and conducting an English as Second Language program," he said.

Founded in 1972, the Prison Book Program exists for one purpose - to send free books to prisoners. Originally organized by the Red Book Store Collective in Cambridge, the program was committed to distributing anti-racist, anti-sexist and politically progressive literature.

Prison Book Program is open Tuesday and Thursday from 6:30 to 9 p.m. for volunteers who wish to help support the mission of providing quality reading materials to incarcerated individuals. The program will occupy a room in the church's basement.

For more information go to the program's website at www.prisonbookprogram.org.

Decision Due At End Of Month On Making Up Snow Days

could be on the horizon.

At this point, it's possible the school year will be extended to Monday, June 27, she said. But additional snow days could alter that plan, she said. Summer recess was originally scheduled for June 17.

Several options are available, including extending the school year to the end of June, making Tuesday a full day or opening schools on Saturdays, she said. A last resort would be to cut into April vacation, she said.

But all options are speculation at this point until the final number of snow days can be calculated, she said.

Parker School Students To Salute Lunar New Year

Students at the Parker Elementary School will celebrate the Lunar New Year and diversity through dance, music, poetry and drama Friday, Feb. 4, at 1 p.m. in the school media center, 148 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Students in grades 1-5, dressed in colorful Asian costumes designed by teacher Van Nguyen; will participate the traditional Lion Dance and a Vietnamese Folk Dance, two short plays, "The Land of Many Colors" and "The Peacock with a Fiery Tail."

Grade 3 students will sing the Chinese New Year Song, while first graders will recite the poem "I Like You."

This celebration of the Lunar New Year was written and directed by Parker School teachers Linda Lee, Trang Nguyen and Van Nguyen.

Fourth grade students Jing Fei Zhang and Kim Do will narrate the event and will welcome Mayor William Phelan, School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro and the Parker School families and friends in attendance.

For further information, contact Linda Lee, Trang Nguyen or Cindie Brown at 617-984-8710.

Parker Students' Pennies Add Up To $1,037 For Tsunami Victims

By TOM HENSHAW

Each morning, for a period of four or five weeks, the kids in the fifth grade at the Francis W. Parker Elementary School brought pennies to class.

Each evening their teacher, Marianne Salas, dutifully brought them to the bank and deposited them in a special account.

Last Friday, as the youngsters celebrated the Lunar New Year at their school, the pennies added up to a $1,037 donation to the victims of the Asian tsunami.

That's 103,700 pennies, if you're counting.

The Lunar New Year, also known as "Tet," was observed with songs, dances, poems and plays in the media center at the Parker School, 148 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

The program was written and directed by Linda Lee and Trang Nguyen, English as a second language (ESL) teachers. Van Nguyen, an English immersion teacher, designed the colorful Asian costumes.

A lion dance was performed by Grade 5 ESL students and a Vietnamese folk dance by Grade 3 ESL and English immersion students.

Two plays were staged, "The Land of Many Colors" by Grade 1 students, and "The Peacock With a Fiery Tail," by Grade 4 ESL students.

Grade 1 students recited the poem "I Like You;" Grade 2 and English immersion students did the song and dance "New Year Flowers;" and Grade 3 and English immersion students the song "Happy New Year.

Grade 4 students Jing Fei Zhang and Kim Do narrated the program and welcomed Mayor William Phelan and School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, who made remarks.

Principal Kathleen Foley, secretary Cindie Brown and aides Audrey McGowan and Tiffany Su also participated.

Public Skating To Start Friday On Library Lawn

Young skaters and their families are invited to celebrate the start of school vacation week Friday, Feb. 18, with a fun-filled evening on the ice.

The public skating rink is located on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., and the skating will start at 5 p.m.

"We are fortunate to be able to provide this service," said Mayor William Phelan. "It's an opportunity for families to have some fun and enjoy this wonderful outdoor activity."

This is the second year that the rink has been available free of charge to Quincy residents. It will be open daily, weather permitting, until 9 p.m.

Complimentary hot chocolate will be provided on opening night by the Coffee Break Cafe and cookies from Montilio's bakery will be served.

All participants will have a chance to win a family pass for four to any weekday performance of Disney on Ice at the Fleet Center in Boston.

Mayor Sees Specified Need

McCauley Calls Seniors Tax Cut 'Discriminatory'

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Calling it a financial handout that discriminates against certain residents, Council President Frank McCauley has come out firmly against Mayor William Phelan's proposal giving property tax breaks to longtime homeowners.

In a report outlining the city's financial status, McCauley criticized the mayor's tax-cut plan, describing it as a "giveback" that singles out a certain group of homeowners who may not need the help.

"It's not a good idea," said McCauley. "The whole concept of giving money to certain groups of people is discriminatory."

Phelan is calling for the creation of a special account, called a "Neighborhood Stabilization Fund," that provides tax breaks annually to Quincy homeowners 62 and older and who have lived in their house for 20 years or more.

The mayor's office estimates that approximately 3,000 homeowners would benefit from the plan, receiving anywhere from $300 to $500 annually. The proposal's price tag is estimated at $1 million in Fiscal 2005 alone.

Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide, defended the tax cut plan, saying it will benefit the residents who need it most.

"The mayor feels there is a specific need out there and this fits it perfectly," said Murphy.

"These are people who are 62 and older who are paying more money for food, prescription drugs, heat and other items," he said. "They have no intention of selling their home yet they are not reaping the benefits of an increase in their home valua

Phelan Backs Crowley On Gun Permit Policy

More than 100 gun owners and firearm enthusiasts packed the city council chambers Monday night to rail against Police Chief Robert Crowley and what they perceive as a concerted effort by him to infringe on their right to bear arms.

During Monday night's public safety committee meeting, the standing room only crowd directed much of their ire at Crowley, describing him as an overbearing administrator who holds potential gun owners up to an unrealistic standard.

But Crowley, who has broad discretion over the issuance of gun permits, defended his tough policy, saying gun ownership is not something to be taken lightly. The chief stated Monday night that people must have a reason other than self defense to own a gun.

ROBERT CROWLEY

On Tuesday, Mayor William Phelan lent his support to the chief, saying "the facts reflect an individual who is taking his job seriously."

"Chief Crowley is abiding by the law," said the mayor.

Crowley's policy has sparked intense criticism from gun owners and gun-rights groups across the state. Several residents, as well as representatives from the Gun Owners Action League, the Braintree Rifle and Pistol Club and the Pink Pistols, directed their harshest criticism at Crowley.

"Quincy is a great city, but it's not crime-free," said Garth Morris, Hough Neck

Police Break Up Drug Operation

Quincy Police arrested a 27-year-old Dedham man in connection with an alleged open-air drug dealing operation in a parking lot on Bower Rd.

Detectives from the Quincy Police Drug Unit last week arrested Jason Estano for possession of cocaine with intent to distribute and several motor vehicle charges. At the time of the arrest police said Estano was carrying cocaine with a street value of $1,000 and $1,100 in cash.

Police said complaints from neighbors and disgruntled customers led to the investigation.

According to police, customers would drive to the parking lot and engage in drug deals. Lists of registrations and customers' names are being compiled and further arrests are possible, police said.

During surveillance, police broke up a counterfeit clothing operation. Detectives said charges will be brought against several individuals for selling counterfeit New England Patriots and Boston Red Sox shirts and caps.

Police confiscated the clothes, valued at $2,500. The investigation is ongoing and charges will be sought in Quincy District Court, police said.

Both investigations would not have been successful without the help of neighbors, police said.

Mayor Backs MacRitchie

Controversy Hangs Over QHA Search For New Executive Director

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Controversy continues to swirl around the Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) as the troubled agency seeks to find a new executive director.

QHA's board of commissioners last week decided to move ahead with the interview process to fill the position, despite warnings from state and federal housing officials that at least one candidate, Assistant City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, may not be qualified for the job.

The authority has been without an executive director since Jack Mather left the position 14 months ago.

Last week, the authority's board of commissioners voted 2-1 to schedule interviews for declared finalists for the vacant position. The move comes after state and federal housing officials warned the board that they would withhold funding if the position is filled with someone they consider unqualified.

The board asked state and federal officials to attend last week's meeting to discuss their concerns, but no one showed up.

QHA board members have whittled the number of candidates to six:

• Jay MacRitchie - Assistant City Solicitor, City of Quincy.

• Jacquelyn Loud - QHA's acting director.

• Francis Whitty - QHA's Modernization director.

• Richard Leco - consultant and executive director of the New London, Conn. housing authority.

• Michael Flaherty - Operations director at the Somerville Housing Authority.

• Patrick Morganelli - an affordable housing expert for Sumner Development in Norfolk and a former operations director for the Somerville Housing Authority.

Much of the controversy surrounds MacRitchie's bid for the job. A longtime city hall lawyer who has served under three mayors, MacRitchie is backed by Mayor William Phelan, who believes the Quincy resident is well qualified to assume the duties of executive director.

The authority's five-member board of commissioners will make the final decision on who gets hired to lead the agency. Four members, Chairman James McDonald, Kevin Cotter, Jean Kennedy and Rev. William McCarthy, have been appointed by the mayor. Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone was appointed by the governor.

The board hired a consultant to review the applicants based on criteria outlined in an advertisement for the position.

MacRitchie was considered unqualified by the consultant, but the board voted 4-1 to include him as a legitimate candidate. Cedrone was the lone vote against consideration.

But last month, as board members geared up to interview the candidates, Marc Slotnick, associate director for the state Public Housing and Rental Assistance agency, fired off a letter urging the authority's board to reopen the search process.

According to Slotnick, the board's consultant determined "at least one of the candidates chosen as finalists does not meet the minimum qualifications" for the position of executive director and that "other qualified candidates have withdrawn."

Slotnick did not mention anyone by name, but MacRitchie was placed on the list of finalists by the board despite being disqualified by the consultant.

"The Authority's Board must recognize the urgency and importance of hiring a director who in fact surpasses the basic qualifications and who could bring informed leadership and applicable experience to this job," he wrote in a strongly-worded letter to QHA board members.

As one of the criteria for the position, a candidate must have at least five years of experience "in a significant supervisory or management capacity at a public housing authority or other similar experience."

In addition, a successful candidate must have supervised staff of 10 or more for at least one year, according to the criteria.

If the board hires someone considered unqualified by state and federal officials, the position of executive director will not be fully funded, Slotnick wrote.

"In addition, your Management Rating will be downrated to unacceptable performance which will allow for no staff salary increases and no budget flexibility," he wrote.

Slotnick also said the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has expressed concern about whether the job search involves political maneuvering.

But Slotnick appeared to temper his comments in a subsequent letter dated Jan. 31, saying the state has not formally evaluated any candidate's qualifications.

A DHCD spokesman last week echoed that sentiment and said the agency's origi-

Up To 3,000 Local Households Need Help

Delahunt Urges Bush Release $100 Million For Heating Oil Emergency

Congressman William Delahunt has called on President Bush to immediately release $100 million in federal low-income aid to thousands of southeastern Massachusetts families unable to cope with soaring home heating costs.

Delahunt also joined the state's congressional delegation in supporting a formal federal disaster designation for 14 Commonwealth counties, including Barnstable, Dukes, Nantucket, Norfolk and Plymouth. That federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) request could result in federal assistance for snow removal, storm repairs and the myriad of other problems caused by the recent blizzard.

Delahunt said his office has been fielding calls from dozens of low-income South Shore and Cape & Islands families who are trying to get small amounts of oil delivered to cope with the current weather conditions. Up to 3,000 area households may run out of fuel in the coming weeks, given the current weather conditions.

These households rely on support from a federal program designed to address such problems, the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). LIHEAP is dramatically under-funded, in both its annual allocation and in the emergency monies set aside each year, to deal with natural disasters, Delahunt said.

Earlier this winter, the LIHEAP exhausted the regular allocation and is now tapping into emergency funds. However, the Bush administration has yet to authorize full release of the available $300 million, despite calls from throughout the country.

In the month of December, Bush released only a third of emergency funds, which translated into an additional $28 to $78 for local households that run out of fuel, Delahunt said.

"With oil prices nearing $2 a gallon, how long will this keep a furnace going in this weather?" Delahunt said.

At the same time, most oil dealers are already working overtime and cannot cover small-volume deliveries — most have a minimum 100-gallon delivery requirement.

"This creates a ludicrous situation: the administration can say the problem is 'solved,' but in the real world, no one can get 14 gallons of fuel delivered."

If released, Delahunt said, the additional emergency aid could at least help meet the minimum delivery requirement for those who need fuel in the coming weeks. Delahunt stated that release of the emergency funding, while urgent, is just a stopgap.

Anyone needing fuel assistance in Plymouth or the Cape Cod & Islands, may call South Shore Community Action Council, Inc. at 508-747-7575. In the Quincy-Weymouth area, contact Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. at 617-479-8181.

Adams Shore Seabee Heading To Iraq

Shortly after dawn on Tuesday, Feb. 15, Rickie Wold, 48, of Adams Shore will be off on yet another military assignment for Uncle Sam.

But he'll not be fighting; he'll be building as a member of a Navy Construction Battalion, the far-famed Seabees.

"I can't say where I'll be going," said Wold. "And I can't say what I'll be doing. But it will have something to do with Operation Enduring Freedom in Iraq."

Friends threw a party for him last week at the Houghs Neck American Legion Post as he prepared to depart, leaving behind a wife, Rita, and son, Keith, 2.

The call-up is nothing new to Wold.

In his 19 years, six months, as a Navy CB reservist based in Quincy, he has traveled all over the world to such places as Italy, Spain, Iceland, Guam and Puerto Rico.

His civilian job is that of mechanic with the U. S. Postal Service but when he dons the uniform he becomes Construction Mechanic First Class Wold, ready for action anywhere in the world.

Judge Rules Against Owners

Ritz Motel Closed For Now

The Ritz Motel will stay closed for the time being, after a Norfolk Superior Court judge shot down the owner's attempt to keep the longtime establishment open.

Judge Mitchell Sikora Jr. ruled that the city's evidence against the motel was sufficient reason to keep it closed pending the outcome of a legal battle.

Last month, the city revoked the North Quincy motel's permit, describing the longtime establishment an unsavory business. Owner Gloria Nichols went to court to block the city from closing it down while a legal appeal moved forward.

Judge Sikora did order the appeal process to be sped up, noting the potential economic impact of the closure on motel owners.

Dolores Running For A Cause

That attractive woman in the navy blue running suit sprinting around Quincy despite the cold and snow is on a special mission.

She's Dolores Finn, wife of City Councillor Joseph Finn.

No, she's not out there campaigning for Joe.

She's training – quite vigorously with all the aches and pains that go with it – for the Boston Marathon.

Not just to see if she can do it. But for a worthy cause: helping to find homes for special needs children.

DESPITE THE blizzard and the piles of snow it left behind, Dolores Finn is training with determination for the Boston Marathon and a worthy cause.

Dolores has never run a marathon but entering – and finishing – one has been one of her big ambitions in life.

Having recently turned 40, she thinks now is the time to do it. She has a charity entry slot in this year's marathon.

Dolores is running the marathon to help raise funds for the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE).

MARE is a private non-profit agency that finds homes for special needs children, sibling groups and children who are traditionally hard to place.

"It's such a great cause," Dolores says.

Her goal is to raise at least $2,500 to help that cause.

Adoption and foster child care have been an important part of both Dolores and Joe's lives.

There are now seven children in their home. Four of their own: James Patrick, 12; Conall, 10; Michael, 7; and Kevin, 5. The fifth, Ty, 4, is a former foster child the Finns adopted. And there are two foster children, a six-month-old boy and an 18-month-old girl who are Ty's siblings. Dolores and Joe hope to adopt them, too, to keep the two brothers and sister together.

"We started short term foster care," says Dolores, "which has grown into longer foster care and adoptions."

Dolores did some running in high school in Manahawkin, N.J. and at St. Bonaventure College in N.Y. Her longest distance: 18 miles.

And she hadn't done any running at all for 14 years until last August when she decided to take a shot at the Boston Marathon and its' grinding 26.2-mile course.

She's been running short distances – 6 and 8 miles – gradually working her way up the marathon ladder.

She clocked 14 milles last week in two and a half hours and 16 this past Sunday in a little over three hours. She'll do another 16 later this week. Then 18 for a couple of weeks and next: 20-21 miles.

DOLORES starts off on a 16-mile run Sunday as she works her way up to the 26.2-mile Boston Marathon course.

"Once I reach that 20-21 mile plateau, 26 miles can't be too far away," she says.

She's been training three or four days a week using the book The Non-Runner Marathon Trainer as a guide.

The blizzard and cold weather slowed her down a little but she refused to let it stop her.

"Actually the cold isn't the problem," she says, noting the running suit which Joe gave her has protective layers.

"But it's been the snow and ice you have to watch out for. Gets a little treacherous."

Joe has been sending out letters to friends asking them to help Dolores reach that $2,500 goal through donations.

"It will make a difference for all those special kids looking for a place to call home," he writes.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution – regardless of size – should make a check payable to MARE and mail it to Dolores at 15 Williams St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

Dolores also has a personal page website www.justgiving.com/pfp/finn if anyone wants to make an on-line donation. Donations, she notes, can be made anonymously.

Deadline is March 15.

In his letter, Joe muses:

"Let me tell you about my wife's mid-life crisis. Dolores, in honor of turning 40 years old, has decided to fulfill a life-long ambition of entering and completing a marathon.

"Dolores, never one to set her sights low, has decided to start with the grandfather of them all, the Boston Marathon."

And adds:

"As far as mid-life crisis go, this is not a bad one. She isn't looking for a new car, new house, or a trip to an expensive spa, so I'm going to do all I can to support this effort and I hope you will, too.

"And hopefully, we will see Dolores over the finish line on Patriots' Day."

Dolores is determined to be there.

"I feel good," she says with a smile. "I'm getting stronger. I know I can finish that marathon."

She has that determined look that says she will.

And a special needs child somewhere will be the real winner.

Unobstructed Exits A Safety Must

By Captain TOM LYONS
Quincy Fire Department

Egress Access: Whether in an assembly occupancy, office building, mercantile property, resident or any building for that matter, the importance of maintaining unobstructed exits cannot be overstated.

Smoke can obscure visibility within seconds while fire is unforgiving. Exit access should avail itself to an immediate evacuation response. During inspections for instance, even the presence of a broom or shovel adjacent to that exit door is of concern to me where it can easily become a trip hazard and hinder to evacuation of a building.

The time to be moving items away from that exit door isn't during an emergency when panic may prevail. During the winter months, snow removal from outside of those important exit doors should be a routine priority as well. Maintain usable, readily available exits!

When in an assembly occupancy, theatre, nightclub or restaurant, make certain that you are aware of alternate means of exiting a building should an emergency arise. Typically, people are familiar with the way they enter with little thought to alternate means of exiting. Get in the habit of checking out the alternate exits when frequenting assembly occupancies.

Exit access is of no more importance than in your own home. Keep those two means of leaving your home free and clear at all times. Growing up within a firefighter's home, each bedroom had a window made easily accessible and easy to open should an emergency arise while family members were sleeping. For that matter, bedrooms in basements are discouraged if alternate means of exiting are not available.

I believe at times the visual limitations of a movie depicting a fire within a building can lead us to believe that exiting can be done more easily than in reality. The facts are that smoke can obscure our vision fairly quickly adding to confusion as well, while our immediate intolerance for extreme heat can lead us away from exits if evacuation is not performed in a timely manner.

Be safe!

Quincy Schools To Screen For Preschool Programs

The Quincy Public Schools will hold screenings during March for eligible children, born between Sept. 1, 2000, and Aug. 31, 2002, to fill openings in three preschool programs.

Sheets Sworn In As Councillor Two Months After Election

This Week
1974
31 Years Ago

Two months after he was elected Ward 4 councillor, James Sheets was sworn into office.

The delay was the result of a conflict of interest question that was raised concerning his job at the city sponsored Quincy Junior College.

The case was resolved this week by Superior Court Judge Harry Kalus who ruled that Sheets could collect both his salary as councillor and college professor. He said there was no conflict of interest in the law because as councillor Sheets would not exercise direct supervision over the school department.

City Clerk John Gillis said he was glad the court ruled the way it did. "I'd have sworn Sheets into office back in January when he was supposed to have taken the oath even though I thought there was a conflict of interest," he said.

ALTERNATE GAS SALES BEGIN

In an attempt to reduce the lines at gas stations, Massachusetts adopted the Oregon plan which allowed for cars to gas up on odd or even dates, depending on the first digit of their license plate.

Although some observers said there was no difference in the lines, most gas station owners thought the new system worked well.

Forest Mason of Hancock Exxon said lines were very manageable and he was pleased with the plan.

Prior to the state adopting a uniform system to deal with the gasoline shortages, stations were giving preference to long-time customers. Atty. Bryan Stevens had brought the owner of a station on Furnace Brook Parkway to court to challenge preferred sales.

MEADY CALLS FOR NEW CITY AUDITORIUM

Leo Meady of Quarry St., social events chairman for the 350th Anniversary Commission, said the city should resurrect plans of several years ago to build a combination City Hall and public auditorium.

He noted there was a need for such a facility and that it would be a fitting memorial to mark the anniversary celebration.

"In recent years people have rebelled against statues, fountains and the like as memorials for anniversary events. A so-called living memorial seems to be desired today," he said.

Mark Leighton And Peter Bloom

Guitarist, Flutist Concert Feb. 13 At Crane Library

Guitarist Mark Leighton and flutist Peter Bloom will present a concert entitled "Not Lost in Translation: Songs on Flute and Guitar" Sunday, Feb. 13 at 3 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The free concert is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

For more information, call 617-376-1301.

The concert will include instrumental arrangements of songs from different eras and continents, including "Bachianas Brasileiras" by Brazilian composer Villa Lobos, favorite tunes from George Gershwin, "Songs from the Chinese" by 20th century composer Benjamin Britten, music of John Dowland (Elizabethan England's most famous lutenist), and the premiere of "To Music," a 2003 composition by Elizabeth Vercoe, who was hailed by The Washington Post as "one of the most inventive composers working in America today."

Leighton is a classical and jazz guitarist known for his wide-ranging repertoire. He has performed as a solo recitalist and ensemble player across New England.

GUITARIST MARK LEIGHTON and FLUTIST PETER BLOOM

Leighton is a regular member of Copley Chamber Players. He has served on the Applied Music Faculty at Colby College since 1981 and also teaches at Eastern Nazarene College.

Leighton has been Artistic Director of First Night Quincy for more than a decade and was previously director of the Beechwood Music School in Quincy.

A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, Leighton studied with David Leisner and Sharon Isbin, among others.

Bloom is a soloist and ensemble flutist who has performed across the U.S. and appears on more than 20 CDs from labels such as Sony Classical, Newport Classics and Dorian. The Boston Globe called his playing "a revelation for unforced sweetness and strength," while Jazz Improv praised his "exquisite melody."

Bloom has given solo recitals from Boston's Jordan Hall and to Beverly Hills, and he has appeared nationally with classical and jazz ensembles such as the Aston Magna Festival Orchestra, Ensemble Chaconne, Columbia's Musick, and the Aardvark Jazz Orchestra. He was a winner of the American Musicological Society's Noah Greenberg Award for his performance of 19th century American music.

The Year Of The Rooster

Quincy Lunar New Year Festival To Be Held Feb. 27

Final preparations are underway for the 17th annual Quincy Lunar New Year Festival to be held Sunday, Feb. 27, at North Quincy High School.

This celebration of the Asian New Year will begin with opening ceremonies at 11 a.m. and will continue until 4 p.m. The festival is a free event presented by Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI).

The Asian Lunar New Year is celebrated at the end of the annual cycle of new moons and each New Year is named for one of the 12 animals. According to ancient legend, the Lord Buddha once summoned all animals to come to him. When only 12 came, he rewarded them by naming each year for them. 2005 is the year of the Rooster.

Lunar New Year celebrations are held in Asian communities throughout the world. Traditionally, the New Year is a family holiday. Families come together to visit, share meals and present gifts of "lucky" red envelopes to children. Quincy's celebration will reflect this tradition.

"The New Year Festival is a great family event," said Ken An, president of the QARI Board of Directors. "It represents the involvement of many different groups including students of the North Quincy High Asian Culture Club and Thomas Jefferson Forum, our Grand Sponsor, Sunshine Travel, the Wollaston Senior Center, Quincy Medical Center and the Chinese American Fine Arts Society all working to bring together several generations of the community to celebrate."

As a family event, the festival will offer entertainment for all ages. There will be performances of Chinese and Filipino music and dance and exhibits featuring the work of local Asian artists. The festival will also feature the Lion Dance and traditional Chinese movies. A children's area will be available with Asian games and, new this year, there will be a senior citizen program area featuring crafts and calligraphy. Local restaurants will be offering different types of Asian cuisine including Chinese and Vietnamese foods.

"The Lunar New Year Festival is a wonderful event not only for the Asian community but for the entire city," said John Brothers, executive director of QARI. "This year's festival promises to be the biggest and best yet with the introduction of a community banquet to kick off the festival by bringing the whole community together."

The Quincy Lunar New Year Community Banquet will be held the evening prior to the festival at the International Buffet Restaurant, 237 Quincy Ave., Quincy. Tickets are $15 for adults and $8 for children. The banquet program will include a free raffle and musical entertainment.

More than 100 local businesses, government and social service agencies and individuals will be participating in the Lunar New Year Festival and Community Banquet. The Grand Sponsors of this year's festival are Sunshine Travel and Mohegan Sun. The Patriot Ledger and The Quincy Sun are media sponsors for the event.

QARI is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to promoting the development of the Asian-American community. To purchase tickets to the Community Banquet or for more information about the Lunar New Year Festival or QARI, contact QARI at 617-472-2200 or visit www.qari.info.

Quincy Lions Welcome New Members, Mark Anniversaries

QUINCY LIONS Club President Jennifer Logue presents her father, City Council President and Former Mayor Frank McCauley, with a commendation from Lions Club International President Clement Kusiak recognizing McCauley for his dedication to Lionism. On Jan. 6, the Quincy Lions Club not only marked the club's 64th anniversary, but also celebrated Frank McCauley's 45th anniversary as a member of the Quincy service organization.

Former Mayor's Granddaughter Cited For Spreading Educational Word

NANCY PAUL

The teacher-granddaughter of former Quincy Mayor David McIntosh has been cited in a national magazine for spreading the word on a unique method of family involvement in education.

Nancy Paul, a fourth grade teacher at the Dawson School in Holden, Mass., wrote the article describing her school's "Continents Month" in the December issue of "Educators' Notebook on Family Involvement."

She is the daughter of David MacIntosh (with an "a") of Quincy, son of David McIntosh (without an "a"), who served as Plan E mayor of Quincy in the early 1950s.

"Continents Month," as described by Nancy Paul, goes like this:

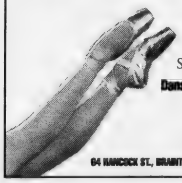
Youngsters in each grade at the Dawson School choose a continent to study for a month, from Antarctica in kindergarten to Europe in the fifth grade.

Parents who have visited those continents are invited to class to show slides or other photos and answer questions the children may have about the geography and customs of that continent.

Parents are challenged to try recipes for new and unusual foods from the continent under study at home and, at the end of the month, share their favorite foods in a Continental Buffet.

Parents with special talents are invited to work with the children on the arts of the various continents and, at the end of the month, sing, dance and display their arts at a special Continents Night.

Throughout the month, the youngsters work on a project to display what they have learned and, at the end of the month, they put their projects on display.



The school district of which Holden is part congratulated Nancy Paul "for highlighting this excellent example of school/family involvement."

Morrisette Post Annual Memorial Mass Feb. 21

The Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post will hold its 76th annual Memorial Mass Monday, Feb. 21, at 10 a.m. at St. Mary's Church, Crescent Street, West Quincy.

The Rev. John Rowan, pastor, will celebrate the Mass.

Prior to the Mass, Commander Kevin Corcoran and Robert LaFleur, historian and past commander, will place wreaths on the graves of Cyril P. Morrisette and John A. Boyd in St. Mary's Cemetery at 8:45 a.m.

The roll call of deceased members will be read by Past Commanders Henry Bradley and Lawrence Norton. Past Commanders Tom Stansbury and Harold DiMattio are chief marshal and chaplain.

Honored guests will be Gold Star Mothers and families of deceased veterans.

LaFleur urges all Morrisette Post members, veteran organizations and the general public to attend the special ceremony honoring all deceased veterans.

Prayers will be offered for all uniformed men and women who are deployed overseas particularly in Iraq and Afghanistan.

4 Residents On Stonehill Dean's List

Four Quincy residents were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Stonehill College in Easton.

They are Kimberly S. Dennis, Brian E. Kenney, Marilyn J. Power and James P. Coughlin.

Church Vacation Camp To Stress Healthy Life

The Wollaston Congregational Church will conduct a Healthy Kids Vacation Camp from Tuesday, Feb. 22 to Thursday, Feb. 24, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the church, 48 Winthrop Ave.

The cost for the three days is $20 per child, including all supplies. The number of children is limited to 50 by pre-registration only. Call 617-773-7432 to request a registration form.

On the first day, Charlotte Doer will bring to life Rosalita's Puppets in a performance of "The Sea Story" in which a mermaid, a pirate, a whale and other sea creatures focus on healthy choices.

After the show, Doer will run a puppet-making workshop during which the children will make their own puppets based on the theme of healthy choices.

On the second day, the youngsters will participate in a Kids Yoga class taught by Christine Way-Cotter, a certified Kripalu Yoga instructor; and learn about healthy snacks from Sharon Gallagher, a registered dietitian.

The third day will be devoted to TV fun, starting with Patricia Henley's educational presentation of the effects of second hand smoke and the benefits of a smoke-free home.

Next the kids will go to art classes with Kate Furler, an artist who spends half the year in Dublin, Ireland, and half in the United States. She will help the children with art that expresses healthy messages.

The closing event on Thursday, which will be open free of charge to the entire community, will consist of a performance by Bonnie Main, also known as "the Creepy, Crawly Lady," and her animals from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Her snakes, lizards and other assorted animals appeal to everyone from the youngest children to the oldest adults.

The program was designed by the Rev. Mary Louise Gifford, pastor of the Wollaston Congregational Church, and Patricia Henley of the Blue Hills Tobacco-Free Community Mobilization Network.

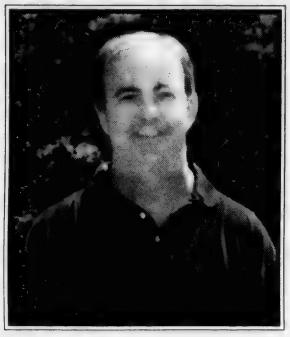
The vacation camp is backed by a mini-grant from the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance, the South Shore Hospital and Shields MRI of Massachusetts.

Ward 4 Democrats Caucus Saturday

The Ward 4 Democratic Committee will meet in caucus Saturday, Feb. 12, at 10 a.m. to select delegates to the 2005 State Democratic Convention May 14 in Lowell.

The meeting will be held in the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

All residents registered as Democrats in Ward 4 are eligible to be one of the five female and five male delegates or three female and three male alternates who will be selected.



Any questions should be directed at Bryan Connolly at 617-479-7543.

Robert Muollo On Dean's List

Robert A. Muollo Jr. has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester as a second-year student at Dean College in Franklin.

He established a 4.0 grade-point average. He is a peer tutor, a member of Phi Theta Kappa and a tri-captain of the baseball team. As the starting pitcher, he will travel with the team to Ft. Pierce, Fla., in March.

$30,000 Grant Will Jumpstart New Cultural Events

Quincy ArtsAlive! And Well

Quincy's efforts to bolster its tourism industry received a big boost when it was announced recently that the city would receive a $30,000 state grant to jumpstart several new arts programs and cultural events.

The funds from the Massachusetts Cultural Council (MCC) will go to establish "Quincy ArtsAlive!," a new program launched by Discover Quincy, the city's nonprofit tourism bureau, and aimed at bolstering the tourism industry and revitalizing the downtown.

Several organizations teamed up with Discover Quincy to raise funds for the matching grant. They include the City of Quincy, Quincy Art Association, Quincy 2000, Adams National Historical Park and the Quincy Historical Society.

At least six new programs/events will grace the city beginning this April, according to Jennifer Logue, executive director of Discover Quincy. They are:

• Patriot's Day Celebration - April 18, 2005: The event will feature colonial reenactments, historical interpreters, music, colonial cooking demonstrations and an exhibition of independence-themed artwork.

• Downtown Holiday Stroll - December, 2005.

• Celebrate Quincy! Multicultural Event - January, 2006.

• "A Marriage of True Minds" - February, 2006: A play based on John and Abigail Adams' correspondence.

• Women of Quincy - March, 2006: Theatrical presentation.

• Culture Club Business Program - Quincy ArtsAlive! will recruit businesses that will offer discounts on the day of ArtsAlive! events as a way of encouraging people to patronize Quincy shops and restaurants before/after attending performances.

• New Visitor Guide

• ArtsAlive! Website

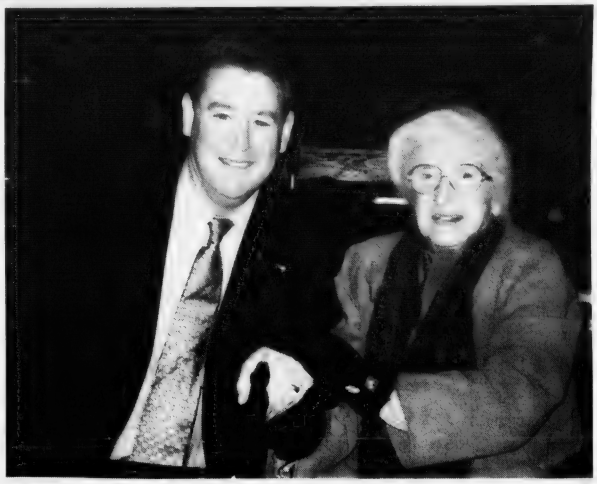
Last summer, only days after assuming the position of Executive Director, Logue saw an opportunity for Quincy to take advantage of the Massachusetts Cultural Council grant.

"I thought it was a perfect match for Quincy," she said. "This program will offer a greater way for us to raise awareness of Quincy's cultural community."

Logue said the new programs will also seek to increase foot traffic in the downtown area during off-peak times, such as winter and spring.

"There is a hole in Quincy's tourism calender after November, and we are looking to fill that gap," she said.

Logue said Discover Quincy will be reaching out to businesses and possible corporate sponsors as a way of raising funds for the matching grant. A nominal fee may be charged at certain events to raise funds, she said.



Fundraising activities, such as the Mayor's Garden Party at the historic Adams estate, also go to benefit tourism.

The City of Quincy has also pledged $10,000 for the project.

MCC launched its cultural economic development program in 1997 to support activities that help revitalize communities, stimulate income and attract tourism.

Despite some success, the state grant program was suspended in 2002. Last year, however, the Massachusetts Advocates for the Arts, Sciences and Humanities pushed the state Legislature and Gov. Mitt Romney to reinvest in cultural economic development.

Overall, MCC released nearly $1 million in grants this year to fund 22 projects across the Commonwealth.

An Important Message To Quincy Parents:

YOUR CHILDREN'S ACCESS TO ALCOHOL HITS YOU WHERE YOU LIVE.

A recent survey sponsored by The Impact Quincy Coalition found that almost 30% of Quincy Kids between the ages of 12 and 16 obtain alcohol from their own homes.

Here are some tips to help keep your children safe:

- Don't keep alcohol where it can be easily obtained by kids.
- Store all alcohol in locked cabinets.
- Closely monitor any alcohol you have and keep in mind that you can be liable if a minor drinks alcohol on your property.

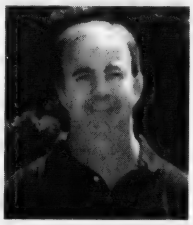
Tour Guide Aides Sought For Church Of Presidents

Volunteers are needed to assist in conducting visitor tours of Historic United First Parish Church, where two of the first six presidents of the United States are buried.

The Unitarian-Universalist church, which is still an active house of worship, is part of the Adams National Historic Park and is open for tours from mid-April to mid-November.

A basement crypt is the final resting place of the second President John Adams and his son, the sixth president John Quincy Adams, and their wives.

John Quincy Adams, who donated the land for construction of what has come to be called the Church of the Presidents, once occupied Pew No. 1.



Anyone interested in becoming an associate tour guide should contact Arthur Ducharme at 781-878-1548 or 617-773-0062 for more information.

Lawrence Butler Memorial Scholarship Dance March 5

The friends of the late Larry Butler will host a dance for the benefit of the Lawrence S. Butler Jr. Memorial Scholarship Saturday, March 5, from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight at the Tirrell Room in the Elks Hall.

Tickets will be available at the door with a $20 donation. Checks should be made payable to the Lawrence S. Butler Jr. Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Butler, a lifelong Quincy resident, was director of registration and outreach services, particularly to under- or uninsured city residents, at Quincy Medical Center (QMC) for 20 years until his death Dec. 4, 2002.

LAWRENCE BUTLER

The scholarship, which was established by Butler's family, awards $1,000 to a Quincy resident in his or her sophomore or junior year at an accredited college, who is planning to work in health care administration and has a minimum grade point average of 3.0.

Application forms are now available for the scholarship from the fund, which now totals more than $10,000 due to the generosity of friends and family. Donations can be made to the Quincy Medical Center Foundation.

Completed applications should be returned to the Quincy Medical Center Foundation Office, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy 02169, before Feb. 24.

To request a scholarship application, call the QMC Development Office at 617-376-5495.

The March 5 benefit dance will feature music by the DJ Franny Sullivan and a cash bar. For more information on the dance, call 617-376-4101.

Dozens Attend Local Memorial Services For Tsunami Victims

Dozens of Quincy residents of all faiths gathered the other day in United First Parish Church to take part in an interfaith memorial service for the victims of the recent tsunami in southeastern Asia.

The service was co-sponsored by Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) and the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home. QARI also collected hundreds of dollars to help continue ongoing relief operations.

"It was wonderful to see so many faith communities represented at the service," said Joseph Reardon, a funeral director at Sweeney and a member of the QARI board of directors.

"The size of the crowd attending the service was a tribute to the sense of community we have in Quincy."

The service was led by the Rev. Sheldon W. Bennett, pastor of United First Parish Church, and feature prayers from many of the faiths practiced in Quincy and the areas where the tsunami occurred.

They included Master Sik Foo Yin of the Thousand Buddhas Temple, Imam Talal Eid of the Islamic Center of New England, the Rev. M. Alicia Corea of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, and the Rev. Vincent P. Doolan of St. Joseph Catholic Church.

They were joined by other religious leaders representing Buddhist, Hindu, Christian and Jewish communities including the Vrindavana Preservation Society (VPS) and the Vedanta Society.

Ajay "Jay" Gupta, a member of VPS, shared a report on relief measurer in the tsunami area, where local volunteers have been working to create housing and educational resources in the face of unimaginable destruction.

"Jay Gupta and VPS stand as examples of the genuine compassion demonstrated by so many in Quincy," said Kenneth An, president of QARI.

""QARI is fortunate to benefit from this compassion as we work to serve the needs of not only the Asian community but the entire community."

Quincy Access Television (QATV) taped the event for future broadcast on Cable Channel 8.

UNCLE SAM ROUNSEVILLE has donated the use of his billboard at Newport Avenue and Beale Street, Wollaston, to help another worthy cause: the Tsunami Disaster Relief Fund through the American Red Cross International.

3 Residents On Framingham Dean's List

Three Quincy residents were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Framingham State College.

They are Julia G. Wilkinson, majoring in biology; Meredith A. Acton, majoring in fashion design and retailing; and Nancy M. Yankun, majoring in languages.

Wilkinson and Yankun were also named to the President's List, having been named to the Dean's List for three straight semesters.

Phelan Backs Crowley On Gun Permit Policy

resident. "I would like to see our tax dollars directed at punishing criminals instead of law abiding citizens."

Charles Fazio of Fenno St. complained about state gun laws, saying regulations give chiefs too much latitude over the issuance of gun permits.

"You are at the mercy of whatever town you live in," he said. "But give us the benefit of the doubt, if we foul up, take the license away."

Quincy resident Donald Kusser said the majority of gun owners are "good, decent and honorable people."

"All we are asking for is our rights - don't take that right away from me," he told the committee.

On several occasions, Committee Chairman Dan Raymondi banged his gavel to quiet the crowd. And Raymondi urged residents not to resort to personal attacks against the chief.

During the two-hour meeting, Crowley held his ground and presented a chart showing that he has granted 94 percent of applications and renewals since taking over as chief last July.

Crowley noted that only three applicants have appealed his decision. Two of those decisions were upheld in District Court, he said. The third was overturned on appeal, he said.

In 2002, 550 gun permits were issued to city residents. Two were denied and six others revoked. In 2003, 773 gun permits were issued, nine were denied, 11 revoked and two suspended.

The number of gun permits issued by the police department took a dramatic dip in 2004. Crowley took over as chief during the year. About 427 gun permits were issued, 26 were denied, 17 permits were revoked and 15 others were suspended.

In several instances licenses were not granted because applicants did not live in Quincy, had a criminal record or did not fill out the application properly, said Crowley. Several applicants were untruthful on their gun application, which is an automatic cause for denial under state law, he said.

Crowley said he thoroughly investigates an applicant's background before issuing a permit.

"It is an enormous responsibility to carry a firearm," he said. "If you don't answer truthfully, we will find out.

"If someone has a legitimate reason, tell me and I'll issue it. But if they can't give me a reason why they need it, I'm not going to issue it."

Crowley said he evaluates applications on a "case-by-case" basis. He said it is also important for gun owners to be able to properly use a gun before obtaining an ALP (All Lawful Purpose) permit.

The chief admitted that he has downgraded several licenses from the widely used ALP category to those with restrictions such as "for employment" or "target shooting."

Some councillors expressed concern with that policy and asked the chief for more information on the number of downgrades.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said he was troubled over the number of residents filling the council chamber, at one point telling Crowley, "I'm wondering why it's such an issue if it's going as smoothly as you've indicated."

But Councillor at-Large Frank McCauley lent his support to the chief, saying, "It's better to err on the conservative side rather than the liberal side."

Raymondi said the group will meet again to discuss the issue further.

After the meeting, Dave Murphy, Phelan's aide, strongly backed Crowley's role in issuing permits, and said the chief is "doing due diligence for all Quincy residents, including law abiding gun owners."

"The chief has an awesome responsibility in his hands, as laid out under state law," said Murphy. "There is a process in place, and the mayor supports the chief's role in that process."

Controversy Hangs Over QHA Search For New Executive Director

nal comments "were not directed at any particular individuals."

"We would have taken this same course of action had it been 350 other cities or towns in Massachusetts," said Phil Hailer, DHCD spokesman. "When the board chooses a candidate DHCD will be more than glad to render an opinion," he said.

The candidate chosen by the board will be reviewed by Public Housing and Rental Assistance arm of DHCD, said Hailer.

The consultant's opinion is backed by Cedrone, who believes MacRitchie is unqualified for the position.

But Cotter said MacRitchie has "comparable experience" and should not be excluded from the list of candidates.

"I think he is qualified - we need to take a broad look at people, not a narrow view," he said. "Jay has an outstanding record working for the city. But we haven't selected anybody yet."

Several other local and housing officials have publicly supported MacRitchie's bid.

Sen. Michael Morrissey said it is premature to disqualify MacRitchie's candidacy until the board reviews his credentials.

"The state should take a hard look at his credentials before they write him off," said Morrissey. "What is it about his background and experience that makes him unqualified to hold the position? He's dealt with a broad range of issues, such as tenant-landlord topics, capital improvement issues and as a board member of the MWRA. I think the board should be given the opportunity to review his credentials."

If the state and federal government decides to withhold funding, QHA does not have the financial resources to make up that gap, said Cedrone.

"We don't have the money to fund that position," she said, noting that the agency must maintain a certain level in its reserve account to stay on solid footing with state and federal housing officials.

"It's quite obvious that the two agencies are concerned, and it should be a concern for the board, since we have no other funding mechanism for the position," she said.

QHA has been on the receiving end of much criticism after a state auditor's report last year said the agency had insufficient operating reserves and took more than a year longer than state guidelines to fill low-income rental units.

Friendly Visitors Sought For Seniors

WINTER CAR CARE

AAA Recommends Emergency Equipment Kit

Because even the best maintained vehicles can fall victim to frigid winter weather, AAA recommends every vehicle carry the following items to ensure safe winter travel:

Flashlight: A working flashlight should be stored where the driver can access it without leaving the vehicle. That will enable the motorist to see obstacles and be seen by other drivers when exiting the vehicle in an emergency. Also carry spare batteries.

Jumper Cables: Jumper cables can be an essential tool for starting vehicles with weak or dead batteries, but they should only be used by individuals familiar with proper safety precautions. Vehicle owner's manuals should be consulted for instructions.

Abrasive Material: Sand or non-clumping cat litter can be spread under the wheels to improve traction when a vehicle becomes stuck in snow or ice. Special traction mats and even floor mats also can be used for this purpose.

Shovel: A small shovel can be used to carefully dig snow away from the wheels.

Warning Devices: Flares or reflective triangles alert other motorists that you are broken down or stuck and helps give them enough time to slow down in order to pass safely.

Blankets: Cold weather can quickly turn an inconvenient breakdown into a life-threatening situation. Blankets can provide valuable protection against the cold and can help keep you comfortable until help arrives. Floor mats and newspapers can also be used to provide insulation in emergencies.

Snow Brush/Ice Scraper: It's important that windows and lights are clear of ice and snow in order to maintain adequate visibility. The entire vehicle should be brushed clear so blowing snow does not become a hazard for other motorists.

Cellular Phone: A cellular telephone comes in handy when a motorist needs assistance in the event of a vehicle breakdown.

Make sure your car also has insurance information and a valid registration. You may also wish to have a disposable camera to have a record of any vehicle damage if involved in a crash.

Protecting Your Automotive Investment

When having your vehicle inspected, AAA offers the following tips"

• Inspect the tires. Regardless of vehicle age or mileage, wear and underinfaltion occur in most tires. It's important to check your tires at least once a year and before any trip.

• Check the brakes. If the vehicle has more than 30,000 miles on the odometer, or it has been more than 30,000 miles since the last brake job, it's time to have your brakes inspected and possibly services.

• Replace the wiper blades. Inclement weather can occur anytime, anywhere. Be prepared by having new windshield wiper blades installed.

• Monitor the level and condition of oil. Change the oil if it has been more than 7,000 miles since the last oil change. Keep in mind that older vehicles will need more frequent oil changes.

• Check the coolant. Flush and refill engine coolant if it has been more than three years since the last coolant change.

For more information about car maintenance, visit www.aaa.com.

Tires, Car Maintenance Keys To Winter Driving

(NU) — Who hasn't slipped and slid across an icy road or struggled to see clearly out of a foggy windshield? The cold winter months bring an increase in dangerous driving conditions. Make sure your car is up to the test.

First, think tires. Avoid that frightening feeling you get when your car has little traction during inclement weather conditions by putting on a set of winter tires. Today's winter tires are designed for snow and ice performance, with tread that reduces the risk of slipping and allows for better traction. Remember, the only part of your vehicle that touches the ground is the tire.

In addition to the right tires, you also need appropriate car maintenance.

"To help remain safe on winter's icy roads, adopt good vehicle maintenance practices," advises Trisha Hessinger, car education specialist and pace car driver. "Firestone Tire and Service Centers offer winter car care tips to help bolster car performance — and driver confidence — during the colder months."

As in all seasons, make sure tires are properly inflated, rotated, aligned and replaced as necessary. As outside temperatures drop, the air inside a tire contracts and the pressure is reduced. Therefore, check your tire pressure often during colder months. Underinflation will lessen the gripping action because the tread will not meet the road surface as it is designed to do; this also occurs with overinflation.

Tires should be checked weekly at times when the tires have been driven less than a mile or have not moved in at least three hours.

Other vehicle components that need to be checked by a certified automotive technician include the engine, battery, exhaust, heating and defrosting systems. Also, make sure the vehicle's main fluids are filled to recommended levels.

Drivers should keep their gas tanks full throughout the winter, as the extra volume can help lessen moisture problems within the fuel system and add helpful weight.

You'll be thankful for the added driving control and feeling of security that winter tires and the right maintenance will give you the next time you get behind the wheel during a snow storm.

WHEN MILEAGE DOESN'T ADD UP

When in the market for a pre-owned vehicle, consumers should pay particular attention to the mileage on the vehicle's odometer and mileage documentation. It is an unfortunate fact of life that some sellers "roll back" the odometer in an effort to get a higher price. Although illegal in all states, it may go undetected by an unwary consumer. With this in mind, consumers should figure that the average driver puts between 12,000 and 15,000 miles on a vehicle per year. Multiply this average with the age of the vehicle. The numbers should add up. Also, on a mechanical (non-digital/LCD) odometer, the numbers of the gauge should be correctly aligned. If they are crooked, they may have been altered.

No matter what your car's mileage LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) is your local auto center that can handle most all your automotive needs, a shop that wants to earn your return business, a shop that treats you like a person and not a number. We never compromise the wonderful reputation we have earned from our many satisfied customers. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: The wear and tear on a used vehicle should be consistent with the number of miles it has been driven. Look at the gas, brake and clutch pedals for indications.

How Not to Dry Your Car

A question from a reader in South Carolina about the use of paper towels instead of a terry cloth to dry her car brought back memories of when yours truly (that's right!) used to use paper towels — until I finally learned my lesson.

I had a beautiful red and white '51 Buick Special and pretty much roughed up the paint on the trunk lid because of a paper towel back in the '60s. Here's why paper towels, or even T-shirts, are not a good choice.

During a car's wash cycle, dirt is lifted from the car's surface and mixed in with the water/wash/rinse liquids. During the drying process, this dirt is still mixed with the leftover water on your car, and it needs a place to "hide" and be absorbed into. A terry towel or cloth diaper provides a place for the dirt to hide because of their truly superior absorbent design.

Basically, the dirt clings to the cloth's fibers and imbeds into the fiber instead of embedding back into your car's paint, resulting in miniscule scratches. If you look closely at a paper towel, there are thousands of paper areas that won't absorb because of its web design. Terry cloth is not webbed.

Back to my 1951 Buick. My car sat for weeks, and I thought I could give it a quick once over. My paper towel choice was a bad one, as the dirt was pretty thick and my wash-and-dry method was poor. Miniscule scratches turned into scratches recognizable to the naked eye, and the paint job was ruined.

Never again!

Presidents' Day Celebration Feb. 21 In Quincy Center

Mayor William J. Phelan announces the ninth annual Presidents' Day Winter Carnival will take place Monday, Feb. 21, from 12 noon to 4 p.m. in Quincy Center.

"The City of Presidents is proud to offer this unique experience rich in educational value and patriotism," said Mayor Phelan. "This is a fun, affordable, convenient event to kick off school vacation week."

The admission-free event will feature live patriotic music and entertainment, Presidential reenactments, ice sculptures, magic shows and many more activities for children spread across venues including City Hall, Presidents Place and the Church of the Presidents.

In addition, the National Parks Service will host activities at the Visitors' Center focusing on life in Colonial America. Children will have the opportunity to roll beeswax candles, meet John and Abigail Adams and participate in marching and drilling exercises.

The majority of the events will take place indoors, but there will be street performers, an outdoor miniature golf course and skating at the rink on the Thomas Crane Public Library lawn (weather permitting).

For more information, contact the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Few Things Say 'I Love You' So Creatively As Bouquet Of Flowers

(NAPS) — It's obvious that Shakespeare was never scrambling to come up with the perfect Valentine's Day bouquet to give his beloved.

"A rose by an other name would smell as sweet," Shakespeare wrote.

That might be true, but what happens if a person can't afford roses no matter what they're called? Or dilly dallies until finding a dozen nice long-stemmed roses is almost as hard as finding a town without a Starbucks? Or wants to tell his sweetheart how truly unique their love is — and the old standards just don't say it in an extraordinary enough way.

Californians pride themselves on being individualistic, creative, diverse and on the forefront. And their flowers are the same way. There is such a huge variety produced year-round in the state and shipped all over the U.S. that people can be very imaginative when they think of Valentine's Day expressions . . . even without incorporating roses into the mix.

Here are a few tips on using different elements of style to say "I love you" with flowers on the most romantic day of the year.

Shape

Use shape to get your "heart"-felt message across. You can wire any number of plant materials into a heart as the focal point of the design. Try heather, calcenia, leptospermum, melaleuca or mini myrtle. Then fill in the base of the heart with seasonal blooms to complement the colors of the heart-shaped focal point.

Color

In floral language, red is the color that says "I love you passionately, madly, deeply." Maybe that's why red roses cause such an outbreak of the giddies this time of the year. Why not create an all-red bouquet without roses that shouts that same delicious message? California growers have an abundance of reds right now, from burgundy and garnet to candy apple and scarlet. The pretty faces of red anemones would steal anyone's heart, while red spider gerberas let the arrangement take a bit of a walk on the wild side. Want to make a big impression? Combine these with red bouvardia, tulips and asters with accents of willow eucalptus and coffee berry cream.

Form

There are even great choices for those who want a really dramatic flair. California is now producing glossy, exotic anthurium in several shades and tones of red and pink. Try a brick-red anthurium and add "Fangio" LA hybrid lilies to complement the anthurium in form and color, then pepperberries and kangaroo paw for texture. The variegated look of leucadendron "Safari Sunset" or "Jester Safari" will punch up the color palette.

For more tips on beautiful arrangements for Valentine's Day or any other occasion, visit the California Cut Flower Commission (www.ccfc.org).

Adopt A Mermaid For Valentine's Day

What's that? You've run out of ideas for what to give that special someone for Valentine's Day? Have you thought of giving her a mermaid?

Don't laugh! The Save the Manatee Club in Maitland, Fla., is offering lovelorn swains an opportunity to adopt a manatee (a.k.a. mermaid) for their sweethearts.

For an annual $25 membership fee, she gets an adoption certificate, photo, biography, membership handbook and a subscription to the club newsletter as well as a personalized Valentine's Day gift card.

"We've heard from many people over the years who have really enjoyed giving manatee adoptions as special Valentine's Day gifts," said Judith Vallee, the club's executive director.

Early sightings of manatees, also called sea cows, are believed to have given rise to the seaman's myth of mermaids, although the resemblance to Darryl Hannah of the film "Splash" is strained.

Proceeds of the Adopt-A-Manatee program will go toward the protection of the aquatic animal -- an endangered species by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

If you'd like to adopt a manatee — and your girl friend has a sense of humor — write to the Save the Manatee Club, 500 North Maitland Ave., Maitland, FL 32751.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

Reasons Men Aren't More Romantic On Valentine's Day

What is supposed to be the most romantic day of the year is too often a source of disappointment and frustration instead of joy for thousands of couples.

Valentine's Day usually brings expectations for women who are in a relationship. They may anticipate gifts of chocolate, romantic cards and secret reservations in trendy restaurants.

"Instead many men have psychological blocks that keep them from being more romantic," says Lee Hefner, co-author of "Keep Your Marriage: What To Do When Your Spouse Says 'I don't love you anymore!'" Consequently, these men may do little or nothing special for their partners for Valentine's Day.

According to Hefner, the reasons male partners have trouble with romance include:

• A man may not be aware of how important romance is to his woman. He may not fully appreciate that men and women have different needs in this area.

• Some males simply don't know what to do. A man may not have seen his father model romantic behavior when he was growing up. Consequently, he never developed courting skills.

• The man might simply by lazy. He may have lapsed into complacency in the relationship and assumes that he doesn't really have to do anything extra to keep the relationship going.

• Some men have trouble expressing feelings. They may carry around unresolved anger toward their partners. Anger can turn into resentment and passive aggressive behavior toward the woman.

• The man may be struggling with addictions. Compulsions like alcohol or drug abuse, sexual addiction or gambling provide an escape that lets him avoid dealing with the demands of maintaining a successful relationship.

• A man may feel deprived in the bedroom. He might be thinking "When she's ready to satisfy me more often, then I'll be more romantic."

• Some partners procrastinate. A husband may put off buying flowers or making a restaurant reservation until it's too late.

• The man may be afraid of trying to be romantic. This is particularly true when his woman is often critical of him. In this case, he may think "What's the use? I can never please her. Why even try."

The Story Behind Your Valentine's Chocolates

(NU) — Valentine's Day is synonymous with romance, of course. But of the millions who celebrate the popular holiday for lovers each year, how many actually know the rich history behind it?

There are several competing theories on the origins of Valentine's Day. Some say its beginnings can be found in the Middle Ages, when many believed that birds mated for life on Feb. 14. To commemorate the spirit of companionship, people would send love letters on that duty.

Others say we owe our celebration to the ancient Roman feast of Lupercalia, a pagan fertility festival that was held in mid-February. On this day, women wrote love notes that were placed in an urn and randomly drawn by men, who would then pursue the notewriters and claim them as companions for the next year.

Early Christians preferred to associate the holiday with the saint of romantic causes, Saint Valentine. But there is some controversy regarding Saint Valentine: The Catholic Church recognizes at least three saints named Valentine or Valentinus.

The most popular candidate is a third century priest. Legend says he performed secret marriages against the orders of Emperor Claudius II, who forbade young men from marrying because he believed that single men were more likely to join the army.

As the story goes, Valentine was imprisoned for his misdeeds. He then fell in love with his jailer's daughter and sent her a note signed "From Your Valentine" before he was executive in A.D. 270. A little more than 200 years later, Pope Gelasius officially recognized Feb. 14 in honor of Valentine, the patron saint of lovers.

Some say the tradition of sending Valentine greetings started in 1415 with a Frenchman names Charles, Duke of Orleans. Imprisoned in the Tower or London after the Battle of Agincourt, the duke reportedly passed time by writing romantic verses for his wife. By the 16th century, sending written expressions of affection on Valentine's Day had become very common.

By the beginning of the 20th century, the giving of Valentines was accompanied with gifts of flowers and chocolates. The red rose and heart-shaped box of chocolates became synonymous with Valentine's Day.

Now, more than $1 billion is spent annually on Valentine's Day candy.

The National Confectioners Association estimates that more than 36 million candy hearts will be sold this year alone.

Energy Bill Giving You The Chills?

We're breaking out the winter coats, and for many, energy bills are a concern. You don't have to feel helpless. Take action. Make your home more energy efficient and utilize special programs designed to help you save money.

You can reduce your energy bill by as much as 30 percent by taking a few simple steps:

• Determine if you eligible for an energy savings program. Energy Bucks is a collaborative campaign sponsored by Massachusetts investor-owned utilities, energy efficiency organizations, the Low Income Energy Affordability Network (LEAN) and Massachusetts Association for Community Action (MASSCAP) to help Massachusetts families save on energy bills. Eligibility requirements for fuel assistance, discount utility rates or energy efficiency services vary annually based on the size and income of the household. Call 1-866-537-7267 or visit the website www.energybucks.com.

• Maintaining an efficient heating system is an important step to conserving energy. Have your heating system serviced once every two years and never try to repair if yourself.

• For every 1 degree you set your thermostat back, you can save 1 to 3 percent on your annual heating costs.

• An energy specialist can make sure your home is properly sealed with special tools, like a blower door, to find hidden leaks, and develop a plan for the most cost effective measure to improve your home.

• Caulk, seal and weather-strip all seams, door frames and openings to the outside to reduce air leaks. The biggest holes are most often found in the attic and the basement.

• Shut off heat to unused rooms and close the fireplace damper to seal air leaks.

• Insulate your attic, outer walls, ceilings and floors to prevent heat escaping to the outdoors.

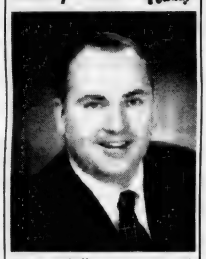
• Clean or replace filters on furnaces once a month.

• Keep draperies and shades on windows that face south open during the day to let sunlight in. Close them at night to keep out the chill.

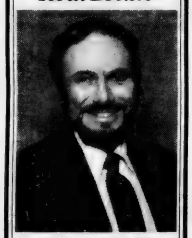
• Take showers instead of baths (which use 40 percent more hot water) but keep them short. A shower costs about 3 cents per minute if you have an electric water heater.

• Leaky faucets waste gallons of water fast. Repair them immediately.

• Use toaster ovens and microwaves as much as possible. They use less than half the energy that ovens use.



• Turn off VCRs, stereos and TVs when not in use. Unplug them when you are away from home longer.



The Feng Shui Way

(NU) - The ancient Chinese philosophy Feng Shui is a 3,000-year-old tradition of spatial design, creating harmony and balance between people and their environment. When creating Feng Shui in your bedroom, think of it as your place of rest, intimacy and refuge.

If this room is not a place of harmony, the negative energy could harm your marriage, home life and physical well-being, according to interior designer Robin Baron, founder and chief executive of Robin Baron Home Inc.

Conway Agents Donate Over $6,000 To Red Cross To Help Tsunami Victims

A fund-raising drive among Jack Conway & Co.'s 43 sales offices across Southeastern Massachusetts has raised more than $6,000 to help those affected by the deadly tsunami in Southeast Asia.

Conway Technology Director Toni Manning led the effort, which included individual donations and a $1,000 corporate contribution from the real estate company. All of the money has been donated to the American Red Cross and is earmarked for tsunami relief.

"I'm proud of all of the agents and employees who offered to help," Manning said. "Even though it happened in another part of the world, this is a tragedy that has touched all of us."

CONWAY PRESIDENT Richard Cahill and Treasurer Janice Rosano (right) present Jack Conway & Co.'s corporate contribution to Technology Director Toni Manning, who spearheaded the fund-raising drive for victims of the tsunami in Southeast Asia.

Founded in 1956, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest independent real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 900 associates in 43 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

The company, with more than $1.9 billion in sales last year, was ranked 69th among the top real estate firms in the United States in National Relocation and Real Estate Magazine's annual Power Broker survey.

How To Best The Pests

(NAPS) - A nice cozy place to spend the winter – that's what rats, mice, squirrels, raccoons and opossums are looking for, and the most appealing place to dig in could be your home.

While few homeowners think they put out the welcome mat for these disease-carrying pests, not taking care of basic maintenance can be just as inviting.

The good news is, you don't have to let them in. Basic maintenance can be a good way to say "not welcome." The National Pest Management Association offers these steps homeowners can take:

• To keep mice and other rodents out, make sure all holes of larger diameter than a pencil are sealed. Mice can squeeze into spaces as small as a nickel, rats can wriggle through holes the size of a half dollar.

• Seal any cracks and voids.

• Don't overlook proper drainage at the foundation and always install gutters or diverts which will channel water away from the building.

• If you find rodents in your home, consider calling an expert. Pest control firms can help provide information and may even do pest proofing.

Searching out hiding places of rodents and other pests and precisely targeting management efforts requires a competent, knowledgeable and technically-trained specialist. Mice, after all, can produce 2,500 heirs in as little as six months, becoming a serious problem.

For more information or to find a licensed pest control professional, visit www.pestworld.org.

Flaking Ceiling Paint

Q. I have noticed paint chips on top of the desk in my second-floor den. A small patch of paint on the ceiling directly overhead is flaking and peeling away, although I don't see any discoloration. This is an older house, and the ceiling is plaster (covered with a latex paint). Could there be an incompatibility between the paint and plaster, or is something else going on here? — Sarah G., Hartford, Conn.

A. If a primer was used before the latex paint was rolled on to the ceiling, then peeling shouldn't be a problem for at least several years. I think a moisture problem exists. Since the peeling is limited to one small area, and the room is on the second floor (I assume it's a two-story home), you may have a leak in the roof.

Leaks can occur even in newly installed roofs due to improper installation or storm damage. If your roof is less than 10 years old, it is likely covered by a warranty, and the installer can send out a repairman to check and fix the problem. If it's not covered by warranty, you'll have to find the leak and repair it yourself, or hire a professional. If the roof is more than 10 years old, it's time for a complete inspection.

Meantime, you need to minimize the damage that is already occurring and repair the interior ceiling. To prevent water from pooling above the area (which can lead to the damage spreading), use a nail or ice pick to punch a small hole in the center of the peeling spot. Place a bucket underneath to catch dripping water.

If you have access to the area above the ceiling (the attic or crawlspace), head up there with a flashlight and look for water, moisture or water stains, either on the floor or along the roof sheathing. Follow the trail of moisture to the likely entry point and mark that spot. Use a towel to soak up pooled water, then contact a professional to make the repair.

You may decide to handle the repair yourself, especially if the leak is small and the source appears to be only one spot. In this case, mark the entry point. Then, drive a tenpenny (large) nail upward, through the roof sheathing, until it juts out through the roof shingle.

Go onto the roof (be sure to secure yourself with a rope to prevent a fall) and find the nail. Check the surrounding shingles for damage — a torn shingle can sometimes be several feet from the leak's entry point. Remove damaged shingles and the tenpenny nail. Patch the entry point you marked, and any other entry points, with roofing compound. Then put new shingles in place, working from the lowest point upward.

Once the source of the leak is repaired, you can safely fix the ceiling. Allow the plaster to dry for a couple of days, then scrape away the old paint, prime the area (have the paint store put a moisture-resistant additive into the new paint or primer) and repaint.

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team continues to produce victories like networks produce reality shows — they just keep coming.

The Presidents (12-1 overall, 7-1 Atlantic Coast League) reeled off three more wins last week to extend their winning streak to eight, and in the process qualified for the state tournament after a year hiatus.

They topped Plymouth South, 72-58, last Friday on the road, Silver Lake, 65-46, last Wednesday at home and Sandwich, 58-48, last Tuesday on the Cape.

Quincy, which played Whitman-Hanson Tuesday, will travel to Plymouth North tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30 and will host Nauset Saturday night at 6:30 in a makeup game.

Head coach Bob Fisher, whose return to Quincy after 23 years and two state titles with Rockland has been everything as advertised, praised his players for achieving their first goal.

"It's always nice to make the state tournament," he said. "It's a barometer of success to measure how the season went. It's nice for the kids. They haven't been there a lot recently. But I hope our goals are loftier than just the tournament."

"No team has a record like ours at this stage without good players," he added. "They're unselfish and talented. They know their roles and they've accepted them. The kids worked extremely hard and have a lot of commitment to success. Their attitudes are fabulous and that makes my job easier."

Against Plymouth South, the Presidents had 11 players in the scoring column, led by senior co-captains John Folino (21 points) and Parker Scott (10) and junior forward Lavell Johnson (13). Senior Steve Sullivan and junior Joe Griffin played well off the bench.

In the Silver Lake game, Quincy had four players score in double digits for the second straight contest. Johnson erupted for a game-high 27 points, including eight three-pointers. Senior guard Kenny Johnson added 14 points (12-of-14 at the foul line), Folino 13 and Scott 11.

Against Sandwich, Scott paced the offense with 17 points, followed by Folino (16), Lavell Johnson (12) and Kenny Johnson (10).

"We spread the ball around," Fisher said. "The same four do most of the scoring, but everyone on the team has a role."

Women's Senior Golf Tour Pro-Am At Granite Links

A new Women's Senior Golf Tour event sponsored by BJ's Wholesale Club will be held Aug. 5-7 at Granite Links Golf Club at Quarry Hills, Quincy/Milton.

Named the BJ's Charity Championship, a pro-am tournament will be held Aug. 5 and the professional portion will be 36-hole stroke play Aug. 6-7. Proceeds will benefit the BJ's Charitable Foundation. Information for tickets will be announced soon.

The Women's Senior Golf Tour is the official senior golf tour of the LPGA. It features professionals 45 and older, including greats Nancy Lopez, Pat Bradley, Patty Sheehan, JoAnne Carner, Jane Blalock and Jan Stephenson.

After Bowing To Sandwich

Quincy Rebounds Past Plymouth South

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team discovered its defensive intensity last week but is still trying to find some rhythm on offense.

The Presidents were cold in a 43-33 loss to Sandwich last Tuesday at home but rebounded with a 69-20 triumph over an overmatched Plymouth South squad last Friday at home.

Quincy (6-7 overall, 4-4 Atlantic Coast League), which took on Whitman-Hanson Tuesday, will head to Fontbonne Academy today (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. and host Plymouth North Friday at 6:30 p.m.

Next week, it travels to Nauset on Monday and Abington on Wednesday before tipping off against neighboring North Quincy Friday night at 5 at home.

"Our defense has improved tremendously over the past two games," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "We need to improve on team offense. We're very unselfish, which is a strong point. We need to learn how to play off each other. We need to find a rhythm in our offense."

Against Sandwich, which was the top seed in the South Division at the time, the Presidents kept close with the Blue Knights throughout the contest. Down 23-18 at the half, they were within three points with six minutes remaining.

But they handcuffed themselves at the free-throw line, shooting a frosty 30 percent (6-of-20) for the game.

Senior co-captain and forward Nicole O'Sullivan scored a team-high 12 points and senior co-captain and point guard Rebekah Sorensen added eight.

"We felt we had them on the ropes, but we couldn't knock them out," Bretsch said.

In the Plymouth South game, the reserves received plenty of minutes and pulled away from the Panthers when they entered the game.

"It was a close game for a little bit and then we put in the reserves and used a press," Bretsch said. "They came in with great energy and put the game out of reach."

O'Sullivan led the team with 17 points and junior forward Jessica Page chipped in 10. Junior forward Ashlee Scott added nine, freshman guard Marybeth Torpey eight with five assists, junior guard Teri Murphy seven and freshman guard Meagan Tobin six.

'It's Unbelievable,' Says Chris Marinelli

Quincy Native Awarded Stanford University Football Scholarship

By PATTI DiBONA

Chris Marinelli has always been a big kid with big dreams.

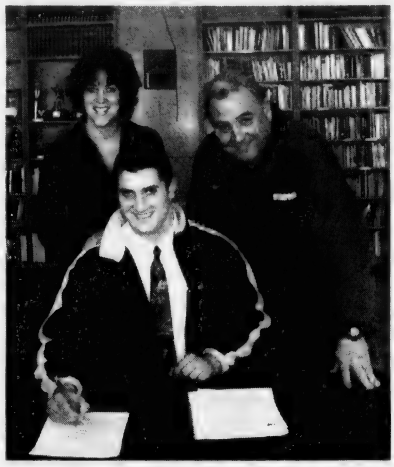
The 6-foot-7-inch, 295-pound senior at Boston College High School knew, even as a young boy, that Division 1 college football was his destiny. Back then, the 12-year-old's off-the-chart height and weight forced him to step aside from his beloved North Quincy Apaches team. He bided his time until high school where the standout athlete and scholar continued to grow.

On Feb. 2, national letter of intent day, Marinelli stood proudly in his size 15 sneakers as he signed his letter of intent to play football at Stanford University this fall.

"It's unbelievable to see my childhood dreams become reality," said Marinelli, age 17. "I used to watch Stanford football and basketball on TV as a kid, always considered it tops in academics and knew that's where I wanted to be."

The amiable and well-spoken BC High football captain and National Honor Society member plans to major in pre-med at Stanford and study orthopedic surgery.

"I've been around sports injuries for so long and appreciate the doctors who get you back in the game. I'd like to stay involved with youth sports and give back to the community."



Marinelli credits his passion for sports and his academic resolve to a strong foundation begun in Quincy. A graduate of Montclair Elementary School and Central Middle School's advanced placement program, Marinelli played Quincy Youth Baseball for years as well as basketball for Central Middle and Sacred Heart Church. He is also a longtime referee and umpire.

This sense of community involvement remained strong throughout BC High. Recently Marinelli completed 150 hours of community service as a camp counselor for the Braintree After School Enrichment Program.

"BC High taught me to always put my community first, to be humble, and to live life to the fullest."

Both Duke University and Boston College offered full scholarships to Marinelli who spent time at each institution. But, as appealing as both schools were, Marinelli couldn't shake that Stanford soft spot.

"I attended the Manning Passing Academy for three summers and really bonded with one of the directors, Buddy Teevens, a Massachusetts guy and Stanford's head football coach," Marinelli said. Teevens made a scholarship offer to Marinelli in May 2004 and Marinelli's visit to the Cardinal's campus sealed the deal.

QUINCY NATIVE and BC High School senior Chris Marinelli signs his letter of intent to play football at Standford University as his parents, Marianne and Jim, look on.

Even news that Teevens was being replaced by new head coach Walt Harris did not shake Marinelli's resolve.

Marinelli's accomplishments on the playing field have paralleled his successes in the classroom. The Catholic conference all-star and 2004 Patriot Ledger all-scholastic athlete carries a 3.8 grade point average and is a senior mentor and recipient of BC High's scholar-athlete award. He was a three-year defensive starter and two-year offensive starter, playing tackle and tight end. He's had over 150 tackles at BCH, 11 sacks, one interception, and five forced fumbles and made 18 catches for 170 yards.

Marinelli also played center for BC High's basketball team in previous years and is an outstanding shot-put and discuss thrower, winning the Catholic Conference with a 143' 7" discuss throw last year. Currently BC High boasts the best indoor shot-put record in the state with Marinelli's recent 52' 3" toss.

Although he and his family moved to Braintree one year ago, Quincy remains Marinelli's "hometown."

Childhood pals and BC High classmates from Quincy remain his closest allies. His grandmother, Marilyn Waywood, secretary to the principal at Quincy High School for 30 years, lives in the city as did his paternal grandmother, Mary "Bertie" Marinelli, who passed away last year.

"I'll definitely miss my friends and family when I get on that plane for California," said Marinelli who has three younger sisters, Elena, 15, Andrea, 13, and Gina, 9.

Dedicates Center Court To Richard Miller

Broad Meadows Middle School Celebrates Gym Reopening

Broad Meadows Middle School in Adams Shore recently celebrated the grand reopening of its gymnasium.

The highlights of the ceremony were the unveiling of the new school mascot and the dedication of center court in memory of Richard "Ricky" A. Miller.

The son of Richard "Teddy" and Nancy Miller of Houghs Neck, Ricky graduated in 1980 from Broad Meadows where he was an honor roll student and an excellent athlete.

He died in a tragic car accident in 1987 along with friends William Marston, Matthew Tobin and Timothy Tobin. His initials are proudly displayed on the logo at center court.

More than 200 entries were submitted as the design for the new school logo. Dorinda Burrows, the art teacher, narrowed down the entries to 10 finalists and students and staff voted for the best entry.

Sixth-grader Kendra Johnston won the contest with her "Breakers" logo, which depicts a lighthouse with a shining beacon with waves breaking across the front. It symbolizes the location and history of the school.

Paul Haight, the technology teacher, Burrows and Johnston worked together to paint the logo at center court.

"The dedication of the beautiful gymnasium, attended by students, staff, family and friends, truly celebrated the spirit of community felt by everyone at this ceremony," said Principal Colleen Roberts.

ATTENDING THE CELEBRATION were, from the left, Larry Taglieri, assistant principal; Dave McCarthy and Elaine Dwyer, School Committee members; Colleen Roberts, principal; Supt. Richard DeCristofaro; and Michael Ryan, director of buildings and maintenance.

All members are invited. The meeting will cover financial reports and rates and there will be discussion and nominations for Board of Directors.

North Quincy Boys Go Cold In February

FRESHMEN BASKETBALL

February has not been kind to the North Quincy High School boys' freshman basketball team.

After winning their first games of the season against Plymouth North and Falmouth in late January, the Red Raiders headed into the second half of the year with renewed optimism.

But occasional lapses on defense and turnovers on key possessions have let close games slip away.

Opening a busy week of games, NQ dropped a 62-58 decision to Dennis-Yarmouth last Tuesday at home.

D-Y took an early lead until Phuoc Nguyen hit a three-pointer to bring the Red Raiders back to within one, 17-16. But the Dolphins reeled off 10 of the next 11 points to take 27-17 lead into halftime.

In the opening minutes of the second half, Dennis Martin drained a three-pointer to cut the deficit to four, 30-26. Martin drove for a layup and was fouled on the next possession. Jim Holcomb put back Martin's missed free throw to bring the Raiders to with two. And Nguyen drove the lane to give the Red Raiders the lead with just under 10 minutes to play.

The two teams traded the lead over the next five minutes. Double teamed, Nguyen found Holcomb on the left baseline for a 10-foot jumper. Martin made the identical play to Holcomb on the next possession to give NQ a 47-45 lead with 3:30 to play.

Foul shooting was the key down the stretch as both teams played aggressive defense. D-Y had trouble at the charity stripe all day until the last three minutes. NQ couldn't match the Dolphins' efficiency, going 14-of-27 from the line. Danny Richards was a defensive standout for the Red Raiders.

Rockland visited NQ last Friday and spent little time demonstrating why its program is the defending Division 3 state champions.

Matt O'Neil put back an opening miss from a teammate to give NQ an early 2-0 lead, but it would not move the scoreboard for another six minutes as Rockland went ahead 14-2.

NQ never matched the intensity of the game as Rockland held a comfortable lead for all of the first half. Holcomb's driving layup closed out the first-half scoring with the Red Raiders trailing, 25-15.

The second half proved to be more of the same as Rockland built an 18-point lead in the first three minutes. NQ rarely found the pace of the game, resorting to a reaching, clutching defense, committing 25 fouls in the game.

Martin, Ethan Thomas and O'Neil led what scoring punch there was for NQ. Chris Doyle, Zach O'Hara and Sean Clifford provided some highlights and hustle.

NQ journeyed to the Cape last Saturday to make up a snowed out game at Sandwich and fell, 56-50.

O'Neil dished to Clifford for a running five-footer to open the scoring for NQ. But O'Neil picked up two quick fouls in the first minute and half, earning him a courtside seat for much of the first half.

Nguyen pushed the ball up court all half and his driving layups staked the Red Raiders to a 7-5 lead in the first four minutes. NQ stayed right on the heels of the Blue Knights throughout the first half with Will Ruan and Holcomb leading the low-post scoring. Thomas banked home a three-pointer with 41 seconds on the clock and Sekou Benjamin hit a free throw to give NQ a 30-27 halftime lead.

Martin and O'Neil opened scored to give NQ an 11-point lead in the opening two minutes of the second half. From there the Red Raiders went completely cold, scoring only two points in the next eight and a half minutes. Sandwich was able to convert on several fast break opportunities to climb right back into the game.

A David Thomson shot from behind the arc enabled NQ to cling to a five-point lead, 45-40, with just over four minutes remaining. Nguyen hit two free throws to tie the game at 50 with 57 seconds left. But Sandwich hit 6-of-8 free throws over the last minute to pull out the to win.

In its first win of the season against Plymouth North, O'Neil contributed 8 points to lead a balanced (14 players contributed) scoring attack in a 56-34 victory.

The Red Raiders defeated Falmouth, 50-38, for their second win as Martin and Nguyen combined for 26 points.

MITE HOCKEY HIGHLIGHTS

Aaron Clancy and Tim Glynn each potted two goals to lead Doran & Horrigan Ins. to a 7-5 win over Hayes' Dream in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division action.

Bridget Block, Sean Farnham and Mark Hajjar also scored. Erin McDonough, Austin Lee and Chris Gorman had assists.

For Hayes' Dream, Jake Hallisey scored a hat trick. Caroline Johnson and Patrick Quirk also scored. Christopher Doyle had an assist.

Bruce Ayers Club topped Mulvey Plastering, 4-1. Andrew McDonnell, Chris Smith, Matt Hannon and Ed Riley scored.

For Mulvey Plastering, Kevin Doherty scored.

Granite City Self Storage defeated Paul Harold Club, 5-2, as Michael Pugsley and Troy Shepherd netted two goals apiece. Robert Cameron also scored.

For Paul Harold Club, Johnny Mulcahy and Dean Colarusso scored.

Chris Chevalier blasted four goals as Doherty & White Ins. tied Lydon's, 6-6. Ryan Harty and John Grasselli scored. Dan Marks had an assist.

For Lydon's, Joseph Quinn and Johnross McEvilly each pocketed two goals. Rhys Marcel (assist) and Brian O'Callaghan also scored. Cameron White had an assist.

SQUIRT HOCKEY HIGHLIGHTS

Patrick Verhault scored all the goals in Burgin Platner & Hurley's 3-1 win over Height 4 Hire in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division action.

Nick McGaughey and Matt Donovan had assists.

For Height 4 Hire, Matt Davis scored with Patrick Donovan assisting.

Sean McWade tallied two goals with an assist to lift the Quincy Sun to a 4-3 win over Wood Commercial Painting. Connor Dixon and Michael D'Andrea also scored. John O'Callaghan had an assist.

For Wood Commercial Painting, Andrew Currie scored two goals and Patrick Gavin one. Conor Doyle and Marco Yeung had assists.

David O'Connell scored a hat trick with an assist to power Outback Steakhouse to a 7-2 win over Keohane's. Sean Hannon added two goals. Rebecca Seviour and Cameron Buonopane also scored. Trevor McCarthy, Patrick Buell, Kathryn White and Meaghan White had assists.

For Keohane's, Joey Ingemi and Cody Huntington scored. Rudy Tryon had an assist.

Exercise Boredom

Q: I don't mind exercising, but I usually get bored with my exercise routines after about a month. Boredom usually leads me to quit exercising. After a few months I begin to exercise once again, get bored after about a month, and quit again. How do I keep my exercise program exciting enough to reach my goals?

A: Finding the motivation to continue exercising is a long-term challenge many exercisers face. There is no one type of exercise routine, program or activity that can provide the answer. Creating a diverse and exciting exercise program that can produce results must involve creativity and options.

Completing the same exercise routine every day can not only become monotonous, it also can limit results. Once your body becomes accustomed to completing the same routine for a period of time, it does not have to work as hard to complete it.

Your exercise schedule should include more than one resistance training and cardiovascular routine. For example, you may choose to use machines for one or two weeks and resistance bands another week. You and your muscles will enjoy the change.

Developing an exercise program that keeps you excited should also reflect activities you find interesting. Make a list of your everyday interests such as dance or being outdoors, as well as the music you like.

Next, research ways to make these interests a part of your exercise program. Taking a dance class or attending a hip-hop aerobics class may be a great change of pace to keep you motivated while burning serious calories.

If you enjoy music, attending exercise classes with music or working out on the treadmill or machines listening to your favorite songs on a CD or MP3 player with keep you energized.

Other motivators can include reading a book while completing cardio exercise, exercising with a friend and finding a new passion such as training for a 5K run or triathlon.

Finding exercise success entails keeping active by finding a way for exercise to become a permanent fixture in your lifestyle. The more your exercise program reflects who you are, the more you will be motivated to keep moving.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@ hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Milton Hospital Receives Primary Stroke Services Designation

Milton Hospital has been licensed as one of Massachusetts' first hospitals designated to provide Primary Stroke Services.

The designation indicates that the hospital is prepared to rapidly diagnose and treat acute stroke patients. Department of Public Health (DPH) Commissioner Christine C. Ferguson announced Milton Hospital's stroke designation, along with that of other hospitals statewide, at a recent press conference.

The Primary Stroke Service regulations were developed to provide acute stroke patients with a greater chance of successful treatment. Through a combination of community education, medical staff training, implementation of hospital protocols geared toward quick stroke diagnosis and treatment, and results analysis, the program is intended to improve treatment of stroke patients before significant irreversible damage occurs.

The hospital has appointed neurologist Paul S. Blachman, M.D., as its stroke service medical director.

"It is tragic when people don't come to the hospital early at the time of a stroke," Dr. Blachman said. "We have effective treatments that can minimize damage if they are administered early. With this primary stroke designation, Milton Hospital will see patients when something can be done to help them."

Treating patients with tissue plasminogen activator (tPA), a "clot-busting" drug, is an effective treatment for acute ischemic stroke if administered within a three-hour window from the onset of symptoms. The time-sensitive nature of tPA therapy requires that acute stroke patients be transported to hospitals that are prepared to provide a quick response.

"Time is brain," Dr. Blachman explained.

Milton Hospital was granted the primary stroke service license after about a year of preparation. State-mandated criteria for the program include 24-hour, 7-day availability of an Acute Stroke Team, equipped and trained to handle stroke emergencies. The multi-disciplinary team includes members of radiology, neurology, laboratory services, emergency nursing and emergency medicine.

Training and coordination with local Emergency Medical Service (EMS) providers is also required, so that the hospital's emergency department is prepared to receive and triage patients with acute stroke symptoms. The hospital is also required to periodically review its stroke services, and make any necessary revisions to the program to ensure ongoing compliance with strict DPH guidelines.

Continuing education, including ongoing training of emergency department and EMS personnel and an extensive community education and awareness initiative, are also mandated. Community education includes information regarding the prevention of stroke, recognition of stroke symptoms and stroke treatment.

Stroke, sometimes thought of as a "brain attack," occurs when blood flow to the brain is interrupted. It is the nation's third leading cause of death and the leading cause of severe, long-term disability. In Massachusetts, 17,799 people were hospitalized with stroke symptoms and 3,557 people died as a result of a stroke in 2002. Additional information on strokes is available from the American Stroke Association, a division of the American Heart Association, at http://www.strokeassociation.org.

Milton Hospital has 250 physicians on staff, representing primary care and 22 different medical specialties, from pediatrics to geriatrics. The 113-bed community hospital is affiliated with Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center and provides a wide range of inpatient and outpatient surgical specialties, emergency medicine, critical care, neurology and cardiology. The hospital has free on-site parking and is easily accessible by Routes 93, 3 and 95.

(NAPS) – The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) estimates that impaired drivers kill someone every 30 minutes, nearly 50 people a day and almost 18,000 citizens a year.

In response, the "You Drink & Drive. You Lose" nationwide crackdown was created. All 50 states and the District of Columbia have enacted .08 Blood Alcohol Content (BAC) laws for impaired driving. Consistent BAC laws strengthen the hand of law enforcement to arrest and prosecute dangerous drunk drivers to the fullest extent of the law.

For more information about the crackdown or alcohol-related crash statistics, visit www.StopImpairedDriving.org. ❑

More than 80,000 women in the U.S. are diagnosed with a gynelogical cancer – ovarian, uterine, cervical, vulvar, vaginal or tubal – and nearly 26,000 die from these cancers each year. This incidence rate is due, in part, to women being diagnosed too late.

For more information, visit the Gynecologic Cancer Foundation's (GCF's) Web site at www.thegcf.org, log onto the Women's Cancer Network at www.wcn.org to take a free, confidential risk assessment test, or call GCF's toll-free informational/referral hotline at 1-800-444-4441.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE X FACTOR

Dentists generally recommend that patients get a set of full-mouth x-rays every five years or so. Patients will also need less extensive "bitewing" x-rays every year. When his or her oral health is good, a patient may only need bitewings every 24 months. On the other hand, those with many fillings in their teeth, crowns and bridges, or poor oral health may need more frequent bitewings. Of the three types of x-rays, bitewings are used primarily for the molars. They show the exposed teeth and only part of the roots. Periapical x-rays show the whole tooth, from crown to tooth tip, and some of the bone and surrounding roots. "Full mouth" x-rays include both of these kinds of x-rays.

Without x-rays, your dentists would miss more than half of the decay found between teeth. Early visits to your dentist can help ensure healthy and beautiful teeth. We provide a full range of dental treatments, including preventive, restorative, and cosmetic dentistry. Except in rare cases, gum disease can be prevented through daily plaque removal by brushing, cleaning between teeth with floss or interdental cleaners, eating a balanced diet, and regularly visiting us for professional cleanings. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Be sure to visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com for more information.

P.S. Panoramic x-rays provide a wide view of the upper and lower jaw. They are used if a patient has impacted teeth, jaw problems, or cysts, or is going to have a tooth extracted.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentines need not be expensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting. . . a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on Valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mushy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentines received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It takes only a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation" these days. A little surprise gift will make that someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your natural Arian leadership qualities make you the person others will follow in tackling that important project. But don't get so involved in the work that you neglect your personal life.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Aspects favor sorting through your possessions, both at work and at home, to start giving away what you don't use, don't need or don't like. Relax later with someone special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The issues are not quite as clear as they should be. That's why you need to avoid getting involved in disputes between colleagues at work or between relatives or personal friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You'll get lots of support from others if you own up to your mistake quickly and include a full and honest explanation. Learn from this experience so that you don't repeat it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) There might be some early confusion over a major move, whether it's at work or at home. But once you get a full breakdown of what it entails, it should be easier to deal with. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Creating order out of chaos, even in the most untidy spaces, should be no problem for organized Virgos. So go ahead and do it, and then accept praise from impressed colleagues.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Whether it's for business purposes or just for leisure, a trip might be just what you need right now. You would benefit both from a change of scenery and from meeting new people.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While things generally go well this week, a romantic situation seems to have stalled. But you can restart it if you want to. Then again, maybe this is a chance to reassess the situation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A meeting that was promised quite a while back could finally happen. So be sure you're prepared with everything you'll need to make your case sound convincing and doable.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A workplace blunder could create a problem down the line unless you deal with it right now to see how and why it happened. Don't be surprised at what you might learn.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is a good time to re-sort your priorities and see if adjustments are called for. Be honest with yourself as you decide what to keep, what to discard and what to change.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Letting yourself be bathed in the outpouring of love and support from those who care for you will help you get through a difficult period sooner rather than later. Good luck.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an uncanny gift for reaching out to all people and creating bridges of understanding among them.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

McCauley Calls Seniors Tax Cut 'Discriminatory'

tions. This is a way to balance that off and help the people who are part of the fabric of our community for a generation and who are really hurting."

Although he would personally benefit from the mayor's tax plan, McCauley, 75, said Quincy would be better served if it stashes away the funds in the city's reserve or free cash accounts.

He urged Phelan and fellow city councillors to hold off on large spending sprees because the city faces several financial question marks going forward.

FRANK McCAULEY

"He evidently feels that it is now time to loosen the city's purse strings," McCauley said of Phelan. "I hate to rain on the mayor's parade, but the city is not out of the financial woods yet."

McCauley's criticism is contained in a report outlining the city's financial picture, which he said has brightened considerably under Phelan.

The city has righted its financial ship by taking a number of positive steps, including increasing the city's reserve and free cash accounts, settling the financial dispute with Quincy College, and chopping more than $2.5 million from the Fiscal 2005 budget, he said.

In addition, the city did not increase property taxes to the legal limit allowed under Proposition 2 1/2, said McCauley.

He said the city's retirement expenses will continue to skyrocket; the costs of the early retirement programs, as well as the retirees health and insurance benefits are particularly troublesome, he said.

The mayor's two early retirement incentive programs will cost about $750,000 in Fiscal 2006, and will eventually rise to $865,000 in 2010, said McCauley. The annual cost for city retirees and health insurance benefits has increased $2.9 million over the past three years, he said.

McCauley said Phelan's rationale for giving tax breaks to seniors does not hold up to scrutiny.

The mayor maintains that senior citizens should not be forced to leave the city because of skyrocketing home values. Property tax increases were held at bay this year, but average single family homeowners saw an 18 percent jump in 2004.

"Aside from the fact that the plan is discriminatory, there is no evidence that large groups of senior homeowners are being forced out of their homes because of their inability to pay taxes," McCauley wrote in the report.

As a group, seniors "are in pretty good financial shape," said McCauley. "Our age group is not doing badly, and if seniors move where do they go?

"We get a good bang for our tax buck in Quincy - probably better than most communities in the area," he said. "Look at the services we provide, good schools, trash pickup, police and fire services - we are doing very well."

The mayor's plan would be paid for by an initial $1 million deposit into the account from the city's rent agreement with Quincy College. Phelan has not been specific about how the city will pay for the plan beyond that.

Phelan's proposal is in the form of a home rule petition and would require the approval of the city council, the state Legislature and Gov. Mitt Romney.

Some councillors have already expressed support for the mayor's plan, while others have said they want more details before giving their stamp of approval.

L Street Running Club Training In Quincy Sunday

The L Street Running Club will be training for the Boston Marathon Sunday morning in Quincy.

More than 200 runners will converge on the streets and take to the challenge of the hills starting at 8:15 a.m. The 17-mile run begins south on Newport Avenue to Adams Street, over Hospital Hill, up over Quarry Street and into East Milton.

Support teams will set up fuel stations at McGinnis Citgo Station on Newport Avenue and the Elks on Quarry Street. Club members will also monitor the course with the assistance of local police to insure the safety of the runners and motorists.

The L Street Running Club would like the motoring public to be aware of runners passing through various intersections. Those who see the runners are asked to give some encouragement with a wave or slight toot of the horn.

More than half of the 200 runners are participating in this year's marathon to raise money for charity. Last year, the L Street runners raised over $250,000 for local charities.

For more information, visit www.lstreet.org.

TWO MEMBERS OF the State Police Bomb Squad leave the Quincy Center For Technical Education Friday after a hand grenade was found there in a stairwell. The World War II hand grenade had no explosive powder. But as a precaution, both the technical school and adjoining Quincy High School were closed for the day and students sent home.

Hearing Set For April 14

Two Students Plead Innocent In Bomb Scare

Two 17-year-old high school boys pleaded innocent in Quincy District Court Tuesday to charges they planted the deactivated hand grenade that led to the evacuation of Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education.

Joseph Berlo and Joshua Majorowski were released on personal recognizance for a probable cause hearing April 14.

They were charged with possession and transport of a hoax device substance, making a bomb or hijack threat with serious public alarm and disturbing a school.

Both students at Quincy High School, they were banned from entering or going near the school unless permitted by Ken McPhee, the director of security, or another school official.

The hand grenade, a World War II pineapple-type that had been rendered harmless, was found by a janitor early Friday morning in the stairwell at the Center for Technical Education.

Students at the Center and the adjoining Quincy High School were sent home for the rest of the day while Quincy Police and the State Police Bomb Squad with bomb-sniffing dogs conducted a 2 1/2 hour search.

POLICE CHIEF Robert Crowley updates the news media Friday outside Quincy High School following the discovery of a hand grenade in the Quincy Center For Technical Education.

The search failed to turn up anything suspicious and a Friday night basketball game in the gym at the Center for Technical Education was allowed to go on. Both buildings were open for students Monday.

Earlier, letters had been sent to the homes of students alerting them to the discovery Wednesday of graffiti in a bathroom warning of a coming explosion in the building.

More than 400 students stayed home on Thursday but police said there was no indication that the message in the bathroom and the hand grenade were connected.

Authorities said Berlo and Majorowski came under suspicion and finally were arrested when they discussed what appears to have been their prank with other students and the other students went to police.

Police said the harmless grenade had been found by Berlo's father at a construction site and brought home as a souvenir.

Preliminary Plans Unveiled

Keep Quincy High, Build New Central Being Considered

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The construction of a new Quincy High School and Central Middle School appears to be gaining momentum as architects recently unveiled several possible designs for the longstanding project.

Architects laid out multiple plans, including one dramatic variation that calls for the construction of a new Central Middle School on Faxon Field near Southern Artery and a partial renovation of the existing Quincy High School, transforming it into the new high school.

Preliminary plans for the construction of the schools were revealed by the architect and project manager during last week's meeting of the school committee's Building Needs subcommittee.

All previous designs did not include the construction of a new Central Middle School in that location.

Former plans have been held up because of the difficult environmental permitting process. Because previous designs involved destroying portions of the wetlands, the city was compelled to obtain several permits. That process has proved to be tedious and time consuming.

New Designs Not On School Committee Agenda

The school committee was scheduled to hold its regular meeting yesterday (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in Quincy High School.

But a presentation outlining possible new designs for the new Quincy High School and Central Middle School has been postponed, according to committee members.

The new options do not involve any destruction of wetlands, so the city would not have to jump over so many environmental hurdles, according to city officials.

Mayor William Phelan, school committee chairman, said the new designs would require the approval of the conservation commission.

The architect - Symmes, Maini & McKee Associates of Cambridge, unveiled the plans to school committee members. Representatives from the city's project manager, Tishman Construction Company, were also on hand to answer questions.

Architects presented several options, but school committee members focused their attention on the plan involving the construction of a new Central Middle School and renovation of the existing high school that would eventually become the new Quincy High School.

According to the architectural design, the existing high school would be partially renovated in its current location. The Center for Technical Education (CTE) would be razed to make way for another structure that includes the high school's gymnasium, parking facility and other offices.

A bridge connecting the structures would be constructed over Woodward Ave., according to the design.

A radical change in the design involves Central Middle School. Under previous plans, the existing high school would have been renovated and transformed into Central.

But according to the preliminary plan outlined last week, a brand-new Central Middle School would be built on Faxon Field at Southern Artery near Russell

City Census Forms In Mail Friday

City Clerk Joseph Shea announces that city census forms will be going in the mail Friday to 45,000 residences to determine the city's 2005 population.

Last year's census shows the population as 88,025.

Shea said the information gathered will help update voter and jury files, the pre-school age population and other demographics of importance to the city.

JOSEPH SHEA

Deadline for returning the forms is April.

Shea noted that return postage paid envelopes are included with the forms so there is no expense to residents in returning them.

Moody's, Standard & Poor's Boost Quincy's Bond Rating

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday that the city of Quincy has received an upgrade in bond rating from the two major bond-rating companies, Moody's Investor Services and Standard & Poor's Public Finance Ratings,

The upgrade means that the city will be able to command significant debt service savings on future bond issues.

Standard & Poor's moved Quincy's bond rating up one notch from A-minus to A. Moody's improved the city's rating from A2 to A3.

"The bond rating upgrade is the result of sound financial management and hard work," said City Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick.

"As we improve our city's financial systems , one can expect the situation to continue to improve."

Standard & Poor's Credit Analyst Colin MacNaught had a similar rosy view of Quincy's financial standing based on an analysis of its portfolio and interviews with Phelan.

"We believe the city's financial performance will continue to improve and that its debt levels will remain manageable," he said.

Moody's also indicated an expectation of improvement based on recent personnel reductions, expenditure controls and growth, particularly in downtown Quincy and around the Quarry Hills Golf Course.

"We have cut spending at all levels of government," said Mayor Phelan. "We have reduced our municipal workforce and associated costs significantly without a dramatic reduction in the provision of basic city services.

"We have collected significant outstanding revenues and placed $12 million in our city's reserves, while maintaining more than $2 million in excess levy capacity.

"I want to thank Moody's and Standard & Poor's for their recognition of our efforts. We will continue to work hard to improve our city's finances."

Beer, Wine License Transfer Delayed By Board

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday continued a hearing regarding a transfer of a beer and wine license held by Alan Dinh, owner of Julienno's Beer & Wine, 1504 Hancock St. until a decision is made by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission following an appeal by Dinh.

Dinh's license had been suspended and then revoked several months ago for serving alcohol to underage persons three times in one year.

Atty. Louis Cassis told the board that Dinh has found a buyer, Nuguyet Lam to purchase the restaurant Cassis appealed to the board to allow him the opportunity to salvage his investment.

Cassis said Dinh, a Vietnamese refugee has worked very hard and despite a series of problems including a language problem and the fact that he did not understand the license process.

Cassis said he hopes the ABCC thinks the penalty of a revocation of the license is "not fair" and hoped that their decision will be in his favor.

Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Business Association said she was against the request and said each time in the last six years, four persons have purchased the business and each time promises are always made and never followed through.

She said she hoped that something else would go into the site so things would be better in that area.

Board members said they wondered if it was the location or management that had caused the business to fail so many times.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the board is familiar with the problems but are willing to deal with the new applicant.

Lam is part owner of a beer and wine establishment in Andrew Square, South Boston with a good record according to Atty. Roland Pham.

License Board Briefs

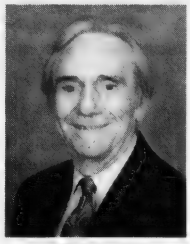
Sheets, Watson, Or No Name?

Trustees Postpone Vote On Library Wing Name

By TOM HENSHAW



Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library have given themselves another two weeks in which to decide whether the new addition will be named for former Director Warren Watson, former Mayor James Sheets or won't carry any name at all.

The Board failed to take a vote Monday on Mayor William Phelan's plan to name the $18 million addition that opened in the spring of 2001 for his immediate predecessor, Sheets, in recognition of his work in obtaining the money and supervising the building.

The matter is complicated by the vote of a previous Board in April, 1998, which had already named the addition for Watson in spite of the fact that the original bequest specified that library buildings should bear the Crane name alone.

JAMES SHEETS

WARREN WATSON

The opposition at Monday's meeting was provided by Trustee Chairwoman Sandra McCauley, who held out steadfastly against naming — or renaming — the building for Sheets. She was a member of the 1998 board that named it for Watson.

"I made the original motion and I stand by it," she told The Sun. "That vote has never been rescinded. Warren's wife asked me, 'You won't let them go back on it, will you?' The library was Warren's whole life."

The 1998 vote is still in effect, she said, but nothing has ever been done about it.

McCauley suggested that the Trustees dedicate, but not name, the addition to both Sheets and Watson but it fell on deaf ears. She also suggested that the cable TV studio at the library be named for Sheets.

While it is traditional to name a building after a Crane, rooms, even benches, have been named for others who have contributed to the library.

For instance, the children's room is named for former City Councillor Pat Toland and the atrium is named for Ian McKenzie, who donated $45,000 to the library.

The Trustees agreed that their next meeting will be Monday, Feb. 28, at 9:30 a.m. but there is a chance that all five current members will not be on hand for it.

Letters from the Mayor are due to go out to old members for reappointment or new members for appointment during the month of February and, McCauley said, none had been received by Monday's meeting.

In addition to McCauley, present members are Alicia Coletti, Warren Falvey Jr., Dr. Carol Lee Griffin and Harold DiMattio.

The original library building was built with $20,000 left to the city by Thomas Crane, who learned the granite cutter's trade in Quincy and went on the make a fortune in New York. It opened in 1882.

The Crane family also put up $64,000 to build the first addition in 1907-08 and $164,000 to build a second wing in 1938. Money from the Crane endowment was used to purchase land for the latest addition in 2001.

Kindergarten Registration March 8 For Quincy Public Schools

Kindergarten registration for Quincy Public Schools will be held Tuesday, March 8 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at every public elementary school in Quincy for all children who will be five years of age on or before August 31, 2005.

Parents must present a birth certificate, passport/visa at the time of registration and evidence of immunizations. Department of Public Health kindergarten entrance immunization requirements are effective September 2003:

A recent entrance physical exam is mandated by the state for all students entering school, and preferably should be presented at registration or at least before the start of school in September. In addition, a TB assessment and evidence of previous screening for lead poisoning is required for all kindergarten entrants.

Parents of children living in the Lincoln-Hancock, Clifford H. Marshall, Francis W. Parker, Wollaston and Snug Harbor School districts may receive information at kindergarten registration concerning opportunities for preschool/early childhood education.

Board Approves Restaurant At Former Bernie's Tuxedo

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday voted unanimously in favor of a new restaurant in the city at 1586 Hancock St. corner of Revere Rd. to be called Trattotria Alba contingent on abiding by fire and building codes.

The restaurant will specialize in light Italian.

The site of the 5,700 square food restaurant is the former Bernie's Tuxedo Shop. Nardi Keka will manage the restaurant.

Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter from Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro who "enthusiastically endorsed" the concept.

Keka opened the other Alba Restaurant three years ago, and will also keep managing that as well as the new restaurant.

Colman said renovations for the two floor restaurant will include a new heating system, dumpster enclosure, sky lights, a pizza oven, and small bar on the first floor. In the basement, there will be new rest rooms, a small bar, pool table, lounge and dining area on both floors.

On the first floor there will be seating for 90 patrons and the rest will be seated in the basement area for a total of 130 seats.

The board also granted the restaurant a cabaret license.

Do you have an adjustable rate mortgage or home equity loan?

Will you be able to afford your payment when rates start going up? Lots of people have gone with adjustable rate loans because they could "buy more house" or just because the rates were so low. But rates are starting to move up now. In fact, short-term rates went up more than a point over the past few months. Fed watchers say they'll be going up again soon. Did you always plan to switch to a fixed-rate loan before rates went up? Then we should talk. At Colonial Federal Savings Bank, we can make it very easy for you to convert to a fixed-rate loan. And fixed rates are still hovering near 50-year lows. Is that adjustable rate loan starting to make you nervous? Come see us. Or call 617-471-0750.

Movement On The Council Front

There's no mayoral challenger in sight at the moment, but things may be starting to percolate on the city council front.

That council at-large seat Frank McCauley is leaving has one official contender and is getting a look-over from a few potential ones.

School Committee Vice Chairman Michael McFarland staked out an early claim several months ago shortly after McCauley said he would not seek another term.

McFARLAND

McFarland declared he would run for the seat and wasted little time putting bumper stickers in circulation.

That decision also opens up his school committee seat this year, guaranteeing at least one new face on that board.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro is one of those taking a look at the McCauley seat.

GUTRO

He held a fundraiser a couple of weeks ago with a suggested choice of donations: "$200, $100, other." That's more in line with a city-wide run than council re-election bid.

Asked about it, Gutro, who is in his second term as ward councillor, says: "I very much enjoy serving as Ward 5 councillor. But any time there is an open at-large seat, you have to look at it. I'm considering running for it."

And, if he does, that would open up his Ward 5 seat for a new member in the council.

Theresa Lord-Piatelli, who can liven up a room or an election, is mulling a return to the political scene.

LORD-PIATELLI

A practicing attorney and chairwoman of the Quincy College Board of Governors, she lost a bid for school committee in her first run in 2003.

"I'm interested in this year's election," she says. "There are three options. Run for mayor, city council or school committee.

"Running for mayor would certainly be exciting. But right now I think if I become a candidate it will be for councillor at-large. Of course, that could change."

Hmmm!

Steve Harold is also looking at that at-large seat.

Harold, a cousin of the late Paul Harold, made his political debut last year losing a bid for Norfolk County commissioner against veteran incumbent John Gillis.

S. HAROLD

"I've been asked by some people to run," Harold says, "and I am considering it. I will probably make a decision sometime in the next 60 days."

Harold says he hasn't had too much time to consider that decision because this winter's weather has kept him and his Milton plumbing and heating company so busy.

The firm is on Boston Mayor Tom Menino's Hot Line to aid elderly people in heating and plumbing emergencies.

And it has just completed installing the heating, plumbing and air conditioning on an addition to Patriots coach Bill Belicheck's home in Weston.

"I'll be making that decision about councillor at-large as soon as I can," Harold says.

There could be a rematch for the Ward 1 council seat.

Incumbent Leo Kelly, who had held the seat for 10 years from 1974 to 1983, came out of political retirement in 2003 to recapture it.

Kelly, after a five candidate preliminary election, defeated Joseph Keegan in the final by a 268-vote margin.

KELLY

KEEGAN

Keegan, who was then a police office but is now a practicing attorney, has been rumored as an at-large candidate but says:

"No, if I run it will be for the Ward 1 seat. It's too early to say I definitely will but I am very seriously considering it. And I think I will run."

But don't look for a rematch in Ward 6

Brian McNamee, who lost the open seat to Alicia Gardner by a scant 25 votes in 2003, says he has no plans to challenge her this year.

McNAMEE

GARDNER

McNamee, who was appointed to the Zoning Board of Appeals by Mayor William Phelan, says, "I am enjoying serving on the board."

He adds, though, he might consider running for the Ward 6 seat if Gardner decided to run at-large or not seek re-election.

Meanwhile, a couple of names are being mentioned as potential Ward 6 candidates. One is familiar, William Keener, who ran in 2003. The other, politically new, is Matt Flynn, who is in telecommunications and is the son of the late Bill Flynn, Patriot Ledger city edition editor and columnist.

No confirmation on either.

And, in case you're interested, nomination papers will be available May 2 at the City Election Department. Deadline for filing them is July 25.

Time marches on.

Economy Outlook On Tap For Chamber Breakfast

A panel of two experts will discuss the outlook for the New England economy at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's 7:44 a.m. breakfast Tuesday, March 1, at the Boston Marriott Quincy, 1000 Marriott Drive, Crown Colony, Quincy.

They are Barry Bluestone, professor of politic economy at Northeastern University, and Joseph Campanelli, president and CEO of the Sovereign Bank New England. The breakfast is sponsored by Sovereign Bank.

Tickets are $20 for members, $200 for a table of 10.

Riverwalk Planned For Neponset Eastern Shore

A new riverwalk is planned for the eastern shore of the Neponset River.

The Neponset River Watershed Association will explain the five-mile long riverfront pathway at the meeting Monday, March 7, at 6 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

The walkway is designed to match the existing Neponset Greenway, which provides recreation, exercises and commuting on the northern and western bank of the river.

The presentation will be made by the City Council's Environmental Committee by the Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) and the Neponset River Watershed Association (NepRWA).

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD dated 1911 was used by the Tubular Rivet and Stud Company of Wollaston to acknowledge orders from their customers. This aerial view of their factory is looking north with Linden Street running across and Weston Avenue in the center foreground. The railroad in the lower left runs parallel to Weston Avenue. This was the largest factory of its kind in the world. Here, for over 70 years, they made millions upon millions of lacing studs for shoes and boots, and rivets for all types of uses. Over 1,000 workers were employed at its peak. In the early 1960s the company moved to a smaller building in Braintree and is now defunct. Some of these buildings were later used for storage by the Bargain Center and then the Boston Gear Works. Today, many of them survive as the Whittemore Mills and Mellon Bray condominiums. Long gone, however, are the belching smokestack and the clock-setting noontime whistle that could be heard for miles around Wollaston. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Karen Alves Commended For Assisting Tsunami Relief Efforts

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Karen J. Alves, a1999 g aduate of Quincy High School, recently received a Letter of Appreciation from the Secretary of the Navy (SECNAV), for assisting in tsunami relief efforts during Operation Unified Assistance in Southeast Asia.

Alves assisted the relief effort while attached to Navy Mobile Construction Battalion (NMCB) Seven, the Seabees, home based in Gulfport, Miss.

"Your fellow Americans are proud of you and what you accomplished," said Gordon R. England, SECNAV. "You showed the world American compassion and mercy. At sea, ashore and in the air, you brought honor to yourselves and to our nation."

Alves, along with thousands of other U.S. Sailors and Marines, supported more than 6,000 flight hours, helping to deliver more than 20 million pounds of medicine, food and water. The supplies helped save thousands of lives and eased the suffering of thousands more.

Unit's like NMCB 7 specialize in advance base construction, battle damage repair, contingency engineering, humanitarian assistance and disaster recovery support around the world.

Thinks Schools Should Be Excused From 180-Day Rule

Apparently, the Quincy Public Schools with the apparent support of the Quincy School Committee has decided to wait until sometime in March before deciding how to make up for all the snow days used so far this year.

Seems the February vacation was untouchable as it looks like the April vacation is too.

Things seem to be pointing toward extending the school year until June 27. I've been a substitute teacher for five years now in Quincy and I can say from personal experience that going to school late into June is a bad idea.

The last two weeks of June may count as part of the 180-day state requirement and kids may come to school but presenteeism will be high. Students will be in the classroom but learning will have gone out the window with the early summer heat.

The bodies will be there but the mind will already be on vacation. Hopefully, the state will excuse the school systems from meeting the 180-day rule.

Late June and classrooms just don't go together. I've been there and seen it firsthand.

New Adams Shore Library Costs Soar

This Week 1969 36 Years Ago

The new Adams Shore branch library when finally completed was projected to cost twice the original estimate of $300,000.

Mayor James McIntyre sent to the City Council what should be the last appropriation: $76,000 for furnishings and $25,000 for books. This is in addition to an added $175,000 for construction an d $25,000 in federal funds.

"We hope this will be the last appropriation for the library," the mayor said, reflecting on architect fees, land damages, soil problems and unanticipated construction costs.

CITY ENDS CESSPOOL SERVICE

DPW Commissioner John Brown announced that the city would stop cleaning cesspools as of March 1.

He noted that is was uneconomical for the city to provide the service for $3 when the actual cost is $50. It took three employees half a day to clean one tank.

He also pointed out that there were only 70 cesspools left in the city since most properties had tied into the sewer system.

O'BRIEN TO HEAD HOUSING AUTHORITY

The commissioners of the Quincy Housing Authority tapped Clement O'Brien to replace Girard White as executive director.

He was a former member and former chairman of the board and was recently serving in a transitional post until White's retirement became official. His salary was $10.000.

O'Brien's career was as a special FBI agent for 22 years.

White had worked as superintendent of the city home and had been the Ward 3 councillor before he joined the QHA.

Study Of Middle East Starts Feb. 24 At Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., has been chosen as one of 12 libraries in Massachusetts to host a new library reading and discussion program, called "Understanding the Modern Middle East," beginning Feb. 24.

Developed by the Humanities Foundation and Massachusetts scholars, the free program provides an opportunity to learn about the history, politics and culture of the Middle East.

Beginning Thursday, Feb. 24 at 7 p.m., the two-hour sessions will begin with a presentation by a specially trained scholar from a local college or university. Three subsequent sessions will be held every other Thursday.

The scholar will lead a discussion on the topic of the lecture and related material from the background text, "Between Memory and Desire: the Middle East in a Troubled Age," by R. Stephen Humphreys.

The book is to be purchased by each participant, although some library copies will be available to borrow.

Brochures describing the book and program are available at the Main Library and all branch libraries.

The Crane library was chosen by the Massachusetts Foundation for the Humanities.

Ilana is a senior majoring in biology and Kaila is a freshman.

Quincy High School graduates, they are the daughters of Gershon Saxe and Elizabeth Scanlan of Quincy.

Council Endorses 'Adopt-At-Hydrant'

Responding to reports that firefighters are having problems locating fire hydrants after snowstorms, the city council last week endorsed a plan calling for the city to install high visibility hydrant markers and institute an "adopt-a-hydrant" program in neighborhoods.

At last week's city council meeting, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin introduced a resolve outlining the proposals, which he said would increase the fire department's efficiency in suppressing fires and boost public safety. The council unanimously endorsed Coughlin's resolve.

After January's blockbuster storm, many fire hydrants became hidden and difficult to locate by the fire department, he said. Obscured hydrants can hinder the city's ability to fight fires and place the public at increased risk, said Coughlin.

"I know where many of the fire hydrants are in my area, but I couldn't see them after the storm," said Coughlin. The resolve was also prompted by media reports that a fire in Salem caused extensive damage to a home because firefighters had trouble locating fire hydrants, he said.

The demarcation system would be helpful because hydrants are occassionally moved or relocated and that information is not always readily available to the fire department.

Coughlin said several other communities use a demarcation system that indicates the location of fire hydrants. Some municipalities also utilize the adopt-a-hydrant program where residents participate in clearing snow from hydrants.

QMC Certified As Primary Stroke Center

Quincy Medical Center (QMC) was recently certified by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health as a Primary Stroke Center.

"This designation recognizes QMC's high quality care and established clinical protocols for the diagnosis and treatment of stroke patients," said Andreja Packard, M.D., Ph.D., QMC Stroke Services Director.

To be designated a Primary Stroke Center, a hospital must: have 24-hour access to brain imaging (CT scanning); have neurologists available at all times; follow established clinical protocols to ensure safe, high quality care; track their patients' outcomes.

In 2004, QMC opened a new $2.7 million Computed Tomography Suite, which is located in close proximity to QMC's Emergency Department.

"When we are evaluating a patient in the Emergency Department, every second counts," said Robert Dart, M.D., Chief of Emergency Medicine. "The close location of the new CT Suite and its high speed imaging technology saves precious time in obtaining vital information to treat stroke patients."

Having neurologists available at all times in necessary to properly administer a drug known as TPA (Tissue Plasminogen Activator).

"TPA breaks up the clots in blood vessels that cause most strokes," said Dr. Packard. "Treating stroke victims with TPA in the three-hour window when it is effective helps patients survive strokes and the debilitating injuries that make strokes the highest cause of adult disability. However, one out of five strokes is caused by a burst blood vessel, not a clot, and administering TPA is those cases actually worsens the condition,"

Know the warning signs and act quickly

Stroke is the third-leading cause of death in the United States. The warning signs for stroke include:

- Sudden numbness or weakness of the face, arm or leg, especially on one side of the body.
- Sudden confusion, trouble speaking or understanding.
- Sudden trouble seeing in one or both eyes.
- Sudden trouble walking, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination.
- Sudden, severe headache with no known cause.

"If you think you are having a stroke call 911," said Dr. Packard. Tell them you think you are having a stroke and you will be brought to the closest available stroke center for treatment."

Friendly Visitors Sought For Seniors

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with the program coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

City Council To Hear Opponents Of 241 Sea Street Developmen t

A committee opposing development of 3.5 acres of land off Sea Street in Adams Shore plans to submit a petition containing 1,400 names to a meeting of the City Council's Environmental Subcommittee.

The meeting will take place Tuesday, Feb. 22, at 6 p.m. in the Council Chamber at City Hall and the Committee to Preserve 271 Sea St. asks the Council and the Mayor to preserve the site as open space.

The Gallagher Group of Hanover has filed plans to build five condominium units and four single family homes around a new street (Cobblestone Lane) which ends in a cul de sac.

The plans were approved by the Planning Board in 2001 and the Conservation Commission issued an order of conditions in 2002. The Commission's approval is being challenged in Norfolk Superior Court.

The petition asks the Mayor and Council to take all steps necessary to preserve the site "for the enjoyment of the public and to maintain the associated wetlands, woods and animal habitat in their natural state."

Ross Edwards, the facilitator of the committee, said the development would also threaten the integrity of the MWRA's high level sewer line which crosses Seat Street at the spot en route to the Nut Island plant.

In addition to Edwards, members of the committee include Thomas Burke, Susan Friedland, Bernard Hanlon, Paul Kodad, Carol Abbott, Steve Perdios and Tony Chafa, all residents of the neighborhood.

Feb. School Vacation Gym Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an expanded schedule of supervised gym programs during next week's school vacation period.

Gyms will be supervised from 9 a.m. to noon for free activities for boys and girls ages 8 through high school. School gyms will be open in all neighborhoods of the city and will feature activities such as basketball, floor hockey, gym games and dodge ball.

Registration is done at each location. Those ages 8 through grade 5 will attend from 9 to 10:30 a.m.; those in grades 7 to 12 will attend from 10:30 a.m. to noon. Participants may attend the program of their choice.

Some minor changes in times may occur in some locations to accommodate differences in enrollment.

In addition to the day schedule, with the exception of Monday, Feb. 21, the ongoing night gyms program will also be conducted in selected locations and all regular Saturday morning programs will be conducted Saturdays, Feb. 19 and Feb. 26.

"The department expects these programs to be well attended and have always been beneficial to participants and working parents," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, Feb. 22

Gyms scheduled to open 9 a.m. to noon: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Wednesday, Feb. 23

Gyms scheduled to open 9 a.m. to noon: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Thursday, Feb. 24

Gyms scheduled to open 9 a.m. to noon: Atherton Hough, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Squantum, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Friday, Feb. 25

Gyms scheduled to open 9 a.m. to noon: Bernazzani, Montclair, Squantum and Atlantic.

Education Fair, Play Highlight Activities

St. Ann School Students Celebrate Catholic Schools Week

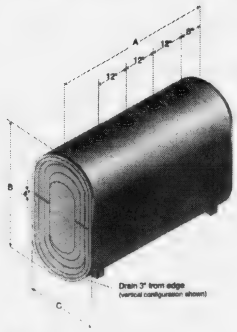
St. Ann School students in Wollaston last week celebrated National Catholic Schools Week with a variety of activities.

Students from Grades 1-8 produced, wrote and acted in a play entitled, "Happiness Is A Life of Faith." Written by student Michael Ryan, the play featured several other students in acting roles, including Megan Croake, Kyle Johnson, Jackie McAllister, Stephen Markharian, Melissa Mullaney, Lindsay Mulvey, Shannon Porter, Elizabeth Do, Megan Ryan, Lauren Silva, Ryan Lau and Katelyn Sullivan.

Middle school students put on a two-day education fair. Sixth grade students produced projects and visuals based on ancient civilization. Seventh graders presented various themes from American history. And eighth graders presented simple machines which they built in science class.

Students also prepared recipes in support of troops stationed overseas. The recipes will be sent to soldiers.

The week concluded with a Mass at St. Ann Church, where parishioners and students joined in a celebration of the Catholic faith.



MARY KATE NELSON and Bridget Mazza, seventh grade students at St. Ann School, display their projects created for the school's education fair.

SEVENTH GRADERS MATTHEW Forbes and Michael Medeiros show off their projects during the education fair at St. Ann School in Wollaston.

QEN Meeting On CPA Reset For Feb. 23

The Quincy Environmental Network has rescheduled the public meeting to explore the Community Preservation Act (CPA) to Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

The original meeting was canceled due to the storm.

The CPA was signed by Governor Cellucci and Lt. Governor Swift Sept. 14, 2000 and sponsored by then state Senator Robert Durand, today's Secretary of Environmental Affairs.

The CPA is a revenue source that helps communities preserve open space and historic sites, and create affordable housing. Cities and towns that participate in the CPA benefit from a steady funding source for preserving and improving a community's infrastructure.

Seventy-five cities and towns in Massachusetts have already adopted the CPA while several others are in the process.

The CPA is a law that allows cities and towns to impose a 1 percent, 2 percent or 3 percent surcharge to property tax and receive from the state a sizable match of 50 percent, 100 percent or 150 percent respective to the percent of tax imposed. The money generated must be spent on the issues stated above.

The law can only be enacted through a ballot question put to the registered voters. Since March 2001, 124 cities and towns in Massachusetts have put the CPA on the ballot and of those, 75 have passed and adopted it, including Braintree, Duxbury, Hingham, Marshfield, Cambridge, Cohasset, Plymouth and Scituate.

Chris Saccardi, spokesperson for the Community Preservation Coalition, will explain the CPA in greater detail. Saccardi will project the financial impact the CPA would have on Quincy residents as well as the increased revenue the city could expect to receive.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call Gail Macdonald of the QEN at 617-773-5120 or visit the web site (www.QENet.org).

CHRISTA HAGEARTY, president of Dependable Cleaners, and John Pumphrey, account executive from Verizon Wireless, drop no-longer-used wireless phones into the Verizon Wireless HopeLine program collection box. Dependable Cleaners customers donated nearly 200 phones at Dependable Cleaners 17 locations during a month-long drive to put wireless equipment and service to work to combat domestic violence. Wireless phones and accessories are collected and refurbished or recycled with all proceeds benefiting domestic violence victims and advocacy organizations.

Reducing The Risks Of Fire

By Captain TOM LYONS
Quincy Fire Department
Fire Prevention Bureau

TOM LYONS

Whether it's inspecting a 400-room hotel on a quarterly basis or walking through a single-family home, I have found that the foundation for preventing most fires is the same: isolate potential ignition sources from combustibles.

In your own home for instance, you might take a moment on each level of habitation to determine whether conditions exist where these two factors are too close, increasing the risk of fire.

In the basement, make certain you have at least a 5-foot clearance from the heating system to store combustible materials. Particularly during the colder months when a boiler can run frequently. Carelessly discarded combustible material too close to a boiler can ignite from excessive temperatures for extended periods of time.

Secondly, make certain that spliced wires are not exposed and are properly contained within junction boxes. Keep a flammable liquid like gasoline out of the basement as well. Fumes from a spilt container of gasoline are so volatile, they can be ignited some distance away by the flame from a burner or water heater.

On a typical first floor, eliminate the habit of placing any combustibles on a stovetop. Paper and wash clothes are frequently found casually placed there when they're much too close to potential heat of an electric or gas burner.

Candles should never be left unattended. I've seen an increase in the frequency of fires caused by their increased use when we find they have been left unattended. If used in your presence, make certain they're located on a stable base, away from combustibles like newspapers and envelopes. Pets can easily disturb an unattended candle. Use them safely in your own presence.

Cigarette ashes are made for noncombustible ashtrays. Keep the ashtrays away from easily ignited material. Like candles, I've experienced fire caused by lit smoking material on a counter top where it was forgotten that once, resulting in fire. Keep smoking materials away from combustibles.

I can continue here at length reciting examples of space heaters adjacent to easily combustible materials or a frayed extension cord under a combustible rug. The lesson is the same: minimize accidental fire by isolating potential ignition sources from combustible material.

Be safe!

Maria Droste Services Receives $8,588 Grant

The Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services, a non-profit counseling and holistic therapies agency, has received an $8,588 grant from the Harold Brooks Foundation to help increase its organizational and fundraising capacity via new technical assistance.

Maria Droste Services considers requests for assisting non-profit organizations who since 1992 have provided for the health, human services, religious, educational, environmental, recreational and cultural needs of the community, focusing on low income children and families.

"We are very excited to receive this funding from the Harold Brooks Foundation," said Sister Lauren Burner, interim director. "This grant will afford us the opportunity to render service with a deep personal commitment to creating a safe place for all who need help and can benefit from our services."

Coughlin Wants Carbon Monoxide Detectors In Homes

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin is concerned about the number of home emergencies involving carbon monoxide poisoning.

In response, Coughlin recently introduced a home rule petition which he says will go a long way toward improving public safety.

Coughlin wants homeowners to install carbon monoxide detectors in all residential dwellings. Currently, state law requires all homes to have smoke detectors. Coughlin's measure would require the same rules for carbon monoxide detectors.

KEVIN COUGHLIN

"This is a very simple answer to a silent and deadly killer," said Coughlin. "Carbon monoxide is odorless and tasteless and you don't know it's there until it is too late."

In addition, the measure would mandate that all venting of gas fired appliances and heating systems be raised at least 36 inches above ground. Currently, federal law calls for a 12-inch height.

A greater height limit would prevent vents from getting clogged with snow. In places like New England, which gets a moderate amount of snow, the 12-inch limit is not sufficient, he said.

"That might be good in Texas, but not in New England where we get a lot of snow," said Coughlin.

The council is expected to take up the measure at a later date.

11 Quincy Tech Students Pass Automotive Exam

Eleven students from the Quincy Center for Technical Education have passed the National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation (NATEF) End of Program Examination in Brakes.

They are Jaime Amaro, Stephen Cunningham, James Dunn, Xinyu Huang, Lovell Johnson, Daniel Krasinski, Henry Lu, Craig Moore, Jose Ortiz, Egi Plasari and Mike Reynoso.

Additional certifying exams are scheduled for May.

The Center for Technical Education became a NATEF site three years ago, thus insuring that the students were taught to industry standards. The Class of 2005 is the first to have all three years with upgraded curriculum.

Under the program, the hours worked and the content learned during high school counts toward Automotive Service Excellence certification after high school.

The certification process continues in the areas of engine repair, engine performance, electric and mechanical systems, suspension and steering, painting and refinishing, structural and non-structural analysis and damage repair.

The full-service mechanical and collision repair shop at the Center is open to residents and accepts work on their cars that fits into the curriculum. Repairs there take a little longer as part of the educational experience.

Seniors Trip To Foxwoods

The Council on Aging has arranged a trip to the Foxwoods casinos in Connecticut for seniors Thursday, March 3.

The bus will leave the Marina Bay parking lot behind the red brick building at 8 a.m.

For reservations, call Dot Dow at 617-376-1508.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuying Workshop March 5

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, will host a First Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, March 5.

The one-day workshop, sponsored by Rockland Trust, will be held at Rockland Trust, 2036 Washington St., (third floor), Hanover., from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All potential first time homebuyers are encouraged to attend this educational workshop. At this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to be pre-qualified by a lender. Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works, and other presentations from real estate related professionals. Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Prior to attending a First Time Homebuyer Workshop, all participants must attend an Introductory Session where you will have the opportunity to evaluate your credit history, and determine your level of mortgage readiness. It is strongly suggested that you obtain a current copy of your credit report for this session.

There will be an Introductory Session Monday, Feb. 28 at Rockland Trust, 2036 Washington St. (third floor), Hanover from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Call in advance to register or to discuss dates of future workshops.

There is a $15 fee per person. This fee will cover the Introductory Session as well as the First Time Homebuyer Workshop, and all workshop materials.

Breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Home Improvement: When To Call A Pro

In Over Your Head? Know When To Say When

(NAPS) — The day started out innocently enough. You just wanted to replace those ugly faucet handles in the upstairs bathtub. But when you tried to install the new handles, you realized they didn't fit.

Rather than lose momentum, you attempted to improvise a solution. After two hours of drilling, hammering and frustration, you're now stuck with a tub with no faucet handles and the expensive prospect of replacing all of your faucet hardware.

Maybe it would've been wise to call for professional help at the first sign of trouble.

"Homeowners can save themselves a lot of money and aggravation just by knowing when to call a pro," says Keith Hahn of Handyman Connection, one of the nation's leading home repair and maintenance companies.

According to Hahn, there are three common traps that homeowners should watch out for.

"The first trap is what we'll call 'uncharted waters,' and the tub faucet story is a perfect example," says Hahn. "If a job takes you into unfamiliar territory, the odds of making an expensive mistake increase greatly."

The second trap, says Hahn, is when you find "more than you bargained for." Hahn shares the story of a homeowner stripping wallpaper from his kitchen walls. Near one corner, the homeowner's stripping knife plunges completely through the wall, revealing months of water damage.

"The smart homeowner stops right there and calls a pro, because water damage can create a multitude of problems in addition to the obvious need for drywall repair —rotten wood, plumbing problems and much more."

Finally, there's the "pride" trap. Sometimes a small project simply spins out of control. Have you ever hammered a nail into a wall only to see large chunks of plaster fall to the floor? Or have you ever tried to unscrew a stubborn plumbing fixture and watched helplessly as water sprayed from the pipe you dislodged from the wall?

According to Hahn, most home repair blunders fall into the third category.

"Call a pro instead of letting pride trick you into chasing problems," says Hahn. "Some jobs attempted by homeowners are just doomed from the start, and your frustration may only compound the problem and cost you more money.

"When in doubt, it's almost cheaper to hire a professional handyman rather than learning by trial and error."

Safety Checkup: Carbon Monoxide

(NAPS) – New findings from a national poll conducted by RoperASW suggest that the first step to protecting your family from accidental carbon monoxide poisoning (CO) may be learning more about the problem.

The study found that while 43 percent of Americans identify a home fire as an accidental tragedy most likely to cause injury or even death to a family member, nearly as many don't know that CO has no detectable smell.

Follow these home-safety tips to reduce the threat of accidental CO poisoning, especially during the home-heating season:

• Keep gas stove and range tops maintained and in working condition.

• Check your gas furnace and water heater regularly for soot buildup and to see that the pilot light (which should be mostly yellow in color) is burning properly. When in doubt, have a qualified technician inspect the appliances.

• Install a screened cap over the top of chimneys to discourage nest building, which can cause poor ventilation. Before starting a fire, be sure the flue is open and not clogged.

• Never run your car in an attached garage – even with the garage door open.

• Do not run a generator indoors or in a poorly ventilated area, such as a garage or porch.

• Install in minimum of one battery-operated CO alarm (or AC-powered alarm with battery backup) outside each sleeping area, and for maximum protection, install at least one CO alarm on each level of your home. Make sure to test them regularly and change the batteries twice a year to ensure they remain in working order.

To learn more about the risks posed by accidental CO poisoning and to take steps to make your home safer, visit the First Alert® Home Safety Challenge℠ Website at www.homesafetychallenge.com. The site provides tips on how to check for CO hazards and a room-by-room audit.

Quincy Girls' Volleyball Celebrates Season At Banquet

The Quincy High School girls' volleyball team recently held its season-ending awards banquet.

The Presidents ended the regular season with a 19-0 record and captured their second straight Atlantic Coast League title with a 10-0 mark. They won the Division 1 Central Sectional championship and finished as Division 1 State finalists with a 23-1 overall record.

The team was led by senior captains Nicole Cahill, Nicole O'Sullivan and Rebekah Sorensen.

Cahill, a middle hitter, was named to the Second Team All-State Team and was named ACL All-Star for the fourth straight season. O'Sullivan, a middle hitter, was named to the First Team All-State Team and to her second ACL All-Star team. Sorensen, a four-year starter and setter, was named for the second time to the ACL All-Star team.

Senior setter Andrea Pettinelli was also selected to the ACL All-Star team while juniors Leanna Lam and Ashlee Scott were honorable mention selections. Senior Tanya Pettinelli (varsity), junior Kim LeBel (JV) and freshman Hillary Mills (freshman) received league sportsmanship awards.

Also, all three Quincy teams received the MIAA's Gold Medal Academic Award for the eighth straight season for maintaining above a 3.0 grade-point average.

The varsity team (3.59) included Nicole Breton-Green, Nicole Kasanoff, Andrea Pettinelli, Tanya Pettinelli, Cahill, Lam, O'Sullivan, Scott and Sorensen.

The JV team (3.56) consisted of Liz Bock, Megan Brennan, Judy Ngai, Carla Nickerson, My Pham, Tha Tial, Joanne Wall, Samantha Weiner and LeBel.

The freshman team (3.66) featured Tahina Chery, Talisa Faustin, Abigail Riddell, Catey Santon, Sarah Sullivan, Eileen Vo and Mills.

32nd Annual Event Features First-Time Girls' Division

Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tourney Feb. 21-27

The 32nd annual Quincy Kiwanis International Youth Hockey Tournament will take place Feb. 21-27 at Quincy Youth Arena, 60 Murphy Memorial Drive.

And for the first time in tournament history, girls' teams will participate. Four teams of 12-and-under skaters will take to the ice representing Quincy (two teams), Braintree and Weymouth.

A total of 30 teams will take part in one of the most prestigious youth hockey tournaments in New England. There are five divisions: Mites (ages 8 and under), Squirts (ages 9-10, Pee Wees (11-12), Bantams (13-14) and girls.

Klagenfurt, Austria, will play in the tournament for the third time in five years with Pee Wee and Bantam squads. Out-of-state teams include Ontario, California, Lewiston (Maine) and Reading (Pa.).

Other teams are Brockton, Hyde Park, Needham, Norwood, Parkway (West Roxbury), South Boston, Woburn, Braintree, Weymouth and the South Shore Seahawks.

All proceeds from the tournament support Kiwanis charities.

"Every Kiwanis member, past and present, should be congratulated for all the effort they have contributed to make this tournament one of the finest in the area," said club president Jean McCarty. "We look forward to another successful tournament this year and offer a warm 'Quincy' welcome to the players, coaches and parents."

Admission is free to all games. Action begins Monday, Feb. 21, with a Mites game between Quincy and Weymouth. The semifinals will take place Saturday, Feb. 26, and the five championship games will be Sunday, Feb. 27, beginning at 11 a.m.

For more information, call Quincy Youth Arena at 617-479-8371.

Squirt C Travel Team Splits

The Quincy Squirt C travel hockey team split a pair of games this past weekend.

Quincy dropped a 3-2 decision to Belmont last Saturday, despite outshooting them, 15-10, in fast-paced game. Meg White and Pat Donovan scored and Zach Walsh had an assist.

Quincy rebounded Sunday with a 5-1 victory over South Boston as goaltender Colin Shea stood out between the pipes.

Sean McWade (goal, assist), Katie White, Matt Davis, Walsh and Donovan scored. Al Heffernan (assist), Dan Guarente, Liam Batson, Matt Glynn and Donovan played well on defense.

STEERING YOU IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

Signs of power steering problems include high steering effort, erratic power steering assist, a loud whining sound from the pump (which generates high pressure used to reduce steering effort), frequent topping off of the fluid reservoir, and a squealing pump drive belt. Some vehicles use variable-assist power steering systems, which provide more assist at low speeds and reduce assist at higher speeds. This provides the most assist when needed. It also reduces oversteer in emergency situations, and provides better on-high-way feel. If your vehicle is equipped with variable-assist power steering and the amount of effort required to steer changes while driving at constant speed, have the system analyzed by an auto technician.

Getting harder to steer? It may be your power steering system. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be well informed about every system in your vehicle. Our friendly, professional, ASE Certified, service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) will gladly answer all your questions. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Red Raiders Defeat W-H For Third Straight

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

John Murray has meant a lot to the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team this season.

And now that he has returned from a 10-game injury, the junior center will look to play an even bigger role for the Red Raiders during the stretch run.

NQ has won three straight games, including last Friday's 70-59 victory over Whitman-Hanson (12-4, 6-4 ACL) at home.

Murray, who made a cameo appearance in last Tuesday's 60-39 win over Plymouth South, made his presence felt against the Panthers, filling out the stat sheet with six points, seven rebounds, four assists and two blocks.

"It's a good time to have John Murray back," said head coach Jim Rendle. "Now we have more experienced depth because we played so long without him. We're really looking to put it together over the next two weeks."

The Red Raiders (8-6 overall, 7-2 ACL) have a hectic finish to the regular season, with six games — all on the road — in a 10-day span. They need one more league win to clinch second place, which would qualify them for the state tournament. Two more wins would also do the job.

NQ, which played Nauset Monday and Plymouth North Tuesday, will clash at city rival Quincy Friday at 6:30 p.m. Next week, it participates in the Quincy High Tournament and concludes the season at Boston Latin Feb. 23.

Against W-H, junior point guard Kyle Costa once again paced the Red Raiders with 25 points and junior Kevin Donovan added 13. Costa picked up most of the scoring slack in Murray's absence, averaging 20 points over those 10 games.

"He really kind of carried us as the other kids got used to the varsity level and speed of the game," Rendle said. "Now we're eight to nine deep and we weren't that at the beginning of the year."

In the win over Plymouth South, Costa poured in 18 points, Donovan 15 and junior Joe Howlett added 10.

NQ defeated Sandwich, 71-55, on Feb. 5. Costa netted 23 points and junior Akil Benjamin chipped 14.

Quincy Routs Plymouth N.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Still chasing a tournament berth and with the season winding down, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team couldn't afford a letdown against an inferior Plymouth North team last Friday night at home.

No need to press the panic button, yet. The Presidents easily handled the Blue Eagles (2-13) with a 53-26 triumph, ending a two-game slide.

"They weren't really ready for us," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "I was happy with our performance. We executed our offense and did a great job of playing together as a team. We needed to take care of business. It was kind of a must-win game and we did it without a scare."

Quincy (7-8 overall, 5-5 Atlantic Coast League) needs three wins in its final five games to qualify for the tournament. Tied with North Quincy for second place in the ACL, it could also make it by finishing ahead of its cross-town rivals.

Quincy, which played Nauset Monday and Abington Wednesday, will square off against North Quincy Friday at 5 p.m. at home. Next week, it wraps up the season with two games in the league tournament.

Senior co-captain Nicole O'Sullivan scored a team-high 15 points and junior forward Jessica Page added 14. Junior forward Ashlee Scott and freshman guard Marybeth Torpey each had eight points and freshman guard Meagan Tobin six.

Last Thursday, the Presidents fell at Fontbonne, 62-43, as they played without O'Sullivan (lower back injury) and senior forward Stephanie Kozlowski (concussion).

Page stepped up in their absence with 22 points and 15 rebounds. Sophomore forward Brighid Kyle chipped in seven points and Scott six.

"Page was outstanding," Bretsch said. "She was all over the court, offensively and defensively. It was one of her better games of the season."

Despite the final score, Quincy shaved a 10-point deficit to three with six minutes left in the game before running out of gas.

Last Tuesday, Quincy stood no chance against powerful Whitman-Hanson (15-1) in a 49-19 rout on the road.

By CHRIS POISSON

Quincy ACL North Champs

By CHRIS POISSON

Having already locked up a state tournament berth, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team enjoyed some personal achievements last week.

First, the Presidents avenged their only loss from earlier in the season, knocking off Whitman-Hanson, 64-54, last Tuesday at home.

Last Friday, they pulled out a 63-49 victory at Plymouth North, despite losing their starting point guard and co-captain for the entire second half.

The following night they defeated Nauset, 57-44, clinching at least a share of the Atlantic Coast League North Division title.

And on Monday night, with North Quincy's loss to Nauset, Quincy learned it captured the ACL crown outright — a remarkable accomplishment considering no one really remembers the last time the program won a league title.

"It's our first championship in God knows how long," said first-year head coach Bob Fisher. "No one really knows. It's been many years. It's a great accomplishment for the kids. They're feeling really good about themselves at this stage of the season."

Quincy (15-1 overall, 10-1 ACL), which played Nauset Tuesday in a non-league game, will host neighboring North Quincy Friday at 6:30 p.m. with a chance to add the city title to its list.

Next week, Quincy closes out the regular season with its annual Quincy Invitational, opening up against Stoughton Monday night at 7 p.m. North Quincy takes on Milton at 5:30 p.m.

"Maintaining momentum is paramount as you head into the tourney," Fisher said. "We want to continue with our defensive pressure and tighten up our offense. Hopefully we can stay injury-free."

Against Nauset, senior center and co-captain John Folino registered a double-double with 16 points and 11 rebounds. He's third in scoring in the ACL North with 16.8 ppg. Senior guard Kenny Johnson added 10 points and eight rebounds.

In the Plymouth North game, the Presidents led 34-32 at halftime but lost Parker Scott to a back injury for the rest of the game. No need to worry as junior John Orlando filled his shoes admirably while junior Joe Griffin also turned in a strong performance off the bench.

"John Orlando came off the bench and scored four points and directed the offense in fine fashion," Fisher said.

In a well-balanced scoring attack, Park Scott tallied 10, senior Alex Scott and Griffin nine apiece, and Folino eight.

The win over Whitman-Hanson not only exacted revenge but it also eliminated the Panthers from the league championship race.

Folino dominated with 20 points, 13 rebounds and seven blocks. Parker Scott also poured in 20 points and Johnson contributed with 14 points and 10 rebounds.

"That was a huge win for us," Fisher said. "It avenged our only loss earlier in the year. It really showed how much the kids have improved since January."

North Quincy Moving In On Tourney Berth

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team crept closer to clinching a berth in the state tournament last week by winning two of three games.

The Red Raiders coasted to a 60-33 win over winless Plymouth South last Tuesday and followed with a 48-40 win over Marshfield last Wednesday at home.

Last Friday, they played well in a 56-42 loss at Whitman-Hanson, the Atlantic Coast League's top team.

The Red Raiders have 11 wins overall, but the two against Brockton don't count toward the tournament. They needed one win this week to qualify.

NQ (11-6, 5-5 ACL), which hosted Bridgewater-Raynham Monday and Plymouth North Tuesday, will head to Quincy Friday at 5 p.m. seeking revenge from the loss earlier in the season. Next week, it concludes the regular season with two games in the league tournament.

Against W-H, the Red Raiders trailed 31-20 at halftime but surged at the beginning of the second half to make it 31-29. They remained close the rest of the way before W-H nailed a three-pointer with two minutes left to extend its lead to eight points.

"It was a good, hard-fought game," said head coach Doug MacFarlane. "I'm proud with the way the girls played. We just couldn't get over the hump. We had some problems scoring in the last two minutes. We shot 24 percent. Every time we shoot in the 20s we lose.

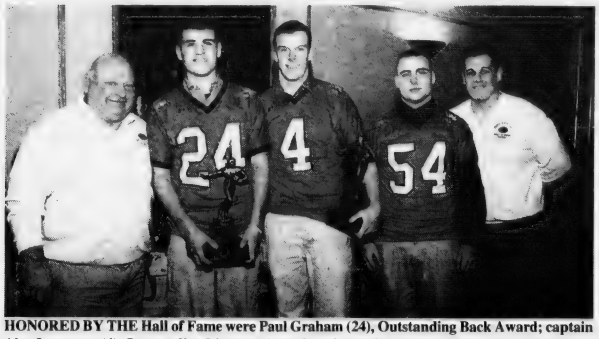
"Down there is a tough place to play. It's a small, old gym. The place was packed. It had a tournament atmosphere, which is good for the kids."

Senior tri-captain Shauna Kelly scored 15 points and freshman Rebecca Goreham registered a double-double with 15 points and 17 rebounds.

In the Marshfield game, NQ turned in a great defensive effort while the offense struggled at times, including a four-minute scoring drought in the second half.

"We worked really hard defensively," MacFarlane said. "We had a scoring drought but we didn't fold on the defensive end."

Rebecca Goreham scored 12 points with 11 rebounds and six steals. Kelly added 11 points and four steals and senior tri-captain Sarah Goreham tallied 10 points, eight rebounds and five steals.



Against Plymouth South, Rebecca Goreham led the team with 14 points and had 10 of the team's 30 steals. Sarah Goreham and Kelly contributed 13 points apiece.

Norfolk County DA Thanks Quincy Fire

Teaming Up For Burn Prevention And Cold Weather Safety

In recognition of National Burn Awareness Week, Feb. 6-12, firefighters from several Norfolk County communities joined with Norfolk District Attorney William R. Keating and Hospital Administrator Janet L. Mulligan, R.N., M.S. of the Boston Shriners Burns Hospital to remind parents about common sense precautions to help prevent burn injuries, and to help keep children and families safe from fire.

"When it comes to protecting children and families from fire, simple, common sense steps can make all the difference," said Keating, who helped launch the Norfolk Firewall Partnership in 2001.

"Safety begins with prevention," said Keating, "and the Quincy Fire Department is known for its commitment to prevention. During National Burn Awareness Week, I want to thank Lt. Bob Servaes, Chief Paul O'Connell and their colleagues for the extraordinary prevention work that they do each and every week throughout the year."

"There are many steps that parents and caretakers can take to keep children safe: don't allow children near stoves, hot oven doors, barbeque grills, heaters or other hot appliances like curling irons or electric irons," said Hospital Administrator Janet Mulligan. "Create a 'no zone' or safe zone area around the stove and oven (about a 5-foot perimeter) that children must stay away from."

Focusing on two important cold weather safety concerns, the Norfolk Firewall Partnership offered the following guidelines for the safe use of space heaters and the safe storage of matches and lighters.

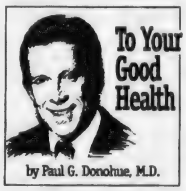
Space heaters:

- Should be kept far away from papers, clothing, toys, drapery, furniture and other flammable materials.
- Should be located on a level, stable surface where they are unlikely to be knocked over.
- Should be labeled by a nationally recognized testing company.
- Should only be used with heavy duty extension cords that have the appropriate power rating recommended by the space heater manufacturer.
- Should never be unattended or left on overnight.
- Should never be used near water, sinks, or bathtubs, or in bathrooms.

Kerosene heaters that are not vented are illegal in Massachusetts.

Matches and lighters:

- Should be kept far away from children, and stored beyond children's reach, preferably in a locked cabinet.
- Should be put away immediately after lighting a fireplace or wood burning stove.
- Are tools for adults only, not toys for children to play with.
- All lighters should be child-resistant.
- Wooden "strike anywhere" matches should not be used in homes with young children.
- Teach young children to tell an adult when they see matches or lighters, but not to pick them up themselves.



In addition, the group reminded homeowners that accumulated snow should not be allowed to obstruct vents for heating systems, clothes dryers or gas meters, and that furnaces should be tested annually by a certified inspector or installer.

Also recommended was a free brochure entitled, "Burn Prevention Tips" that has been compiled by Shriners Hospitals for Children, and is available online in the "prevention" section of the Shriners web site at www.shrinershq.org.

The event was sponsored by the Norfolk Firewall Partnership, an inter-agency, 28-community coalition working with Keating's Office to help protect children and families from fire, in collaboration with the Massachusetts Statewide Coalition for Juvenile Firesetter Intervention Programs.

Additional information about fire prevention is available online from the Office of the Massachusetts State Fire Marshal at www.mass.gov/dfs/osfm.

The Shriners Burns Hospital in Boston is a 30-bed pediatric burn facility where comprehensive acute care and reconstructive and rehabilitative care are provided to children who have been burned. There is no charge to the patient or family for any of the medical care or services provided by Shriners Hospitals. The Boston hospital is one of 22 Shriners Hospitals throughout North America.

Snow Shoveling Can Put Heart at Risk

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband is 59 and overweight. Where we live, it snows and snows and snows. My husband insists on shoveling our snow. I think it's dangerous for him, but he says he can handle it. How big a danger is shoveling snow for someone like my husband? — K.L.

ANSWER: After snowstorms, emergency departments always fill with people who have had heart attacks from shoveling snow. Your husband is typical of those who have heart attacks from ill-advised shoveling. He is middle-aged, overweight and probably out of condition and unused to exercise.

The energy cost of snow shoveling is enormous. Shoveling heavy, wet snow requires an energy expenditure equivalent to running 9 miles in an hour or playing an entire game of high-intensity basketball. Am I wrong in thinking your husband wouldn't think of doing either?

Snow shoveling has unique features that add to its demands. It uses muscles in the arms and back that are not well-conditioned in anyone but a dedicated athlete. Arm-muscle exercise is much more demanding than leg-muscle exercise. It raises the heart rate and blood pressure to levels far higher than does leg exercise. The nature of the work, therefore, greatly taxes the heart.

Inhaling cold air puts another stress on the heart. It has to pump blood faster and harder to keep the body warm.

Unless a person has gotten professional assurance that such physically demanding labor is not a hazard to his or her heart, snow shoveling is something that should be watched rather than engaged in.

Even people who are fit to shovel should do so sensibly. They should use a shovel with a small scoop so they aren't trying to heave herculean mounds of snow off the ground. They need to take frequent breaks while shoveling. And they should push snow, not lift it.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter, who is 7, is allergic to peanuts. Can you tell me if she will ever outgrow this allergy? It is hard for her to cope with it. — J.S.

ANSWER: Since 1980, there has been an increase in the number of children with food allergies. The reason for that isn't evident. But now close to 6 percent of children suffer from food allergies.

Many children allergic to milk and eggs — two of the most common food allergies — lose their allergies as they grow older.

That's not the case for children with allergies to peanuts, other nuts or seafood. Only about 20 percent of those children outgrow their allergies.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.
CHOICES FOR REPLACEMENT TEETH

Patients can sometimes choose between an implant and a fixed bridge for replacement teeth. With fixed bridges, one or more false teeth are cemented to stable teeth on either side of the gap. These anchor teeth must usually be filed down and crowned. Implants, are a two stage process. First, the implant is a titanium fixture that is anchored in the jaw bone. Second, a replacement tooth is cemented or screwed onto the fixture. Both a fixed bridge and an implant can last for many years with regular dental check-ups and good home care.

Depending on which type of bridge or implant your dentist recommends, its success depends on its foundation. So it's very important to keep your remaining teeth healthy and strong. When was the last time you had your teeth examined by your dentist? We feel that dental visits should be positive experiences. Keeping teeth and gums healthy will contribute to overall health and enjoyment of life. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where teaching you how to preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime is our primary goal. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Removable bridges cost less than fixed bridges and implants, but they can slip or impede speech and must usually be removed at night.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

George Washington was a man of many talents and interests. He is mostly honored and remembered for his political and military achievements, but he was at heart a farmer. Did you know he introduced crop rotation and exchanged seeds with farmers in other areas? He operated a commercial smokehouse, a dairy, a distillery and grist mill – and shipped his products to markets in his own boats!

Did you know he worked to produce the first hybrid corn in America? He made a detailed accounting of how many grains of corn a person could drop in a furrow in a hour's time. Through a series of selections of the best ear of corn from each planting, he produced a superior species of corn to plant on his farms.

Besides these outstanding accomplishments as a farmer, he distinguished himself very well in all speeches. His foresight into the trials and tribulations of the new nation far exceeded his contemporaries as evidenced by his saying in a farewell speech that in these United States, he hoped there would be no North, South, East or West, but a strong and unified nation.

We, as a nation, are very fortunate to have had as our first President such an outstanding man. . . George Washington . . .

WINTER CAR CARE

Strong Battery Boosts Winter Car Starts

One of the best ways to protect against winter car trouble is to be certain your battery is fully charged and in proper working condition, according to AAA Southern New England.

"When the temperature drops to near zero, the number of calls AAA receives from stranded motorists soars," said AAA Approved Auto Repair Manager Alfred Ruggiero. "The most common cause of these cold-weather breakdowns is a weak or dead battery."

AAA recommends motorists have batteries tested to closely monitor its condition, especially batteries more than 2 years old.

"Although batteries can carry warranties of four years or more, a warranty is no guarantee an older battery will continue to work in severe weather," Ruggiero said.

The most common sign of a weak battery is an unusual sound coming from the starter motor when the ignition key is turned, indicating difficulty in starting the engine.

If the vehicle is difficult to start, check that the battery connections are tight and no corrosion is present on the battery terminal. To remove corrosion, use an old toothbrush to clean the cable connectors and terminals with a solution of baking soda and water.

Next, inspect the tension of all drive belts. They should flex no more than one-half inch. If the battery's fluid level can be checked, make certain the fluid covers the battery plates. If no problems are found and the vehicle is still difficult to start, drive to a service station or auto parts store to have the battery and charging system tested and, if necessary, replaced.

In addition to weak or dead batteries, starting problems can be caused by malfunctioning alternators or starter motors. A qualified repair facility can make an accurate diagnosis and repair.

If the vehicle will not start, use caution and follow instructions in the owner's manual when attempting a jump-start. If unsure about the proper procedure, call AAA or another qualified professional for assistance.

To help avoid winter breakdowns, AAA recommends motorists have their cars and trucks thoroughly inspected before cold weather arrives. In addition to the battery, fluids, belts, hoses, filters and tires should all be checked.

Because of the difficult driving conditions often encountered in the winter, motorists should also be sure their lighting systems, brakes and windshield wipers are functioning properly.

Slick Facts About Oil

It's time to change the oil on your trusty car and you decide to do it yourself. You find yourself at the auto parts store staring at the assortment of oil on the shelves, trying to decide which one to buy and trying to decipher all the numbers and letters on the containers.

Cracking the oil code requires some basic understanding of what your vehicle requires. In every owner's manual there is a chart with a recommendation of oil type for that car.

The right engine oil is important to cold weather starts, says AAA. Oil can become thick and gluey when cold and can make it difficult for engine parts to move. Some oil grades are thinner than others, and thinner is better for winter weather.

The Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) rates oil for its viscosity in both cold and hot conditions. The first number, usually a 5W or 10W, is an indication of how thin the oil stays when cold. The second number is an indication of how thick it stays when hot and usually ranges from 30 to 40. This means that 5W-30 oil is thinner than 10W-30 when cold.

AAA advises motorists to refer to the SAE oil rating to decide which oil grade is best, and to look in the owner's manual for the viscosity recommended for the vehicle.

Did You Know?

(NAPS) – There are ways car owners can drive down their costs at the pump?

For example, an automotive product called the Tornado may help save you one to two miles per gallon. It's a nonmoving, turbine-shaped device that fits into the air intake pipe of most cars and creates a vortex of swirling air in your engine.

It improves airflow in the combustion chamber and that some experts say can lead to a more efficient mixing of air and fuel.

CRUISIN' by Greg Zyla

Chevelle SS 396

Q. Greg, I'm considering purchasing a 1966 Chevelle SS with a 396 engine. The owner says it's an original 350-horsepower engine, but I don't remember Chevrolet offering a big-block engine with 350 horsepower in 1966. He says it's numbers-matching. So, can you clear this up? — Andy P., e-mail from New Hampshire

A. Sure can, Andy. The only way this '66 Chevelle SS has a numbers-matching engine is if the owner has made a mistake in identifying the 396's horsepower rating. In 1966, Chevy offered a 325-horsepower base engine in the SS 396, and optional 360- and 375-horsepower engines. There was no 350 that year, as the option first appeared in 1967.

The RPO identification goes like this: STD is a 325-horse engine; L34 is a 360-horse engine, and L78 is the 375-horse engine. All of the 396s came with chrome valve covers and air cleaners. The code for the 1967 350-horsepower engine is also L34, so perhaps this owner is just mistaking the horsepower rating. Both the 350 and the 360 are 10.25-1 compression ratios.

Check the engine numbers, and hopefully the Chevelle in question is truly numbers-matching.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) All that flattery and fawning shouldn't affect any decision you have to make. Keep your focus on the facts and ignore all the hyperbole, especially if it gets uncomfortably personal.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine instincts are on the mark about that "favor" you're being asked to do. Agree to nothing unless you get a full explanation — which you would check out first, of course.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A somewhat unsettled recent period should give way to a smoother time going through the week. Use this quieter time to catch up on matters you might have had to let slide.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Feeling a little confused is understandable with all those mixed messages. Take time to list the questions you have. Then present them and insist on answers that make sense.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Cupid can be very helpful for Lions seeking a love connection. The chubby cherub also brings warm and fuzzy feelings to paired Leos and Leonas who already share a special love line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Travel is favored this week, whether you'll be globe-trotting or taking a trip to a nearby getaway. You might be surprised (or maybe not) by who wants to be your traveling companion.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Getting advice on your next business-related move is a good idea, but only if your advisers are trustworthy. Get references that you can check out before you make any decisions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Getting a boost in your self-esteem is one benefit that comes with a job well done. There are other plusses as well, including being noticed by all the right people. Good luck.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Make time to deal with family matters, especially where they concern your elderly kinfolk. Being there for them from the start can help resolve problems sooner rather than later.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Getting a project started can often be difficult. But the good news is that you won't want for lack of assistance from colleagues who would like to work with you. So, let them!

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A lot of work-related issues might be raised this week, and you need to be prepared for whatever comes along. Things should be easier when it comes to matters in your private life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) What might appear to be a very much unwanted change in your life right now could turn out to be a very welcome event after all. Give yourself a chance to see where it might take you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You exercise your strong leadership qualities well, which is why people believe in you and feel reassured by you.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Keep Quincy High, Build New Central Considered

(Cont'd From Page 1)

Park. A ball field would be located on Southern Artery near the corner of Coddington St., according to the plan.

Playing fields and tennis courts would be located along the perimeter of Faxon Field near Woodward Ave. and Russell Park.

Initial reaction to the plan was generally positive.

"Due to our limitations on the wetlands, this is a much better alternative than past plans for Quincy High School," said School Committee member Elaine Dwyer. "And I'm also thrilled that Central would get a new building."

Other school committee members expressed cautious optimism after seeing the design.

The committee is expected to unveil the new designs to the public in an upcoming meeting.

According to initial estimates given by the project manager, construction of the new high school would cost $105 million, while the Central portion would cost an additional $27 million. There would be no need for a extensive drainage system because the wetlands would not be impacted by the project, according to city officials. The current drainage system would be upgraded but not to the extent as outlined in previous plans, according to city officials.

Environmental issues have slowed the pace of the project since 2003, when the city received assurances from state Education Commissioner David Driscoll that it will be saved a spot on the waiting list for state money to build new schools.

The city expects to be reimbursed for 90 percent of the costs associated with building a new high school and renovating the current building.

Several committee members questioned whether the new design would qualify for the 90 percent reimbursement rate. The committee agreed to send a request to state officials seeking clarification on the issue.

Phelan said he recently met with state officials to give them an overview of the city's options and expressed optimism that the plan would get approved for the reimbursement.

"We are pretty confident that we are ok," said Phelan. "But I think it is something we need confirmation on."

School committee member Ron Mariano stressed the importance of obtaining the state's approval for the reimbursement rate.

"This would be a preferable site but it is irrelevant if we don't get the 90 percent," he said.

The project could begin as early as this summer if state officials approve funding for the plan and the city adheres to environmental regulations, architects said.

'Good First Step' Toward Revitalization

Phelan Sends Downtown Rezoning Plan To Council

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Sweeping changes to downtown zoning laws were introduced to the city council on Tuesday night, setting in motion Mayor William Phelan's plan to breathe new life into Quincy Center.

The administration presented changes to the city's zoning regulations that include relaxing height restrictions on downtown buildings from 6 to 15 stories and easing density requirements, allowing the creation of more housing in Quincy Center.

Coupled with tax and financial incentives, which are expected to be introduced soon, the changes are targeted at attracting developers to revitalize the downtown.

The plan was expected to be referred to the city council's Business and Economic Development Committee and Ordinance Committee. The committees will digest the plans and eventually hold a public hearing.

The city's planning board will also hold a public hearing on the matter and make a recommendation to the city council.

"We will try to move this along as expeditiously as possible because it's important," said Council President Frank McCauley. "I would like to clean this up before the budget comes down."

Phelan called the plan a "good first step," but one that will take years to complete.

"We are moving forward," said Phelan. "This is an effort that ultimately will take years to finish, but they are very important first steps to ensure that changes are put into place that are necessary to have a flourishing downtown area."

Included in the plan is an attempt to create a new downtown zoning district that will run along Burgin Parkway, School St., Washington St. and Dimmock St. Proposed zoning changes, including the relaxation of the building height limit, would affect this area, according to the proposal.

Phelan said the proposed changes would not dramatically alter the complexion of the downtown area, but it would encourage developers to take another look at Quincy Center. In the past,

Board Weighs Appeal On Pension Ruling

The Quincy Retirement Board will decide tomorrow (Friday) whether it will appeal a recent decision by a state authority which ruled that the board unfairly billed the Quincy Housing Authority for hundreds of thousands of dollars in pension payments over the past few years.

The state Contributory Retirement Appeal Board (CRAB) recently ruled that the city's method of assessing pension costs to the Quincy Housing Authority is "arbitrary and capricious," and ordered the recalculation of pension assessments issued to the authority.

But Mayor Phelan said this week he expects the retirement board to appeal the ruling, and hinted that the city may get involved in the legal fight.

"We believe this decision is contrary to state law and we want to make sure our rights are protected," said Phelan. "It may be necessary to appeal this decision given that we think it's contrary to state law. I am hopeful that the retirement board appeals this decision and protects the city's rights."

CRAB agreed with the housing authority that the agency was being unfairly billed with inflated pension payments to the city's $250 million pension fund. If the ruling stands, housing authority officials said it would save the agency about $500,000 per year going forward.

CRAB ordered the retirement board to switch its method of calculating pension costs from a "payroll" method to an "actuarial" formula.

The payroll method involves splitting the cost of the retirement system between the city and housing authority based on payroll. The actuarial method more closely reflects pension costs generated specifically by housing authority retirees, according to the ruling.

The change would provide a financial benefit to the authority, but the city would have to absorb the impact on the other end.

"This ruling means the city has to pay its own pension costs, instead of shifting those costs to a small agency with 80 employees," said Patricia Hunt, the authority's general counsel.

She called the actuarial method the "fairest way" to calculate pension costs from

City Receives $500,000 For Open Space Purchase

Mayor William Phelan announces that the City of Quincy has received a $500,000 grant from the state for the purchase of open space at Marina Bay.

The grant must be used to help the city purchase Lot 23 at Marina Bay, according to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

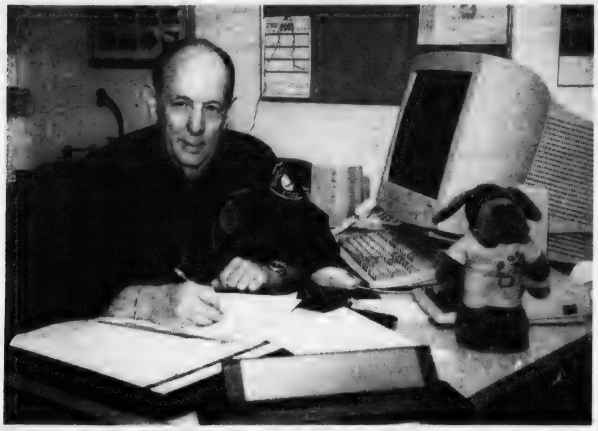
Phelan called it "great news."

"This grant will allow us to protect this valuable and beautiful piece of property from development," he said.

Phelan thanked the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and the Division of Conservation Services for recognizing the importance of the city's efforts to acquire the parcel.

Related Story On Page 12

The 13-acre site consists of uplands, wetlands and an old asphalt roadway. A portion of this property was targeted for a 12-unit townhouse development. There is also a current proposal by the property owner to resurface the asphalt roadway.



Phelan said he is cautiously optimistic that the city can reach a deal with the property owner to acquire the land. The mayor thanked environmental advocates who have lobbied for the protection of the land.

According to the mayor's office, the grant will be used to augment the funding the city has allocated from the hotel/motel tax to purchase open space, renovate parks and playgrounds, restore beaches and plant trees.

The city council approved Phelan's Natural Resources Investment Initiative that would invest monies generated from the hotel/motel tax into environmental efforts and parks.

Quincy's First Crime Prevention Officer

Police Officer Bob Hanna Retiring After 36 Years

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

He had no intention of ever becoming a law enforcement officer, but 36 years later Bob Hanna is calling it a career.

Hanna, 62, will retire on March 8 after serving more than three and a half decades as a Quincy Police Officer, including 20 years as the city's first Crime Prevention Officer.

The decision caps a career described by many as one that has greatly improved the relationship between the Quincy Police Department and the community it serves.

Hanna has been called one of Quincy's first community police officers, long before the concept of community policing was in the public realm.

Hanna, who has worn police badge No. 2, basically stumbled into the job after being asked by his friend Robert Costa to take the civil service exam. Costa, also a Quincy Police Officer, wears police badge No. 1.

"I had no intention of ever being a police officer," said Hanna. "But I got a call one night from Sgt. (Francis) Mullen who said I have until the next morning to make a decision. So I talked it over with my wife and we decided to give it try. Never in my wildest dreams did I ever think I would get called."

After serving under five chiefs, Hanna believes it is time to call it a day and move on to the next phase of his life.

"It's been a difficult and stressful job," he said. "I always said when I hit 62 I would want to spend quality time with my family and grandchildren. I really haven't had that much of an opportunity, but I plan to enjoy that much more."

For his first 10 years as a law enforcement officer, Hanna served as a "wagon officer," transporting jailed suspects and performing various tasks that would crop up on a nightly basis.

"One minute you would be transporting a prisoner and the next minute you would be delivering a baby," he said.

In the late 1970s, Hanna was assigned to the department's Special Operations Unit as a motorcycle officer. It was in this capacity that he first became acquainted with the concept of community policing, interacting with residents on a regular basis and responding to trouble spots throughout the city.

In 1985, well before the concept of community policing had made its way into the law enforcement vocabulary, Hanna was appointed by then-Chief Francis X. Finn to serve as the city's first Crime Prevention Officer. Having such an officer has enabled the police department to take advantage of various federal grants.

Embarking on a newly-created position, Hanna attended the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council, learning about home and business security, crime prevention techniques, crime watch programs, public speaking and other community policing concepts.

In addition, Hanna is credited with bringing another crime-fighting element to Quincy: McGruff The Crime Dog.

Although many claim they have not seen Hanna and McGruff in the same room at the same time, Hanna is mum on who trotted around the city as McGruff all those years.

Hanna said the city's community policing program has opened up the lines of communication between the police department and the public.

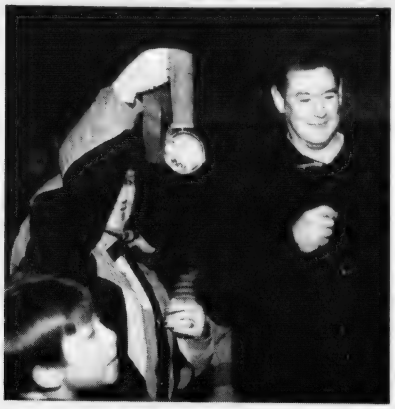
"When I first came on the force, the general public hated the police, due to the concerns with Vietnam and civil unrest - it was quite an eye-opener," said Hanna. "But society has changed dramatically because of community policing. Many people now know police officers personally, and they say, 'Hey, these are not bad guys, they are just like you and me.'"

Although Quincy continues to be a relatively safe city, Hanna said the community has changed somewhat since he first became a police officer in 1969.

"As a whole, the community has changed, because most people used to know each other in the neighborhoods," he said. "But now we have many rental properties and people coming in and out who are not as concerned about the community.

"Overall, people have the same concerns - they want to be safe in their homes and safe while they go shopping," he said.

As Crime Prevention Officer, Hanna said he is most proud of instituting a "Citizens Police Academy" program in Quincy, one of the first of its kind in the South Shore area. Several offshoots of that program followed, including a Senior Citizens Police Academy and a Student Police Academy.



The programs teach civilians crime-prevention techniques, how to be more observant, and ways to respond to a possible crime.

Over the years, the Citizens Police Academies have graduated more than 500 residents. In addition, the graduates formed an alumni group which meets on a regular basis to discuss various crime issues.

Hanna also helped found the Quincy Police Athletic League, where police officers participate in sporting events with kids. He served

Keenan Revives Measure For Pension Cost Savings

Councillor John Keenan was expected to re-introduce legislation at Tuesday night's city council meeting that potentially could save Quincy hundreds of thousands of dollars on the payment of its unfunded pension liability.

According to Keenan, the City of Quincy budgeted approximately $16.3 million to fund the retirement system. Overall, the city has an unfunded liability or financial obligation to the retirement system in excess of $100 million, he said. The city is obligated to continue to make payments to the retirement system based on a funding schedule over the next 22 years.

Keenan's measure would give the city the option of making a one-time payment to the system and finance that amount over a similar number of years at a low interest rate.

JOHN KEENAN

The end result could be a huge savings for the city, said Keenan.

"It's somewhat similar to refinancing a home at a favorable, locked-in interest rate," he said. "The recent upgrade of the city's bond rating opens the window again for potentially large savings."

The measure is in the form of a home rule petition and would require the approval of the city council, Legislature and governor. The bonds could then be issued with the approval of the city council upon the recommendation of the mayor, according to Keenan.

The legislation was expected to be reviewed by the council's finance committee, the retirement board and its actuary and investment counsel, as well as the city soliticitor and auditor.

Keenan introduced similar legislation in 2003, which was approved by the council and forwarded to the state Legislature. The measure died, however, in the House Ways and Means Committee after not being acted upon before the legislative session ended in December.

"As indicated two years ago this legislation would give us a financial tool, to be used if and when deemed most advantageous to the city," said Keenan.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 27, 1922, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover calls a conference to allocate radio wavelengths. Lack of regulation meant that some 500 stations were broadcasting on the same wavelength before the conference.

• On Feb. 26, 1949, the Lucky Lady II, a B-50 Superfortress, takes off from Carswell AFB in Texas on the first nonstop round-the-world flight. The aircraft was refueled four times in the air by tanker planes and returned to the United States 94 hours later.

• On Feb. 22, 1950, Walt Disney's animated feature "Cinderella" opens. Based on a fairy tale by the Brothers Grimm, "Cinderella" featured enduring songs like "A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes" and became one of Disney's most beloved films.

• On Feb. 25, 1964, 22-year-old Cassius Clay shocks the odds-makers by dethroning world heavyweight boxing champ Sonny Liston in a seventh-round technical knockout. The dreaded Liston, who had twice demolished former champ Floyd Patterson in one round, was an 8-to-1 favorite.

• On Feb. 21, 1972, President Richard Nixon arrives in Beijing, the capital of the People's Republic of China, on the first presidential visit to the world's most populous nation. Given that the United States had formally opposed China's communist government since it took power in 1949, Nixon was also the first president to visit a nation not recognized by the United States.

• On Feb. 24, 1988, the U.S. Supreme Court defends the right to satirize public figures, voting 8-0 to overturn the $200,000 settlement awarded to the Reverend Jerry Falwell for his emotional distress at being parodied in Hustler, a pornographic magazine.

• On Feb. 23, 1997, NBC becomes the first network to broadcast a movie without commercial interruption. Ford Motor Company, which sponsored the broadcast of "Schindler's List," showed one commercial before and after the film.

World Series Trophy Coming Here

Would you like a good close-up look at the World Series Trophy?

You'll get a chance right here in Quincy, Monday, March 21.

State Treasurer Tim Cahill has arranged with the Boston Red Sox to have the coveted trophy visit his hometown that day.

CAHILL

The trophy will be on exhibit during the afternoon in the City Council chambers at City Hall where Cahill long served as a councillor at-large.

THE TROPHY

The exact time has not been finalized. But the trophy will probably arrive there sometime around 2:30 p.m. and remain for the rest of the afternoon.

There may be two or three other stops in Quincy earlier that day but scheduling is still being worked on.

The Massachusetts Lottery of which Cahill as state treasurer is chairman, is serving as presenting sponsor of the World Series Trophy Tour in partnership with the Red Sox.

The trophy has already made a number of stops in New England, other states including California, Florida, Georgia and New York and the Dominican Republic.

It took 86 years for it to get to Boston as the Sox won their first world championship since 1918. This will be the first time it will be seen in Quincy.

Red Sox President/CEO Larry Lucchino wants to take the trophy to each of the 351 cities and towns in the state, assisted by the Massachusetts State Lottery.

"As we have traveled around New England and across the country, the response to the Trophy has been more remarkable than what we could imagined," Lucchino says. "The Lottery is a fitting partner that does so much good, pouring hundreds of millions of dollars it generates each year directly into local communities."

And, allow Cahill a plug:

"Like the Red Sox, the Massachusetts State Lottery is synonymous with success."

He notes the Massachusetts lottery is one of the most successful in the country.

"We just wrapped up our best year ever," he says, "returning more than $900 million in lottery revenues back to the state."

Meanwhile, details will be coming on the March 21 trophy visit.

DEREK LOWE, one of the big reasons the Red Sox have the World Series Trophy, is leaving Quincy, his adopted hometown since 1998.

LOWE

Lowe will be putting his Gardiner Rd., West Quincy, home up for sale now that he's with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He reportedly has already bought a home there in Beverly Hills.

Lowe told neighbors he is leaving the Red Sox and Quincy with two cherished memories: the big Boston celebration for the Red Sox team and the Derek Lowe Day at Adams Field here when an estimated 2,500 turned out to honor him personally.

Lowe looks forward to pitching for the Dodgers but has one regret: the Dodgers, of course, are in the National league which means he won't be getting back this way.

As for inter-league play, the Dodgers and Red Sox aren't scheduled to face one another here for several years, he says.

But then, there's always the possibility of a World Series match-up.

Providing the Sox don't take another 86 years to do it again.

JOE LARAIA still has his followers and some of them would like to see him back in the political arena this year.

LaRAIA

The former mayor and city councillor could always pull a good vote and would make things interesting if he were to get back into action.

But he says he had his day and has no plans to return.

He always livened things up.

Like the famed recount mayoral election of 1975 when he challenged incumbent Walter Hannon. The latter appeared to be the winner by 134 votes election night. But LaRaia called for a recount that made him the actual winner by 483 votes.

He lost a re-election bid to Arthur Tobin but made several political comebacks including topping the city council at-large field in 1981.

LaRaia challenged four-term Mayor Frank McCauley in 1987 and came within just 473 votes of an upset.

LaRaia staged another comeback in 1993, winning a council at-large seat, and serving until 1995 when Mayor James Sheets appointed him an assessor. He's now retired.

"It's nice to be remembered," LaRaia says. "But there was a time to run and I did. That time has now gone."

Too bad in a way. He sure would have put some zing into Election Year 2005.

JOHN NOONAN has a milestone coming up Saturday: his 85th birthday.

NOONAN

Family and friends will help him celebrate at a party from noon to 4 p.m. at the Sheraton Braintree Hotel, Forbes Rd.

John, one of those nice guys you are lucky to have be part of your life, has been chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging Board the past quarter century.

And looks over Quincy's seniors and their needs as though they were all members of his family.

John, a former newspaper man, retired 20 years ago as director of government affairs for the Massachusetts Medical Society, the oldest active medical society in the country, which dates back something like 150 years.

"I want you to know I wasn't one of the founders," he muses.

Prior to that he was assistant public relations director for the State Department of Health.

As No. 85 comes up, John has this bit of philosophy: "It's only natural to age in life but you don't have to get old."

Happy birthday, kid.

Free Legal Clinic At Quincy Court March 1

A free legal clinic sponsored by the Norfolk County Bar Association will be held Tuesday, March 1, from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy District Court, 1 Dennis Ryan Parkway, Quincy Center.

Other free clinics at the Quincy Court are scheduled for April 19, June 7 and June 21.

A panel of attorneys will be available for a one-on-one consultation, free of charge. No appointments are necessary.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1918 real postcard view of the ancient slate quarry that was located off Apthorp Street in Norfolk Downs. First opened in early colonial days this quarry was a primary source of slate for gravestones, roofs, stepping-stones and many other uses for over 200 years. There also was another ancient slate quarry near Squaw Rock in Squantum, its remains can still be seen. The slate found here, known as Braintree Blue Slate, was formed over 500 million years ago and is the underlying rock beneath most of Quincy. Small outcroppings also can be seen on Newport Avenue, East Howard and Adams Streets. Our more famous Quincy granite didn't come here until 250 million years later. Until it was filled in the late 1940s, this old quarry was a great place to fish for carp in the summer and to ice skate in the winter. It was always too murkey for swimming; besides it was only a few hundred yards from Wollaston Beach. Today it is city owned and zoned open space, with few remaining signs of its past. Praises Mayor On City's Bond Rating Upgrade

The city's bond rating upgrade is a significant accomplishment for Mayor William Phelan. A municipality's financial health can be evaluated through these independent ratings. Cities and towns strive to achieve the best possible ratings. The reward for these increased ratings is substantial financial savings for the taxpayers when the city bonds future capital projects.

The City of Quincy is preparing for a renovation and rebuilding of Quincy High School and Central Middle School. The taxpayers will benefit through reduced interest cost of the school projects and any other future capital projects that the city undertakes. The increased rating will reduce future interest costs and free up funds for other budgetary expenditures. The mayor and the finance team in Quincy should be congratulated for a job well done.

Urges Asian Americans To Get Involved

Dear Asian Americans;

To those who are involved in making their communities better, we are grateful for your efforts, and appreciate them.

To those who aren't, please get involved. If you want your neighborhood to be or continue to be safe; if you want your schools to be or continue to be good places to learn; if you want your streets to be or continue to be clean, participate. If you want something done, you must raise your voice and let it be heard. Don't depend on others to do everything. Clean streets, good schools, safe neighborhoods are the result of people participation and hard work.

We Asian Americans have been stereotyped as quiet and docile, saying "yes" and obeying whatever comes our way. And, to a degree, it's true. If you want to change this image, make yourselves heard, seen...participate.

Salvation Army Expresses Gratitude For Support

I want to take the opportunity, on behalf of The Salvation Army and those we serve, to express deep gratitude for the generous support of donors from greater Quincy.

Once again our faithful supporters came though in our Christmas Fund Raising. Our kettles raised 14 percent above our anticipated budget. This enabled The Salvation Army to assist 25% more families for Christmas in 2004 than in 2003.

We also appreciate the 361 volunteers who gave nearly 1400 hours of volunteer service during the holiday season. Our volunteers and our donors truly are the army behind The Salvation Army.

May we continue to work together to improve the lives of the less fortunate in Quincy.

God Bless You!

Major Douglas Jones

State Police Barracks Backed For West Quincy

This Week
1956
49 Years Ago

Brig. Gen. Otis M. Whitney, the state's commissioner of public safety, was reported to be "very much interested" in building a new state police barracks in West Quincy to serve the new superhighways, Routes 128 and 3.

Capt. Arthur T. O'Leary, adjutant, toured the site near the Granite Railway with Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and a group of business and civic leaders and indicated that, should the plan be approved, construction would start within the year.

"This appears to be a good location and would offer the state police a happy medium between the Foxboro and Norwell barracks in patrolling the new state highways," he said.

Capt. O'Leary said the new barracks would be a substation of Troop D which is headquartered in Middleboro and would consist of 15 men, including a sergeant and two corporals.

SNOW REMOVAL CHANGE

Mayor Della Chiesa announced henceforth contractors renting trucks to the city for snow removal will be given specified routes to cover and they will be held accountable for the satisfactory clearance of snow from those streets.

FREE SALK SHOTS

Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash announced that his department will conduct another mass inoculation of Salk and polio vaccine with 20,000 shots received from the state. Since 1954, he said, 100,000 shots have been administered in Quincy.

Contemporary Women Artists Topic At Library March 6

The Thomas Crane Public Library will present "Inspirations: the Art and Lives of Contemporary Women Artists" Sunday, March 6, at 2 p.m. at the Main Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The free event is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library in conjunction with the Kathleen Bitetti art exhibition now on display at the main library. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Through slides and discussion, artist and teacher Leslie Sills will present the art of women artists from painter Mary Cassatt to photographer Cindy Sherman and show how women artists of the late 19th and early 20th centuries laid the groundwork for the feminist artists of the 1970s, such as Quincy natives May Stevens and Kathleen Bitetti.

Find out how these feminists became role models not only for the women artists working today but also for the type of art work they produce. Domesticity, identity, sexuality and patriarchy/matriarchy are some of the themes that will be addressed.

Sills is an artist, author and art educator who has been teaching young people and adults for over 25 years. A graduate of Boston University and the School of Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, she has exhibited her work in galleries, museums and universities throughout the U.S. Recently, Sills won a grant from The Artists' Resource Trust, a fund of the Berkshire Community Foundation, Inc., for her ceramic sculpture.

Sills is the author of three art books on women artists written for children. "Inspirations: Stores About Women Artists," and "Visions: Stories About Women Artists" were both selected as American Library Association Notable Books. "In Real Life: Six Women Photographers" was selected by "Booklist" as one of the Best Ten Art Books in 2003.

Knights Of Columbus Irish Nite March 12

The Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus will sponsor an Irish Nite Saturday, March 12, from 8 p.m. to midnight at its hall, Hollis Avenue and Quincy Hancock Street, North Quincy.

Dennis Kelly will provide music. A corned beef and cabbage dinner will be served. Tickets are $17.50 per person. Individual seating or tables are available.

Grand Knight Robert Burhoe is honorary chairman of the dinner. The dinner/dance is open to non-members.

Reservations must be made in advance by calling Chairman Joseph Bracken at 617-328-7451.

Jane Esterquest To Perform With Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra

Quincy resident Jane Esterquest will perform with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras (GBYSO) in its 2005 Concert Series.

Esterquest plays violin for the Junior Repertory Orchestra and is currently a student at Central Middle School.

She is the daughter of Jay Esterquest and Marjorie Jordan.

GBYSO, an independent organization housed at Boston University's College of Fine Arts, offers a variety of musical opportunities for young performers throughout New England.

Students are accepted to one of the GBYSO program's orchestras according to their ability and experience. The orchestras include the Senior Orchestra, Repertory Orchestra, Junior Repertory Orchestra, Preparatory String Orchestra, and Intensive Community Program. GBYSO students come from throughout New England to rehearse weekly from September through June at the university's College of Fine Arts.

JANE ESTERQUEST

The orchestras perform each year in some of Boston's finest venues, including Sanders Theatre, Symphony Hall, and BU's Tsai Performance Center.

Boston University has sponsored GBYSO since it was established in 1958. The university provides rehearsal rooms, office space, and musical instruments. The dean of the College of Fine Arts and the director of the music division serve as ex officio members on the GBYSO Board of Directors.

UNScrabble Fundraiser To Benefit Thomas Crane Literacy Program

The sixth annual UNScrabble fundraiser benefiting the Thomas Crane Public Library Literacy Project will be held Thursday, March 17 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. in the Richardson Room of the library.

Sponsored by the Literacy Volunteers of America, Quincy, the Crane Library and Altrusa International Inc., the fundraiser cost is $10 per person. All proceeds benefit the library's literacy volunteer program.

The program serves the South Shore community with dedicated volunteers who provide free tutoring to adults in basic reading and writing.

Refreshments, games, prizes and surprises will be featured at the event. UNScrabble play consists of 30 minutes of frenzied word building using all of the Scrabble tiles in that small time frame.

Call Elaine Kline at 617-376-1314 to register. Space is limited.

Family Tea Cups Donated To Beechwood Senior Center

Quincy residents are generously donating family tea cups to the Senior Center at the Beechwood Community Life Center.

"Since our need and request for donated cups appeared in The Quincy Sun, neighbors and friends have come by with many donations," said Maryann Mahony, Senior Center coordinator.

"Many are bringing in family tea cups that were their mothers' and grandmothers'. Those who donate are invited to become Lifetime Guests For Tea. Tea time is daily at 2 p.m."

Sharron Beals, Beechwood executive director, notes "Some of the tea cups come with a touch of history."

Among them are cups donated by Joanne Swingle Hennigan, granddaughter of Jonathan Swingle, who owned Swingle's Quarry, the deepest at 345 feet of all the Quincy granite quarries.

The Swingle family donated the block of granite from which the 11-ton famed Granite Ball was created.

It was presented to the city June 25, 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625.

The Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association designated it be placed outside Old City Hall. It was moved from there to the Fore River traffic rotary in 1937.

"Tea at Two is a wonderful time to join neighbors and friends at our Senior Center," says Mahony.

For more information call her at 617-471-5712.

"TEA AT TWO" at Beechwood Senior Center is enjoyed by Lillian Murphy, Florence Cetlin and Lee Salerno.

LILLIAN MURPHY, Joanne Swingle Hennigan, Gert Smart and Frances Smith unpack china tea cups donated to the Beechwood Senior Center by Hennigan, grandaughter of Jonathan Swingle, owner of the famed Swingle's Quarry.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Val's Bean Bonanza

During a recent trip to Alexander Valley in California, our son Dom was opening a restaurant with his friend Val who Dom says is the best cook ever (he quickly said "next to you Mom").

He said during the months he was there, Val cooked up the most delicious entrees, but this bean side dish was one which he suggested that I share with all of you.

Val's Bean Dish

2-14 ounce cans cannelini beans (drained)
1 medium onion (chopped)
4 garlic cloves (chopped)
2 large plum tomatoes (peeled and chopped) (or small can)
4 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon oregano
salt and pepper
1/2 cup chicken stock

Sauté the garlic and onions, then add the tomatoes and cook until blended. Add the beans, oregano, salt and pepper. Cook on low for 25-39 minutes uncovered. While this is simmering, add small amounts of chicken stock so mixture isn't dry.

Quincy Activism Panel Discussion Topic At Crane Library Sunday

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., will host a public reception and panel discussion "Quincy Activitism - From the Adams to the Present" Sunday, Feb. 27 from 2-4 p.m. in the Main Library Community Meeting Room.

The discussion will be moderated by Kathleen Bitetti, featured artist and activist.

Other panelists include:

Elizabeth F. Campbell, executive director, Quincy Access Television

Edward Fitzgerald, executive director, Quincy Historic Society

Jo-Anne M. LaFontaine, executive director, DOVE, Inc.

Quincy Police Sgt. Charles Santoro.

On exhibit is Kathleen Bitetti's "Pretty Sweet: the Sentimental Image in Contemporary Art" (through April 17).

Bitetti, a Quincy native and art activist in the Boston area for over 15 years, creates conceptually based sociopolitical objects and installations that deconstruct the American dream, fairy tales, gender roles/gender assignment, the fragility of family dynamics and domestic violence.

Robert Haley Appointed To Fire Study Committee

Robert Haley of Victoria Rd., former vice president of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, has been appointed to serve as the fifth member of the fire study committee, according to the Laurie Allen, purchasing agent for the City of Quincy.

Allen's decision breaks a logjam that materialized after committee members could not agree on the fifth member. She said state law gives the city's purchasing agent or procurement officer the authority to appoint individuals to such a committee.

Dave Murphy, William Phelan's aide, and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell recommended Haley, while Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and firefighters' union President Tom Bowes chose Lynne Houghton.

"Mr. Haley has a strong professional background in municipal government as well as experience serving as the former vice president of the Quincy Taxpayers Association," said Allen. "I think he will do a fine job representing Quincy taxpayers."

Haley is treasurer for the Town of Hanover.

The committee has been charged with guiding a fire study which will evaluate the fire department's long-term needs. Members are also expected to choose a consultant to undertake the study.

Last April, the city council approved a study of the fire department's needs, including a review of its eight fire stations, staffing needs and an inventory of apparatus.

Police Officer Bob Hanna Retiring After 36 Years

BOB HANNA, retiring after serving as a Quincy Police Officer for 36 years, receives a pat on the back from his longtime friend, McGruff The Crime Dog. As the city's first Crime Prevention Officer, Hanna was instrumental in bringing McGruff to Quincy. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble as league president for five years.

He said the league has proven to be beneficial because it allows children to get acquainted with police officers in a casual setting.

These efforts have led to a less adversarial relationship between the police and residents, he said.

Hanna has also been instrumental in directing various crime watch meetings throughout the city, addressing residents' concerns and bringing that information back to the police department for review.

"You have to be a good listener," said Hanna. "Many times people just want someone who will listen. They want someone to point them in the right direction - you have to be a people person."

Despite having served as a law enforcement officer for 36 years, Hanna has never fired his weapon, a phenomenon that is not uncommon, he said.

He did draw his gun once, however, during a memorable confrontation in Mount Wollaston Cemetery back in the mid 1970s.

He and fellow officer Hank Bradley investigated the cause of a gun shot that penetrated police headquarters and lodged in the wall of a bathroom.

Hanna and Bradley decided that the gunshot originated from the cemetery and walked across the street to investigate.

The officers split up to cover more ground. Hanna was caught by surprise when a mentally ill man emerged from the bushes and confronted him with a shotgun.

Hanna managed to quell the situation and he and Bradley restrained the man after a foot chase through the cemetery.

For their efforts in capturing the assailant, Hanna and Bradley received the Medal of Valor from the American Legion.

Hanna said he is proud to say he never fired his weapon.

"That's a good thing - once you pull the trigger you can't call it back," he said.

He is hoping for quieter times back home in South Weymouth, either working on his 1955 Mercury Montclair and attending various antique car auctions or spending quality time with his family and grandchildren.

Hanna said he will be succeeded - at least for the interim - by Sgt. Dan Minton, who has already assumed some of the responsibilities associated with the crime prevention officer. Hanna said Minton has worked alongside him for three years now.

"Everyone says it's not so much the job you miss, but the people," said Hanna. "And I will miss the people."

Phelan Sends Rezoning Plan To Council

projects have been hung up due to complex zoning hurdles and appeals.

"In reality, there is not going to be a lot of 15-story buildings in the downtown area," said Phelan. "But we are hopeful we will see one or two.

"Before they invest, developers want to know what they can or cannot do," said Phelan. "They want some level of certainty that their plans will not get hung up by zoning regulations and appeals."

In a month or so, the city will unveil related financing programs that will seek to complement the zoning changes, said Phelan.

The city plans on becoming the first municipality in the state to apply for a new tax incentive program that will allow it to use anticipated taxes from any new development to borrow money to pay for public improvements downtown.

Phelan said the city will take advantage of a 2003 state law that created "district improving financing." The law allows the city to borrow funds based on expected increases in property value in downtown Quincy and use it to pay for infrastructure improvements in the same area.

If approved by the council, the city could move ahead on a number of fronts, including jumpstarting the Quincy Center Concourse, which is expected to connect Burgin Parkway to Southern Artery. Phelan maintains that the completion of that project will go a long way in attracting developers. Funds generated as a result of the new law could go toward paying for the full extension, he said.

The construction of a new parking structure in the downtown area might be in the offing if the city takes advantage of the new law, said Phelan. Funds produced from the financing plan could also be used to acquire land necessary to complete the concourse, he said.

Phelan praised the work of the city's downtown committee, which drafted much of the plan.

"The downtown committee has been working hard, and I think they have a good grasp of what some of the obstacles are that need to be overcome. These zoning changes will help to overcome some of those obstacles," he said.

Finn Shuffles Election Committee Leadership

After ruling out a possible run for mayor, Councillor Joseph Finn has made changes to his election committee, appointing Ward 5 resident Nicholas Puleo as campaign manager and Michael Barry as committee chairman.

Puleo is an employee of Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr, LLP, and is a senior at Northeastern University. He has been involved with the John Kerry presidential campaign, the Democratic National Convention, and has worked on a number of local campaigns.

Puleo is also a member of the Quincy Democratic City Committee, Ward 5 Community Association, and is a delegate to the Massachusetts Democratic State Convention.

Barry, campaign manager for Finn's last three campaigns, will now serve as committee chairman.

Tracy Brooks will remain as committee treasurer.

Finn has not yet announced a bid for re-election.

Recommend City Acquire Lot 23, HN Boatyard

The city's open space committee has recommended that Mayor William Phelan purchase the remainder of Lot 23 at Marina Bay and the Bayswater Boatyard property in Hough's Neck, it was announced.

The committee made the recommendation after reviewing five properties identified as the city's top priorities for open space acquisition and negotiations with each of the property owners.

"I am excited that the city is moving closer to realizing our goals of protecting these valuable properties forever," said P.J. Foley, committee member. "Both properties protect wetlands and marsh areas and are important to the protection of our local environment. In addition, both allow public access so they can be enjoyed and appreciated by the citizens of Quincy."

Along with Foley, members of the open space committee consist of: Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, Bill Keener of the Quincy Conservation Commission, Steve Perdios from the Quincy Environmental Network, City Solicitor Monica Conyngham, Planning Director Dennis Harrington, Park Director Tom Koch, Recreation Director Barry Welch and Mayor William Phelan's aide, Dave Murphy.

The land at Marina Bay consists of approximately 13 acres of land between Seaport Drive and East Squantum marsh, bisecting the Marina Bay development and restoration of a roadway project. The land is part of the original Lot 23, which the public voted overwhelmingly to protect in a 1999 non-binding ballot referendum.

Bayswater Boatyard consists of four potential waterfront house lots, a small waterfront office, a boat ramp and beachfront. The land sits between the bay and the Parkhurst Marsh, which the city has been working to restore with the help of the state and a citizens' committee group.

Phelan said he will approach the property owners with the hopes of finalizing negotiations and presenting the open space committee's plan to city council for their approval.

"This is but the first step that we will be taking to protect Quincy's open space," said Phelan. "We are looking at methods other than outright acquisition to protect other significant parcels of land. We are doing all we can with the resources available to us."

The city council approved Phelan's proposal to utilize revenues from the hotel/motel tax to issue a bond to help purchase open space, renovate parks and playgrounds, plant trees and restore the Broad Meadows marsh area.

To date, the plan has already helped to renovate Adams Field, plant 465 trees city-wide, improve Merrymount Park, honor the city's commitment to purchase 22 acres from the Highpoint development and create the city's first athletic facility dedicated primarily to female sports, according to the mayor's office.

Plans to renovate Veterans' Memorial Stadium, the Ryan Boathouse and many other parks and playgrounds will be carried out later this year, according to the mayor's office.

In addition, work on the restoration of the Broad Meadows marsh is slated for this fall. The city and Army Corps of Engineers will restore 30 acres of vibrant saltwater marsh and create a waterfront upland park along the Town River.

17th Annual Quincy Lunar New Year Festival Sunday

Final preparations are underway for the 17th Annual Quincy Lunar New Year Festival to be held on Sunday, Feb. 27 at North Quincy High School.

This celebration of the Asian New Year will begin with opening ceremonies at 11 a.m. and will continue until 4 p.m.

The festival is a free event presented by Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI).

The Asian Lunar New Year is celebrated at the end of the annual cycle of new moons and each New Year is named for one of the 12 animals. According to ancient legend, the Lord Buddha once summoned all animals to come to him. When only 12 came, he rewarded them by naming each year for them.

The year 2005 is the year of the Rooster.

Lunar New Year celebrations are held in Asian communities throughout the world. Traditionally, the New Year is a family holiday. Families come together to visit, share meals and present gifts of "lucky" red envelopes to children. Quincy's celebration will reflect this tradition.

"The New Year Festival is a great family event. It represents the involvement of many different groups including: students of the North Quincy High Asian Culture Club and Thomas Jefferson Forum, our Grand sponsor, Sunshine Travel, the Wollaston Senior Center, Quincy Medical Center, and the Chinese American Fine Arts Society all working to bring together several generations of the community to celebrate," said Ken An, president of the QARI Board of Directors.

As a family event, the festival will offer entertainment for all ages. There will be performances of Chinese and Filipino music and dance and exhibits featuring the work of local Asian artists.

The festival will also feature the Lion Dance and traditional Chinese movies. A children's area will be available with Asian games and, new this year, there will be a senior citizen program area featuring crafts and calligraphy.

Local restaurants will be offering different types of Asian cuisine including Chinese and Vietnamese foods.

"The Lunar New Festival is a wonderful event not only for the Asian community but for the entire city," said John Brothers, executive director of QARI. "This year's festival promises to be the biggest and best yet with the introduction of a community banquet to kick-off the festival by bringing the whole community together."

The Quincy Lunar New Year Community Banquet will be held the evening prior to the festival at the International Buffet Restaurant, 237 Quincy Avenue, Quincy. Tickets are $15 for adults and $8 for children.

The banquet program will include a free raffle and musical entertainment.

More than 100 local businesses, government and social service agencies and individuals will be participating in the Lunar New Year Festival and Community Banquet.

The Grand Sponsors of this year's festival are Sunshine Travel, Mohegan Sun and Stop & Shop Supermarkets. The Patriot Ledger and The Quincy Sun are media sponsors for the event.

Quincy Asian Resources Inc. is a not for profit organization dedicated to promoting the development of the Asian-American community.

Quincy Awarded $1,680 Grant In Recycling Cans

The city of Quincy has been awarded a municipal recycling grant consisting of 400 set-out containers valued at $1,680 through the State Department of Environmental Protection.

Since 1990, the state has granted more than $41 million in recycling equipment, household hazardous waste equipment, educational materials and technical assistance to cities and towns throughout the state.

"With the help of these grants, municipalities like Quincy play a vital role in building the Commonwealth's recycling infrastructure and promoting consumer participation in recycling," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

FIRE SAFETY

Smoke Detectors An Early Warning Necessity

By TOM LYONS
Quincy Fire Department
Fire Prevention Bureau

If I conduct an inspection in a home for a reason other than smoke detector placement, I still walk into the home with my first observation being "are there smoke detectors present?"

If all else fails in your attempt to prevent fire, early notification is a necessity. A properly placed, working smoke detector should give you that notification.

In a typical existing home, smoke detectors should be present on the ceiling, at the base of the cellar stairs, not in the stairway, on the first floor ceiling at the base of the stairway leading to the second floor, and on the hallway ceiling on the second floor outside the bedrooms.

To detect upward smoke migration, smoke detectors are purposely required by code at the base of stairways where a stairway can act as a chimney as smoke and hot gases seek high levels. The detector outside the bedrooms adds to the notification by giving an audible alarm outside of areas where occupants are sleeping.

Captain
TOM LYONS

Besides obscuring vision, smoke contains asphyxiate gases that can confuse, render an occupant debilitated and ultimately killed. The earliest notification of smoke can minimize the harmful effects of both heat and fire, increasing the chances for safe evacuation and survival.

I can think of an instance where detectors weren't present and two occupants succumbed to the heat and smoke of a house fire. The fact that working detectors weren't present was a major contributing factor in their demise. While the fire was extinguished and we as firefighters conducted overhaul operations, I can recall thinking how the outcome would have been different had working smoke detectors been present.

Sixteen years experience responding to fires as both a firefighter and lieutenant on fire apparatus instills a heartfelt desire to eliminate the consequences of tragic fire. Now as a captain in the fire prevention bureau for 11 years, no other incentive is needed than the experience of destructive fire and lives lost. Having seen it, you race to minimize its reoccurrence.

Maintain working, properly placed smoke detectors within your home. If battery operated, replace the battery once a year or when it makes a "chirping" sound. Test the detectors monthly. Most smoke detectors sold today contain test buttons.

Be safe!

South Shore Among Strongest Growth Regions In 2004

Sale Of Single-Family Homes, Condos Reach Record Levels

The Bay State housing market enjoyed its best year ever in 2004 as historically low mortgage rates, an improving job market and rising inventory levels helped boost home buying activity to record levels, a report issued by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) shows.

Home prices also rose for an 11th consecutive year during 2004, with double-digit appreciation observed in both the detached single-family home and condo markets, an indication that housing demand continues to exceed the supply of homes in most market areas and price ranges.

In 2004, the MAR report found that sales of detached single-family homes increased 8.7 percent in Massachusetts, from 46,410 homes sold in 2003 to 50,441 this past year. The 2004 sales volume establishes a new state record for single-family home sales in a single year, eclipsing the prior record of 50,401 homes sold in 1998.

Condominium sales also set a new all-time high in 2004, rising 26.7 percent to 19,710 last year to shatter the old record of 15,560 units sold during 2003.

The growth in detached single-family home sales was felt in all seven market areas of the state last year, with the strongest sales gains occurring in the Greater Boston, Central (Worcester County) and South Shore regions, where sales rose 15.7 percent, 11 percent and 9.7 percent, respectively. Sales also improved a healthy 4 to 6 percent in the Northeast and West regions, while more modest sales gains took place in Cape Cod and southeastern Massachusetts.

Meanwhile, the growth in condo sales was concentrated in five markets — Cape Cod, Central Mass., Greater Boston, the Northeast and South Shore — with the Central, Greater Boston and Northeast regions all experiencing sales gains of 20 percent or more from 2003 to 2004.

In both the detached single-family home and condominium markets, sales activity improved in all four quarters of 2004, with new single quarter sales records for each property type set in the three-month period from July-September last year when 15,603 detached homes and 6,217 condos were sold. And, while sales did moderate in the final quarter of the year due to seasonal market fluctuations, the fourth quarter sales pace remained at or near record levels for the time period.

Specifically, fourth quarter sales of detached single-family homes increased 3.6 percent to 12,274 units sold in the final quarter of 2004, the third highest sales total on record for an October-December period. Only the fourth quarter of 1998 when 12,696 homes closed and the fourth quarter of 1997 when 12,368 homes sold saw greater activity.

Meanwhile, condo sales set a new record for fourth quarter sales volume this past year at 4,729 units sold, an increase of 27.8 percent over the comparable period in 2003. The prior record was set just last year when 3,700 condos sold in the fourth quarter.

The second half surge in home buying activity coincided with a steady decline in mortgage rates which peaked at 6.5 percent for a 30-year fixed rate loan in May, but then dropped two-thirds of a point to an average of 5.83 percent in the fourth quarter. For the entire year, the average rate for a 30-year mortgage in Massachusetts was 5.99 percent, the first time the annual rate for a 30-year home loan has been below 6 percent in over 30 years.

Conway's Internet Lead Division Honored

Jack Conway & Co. recently honored its Internet Lead Division for outstanding results in 2004, including a state-of-the-art customer tracking system that is the among the best in the industry.

The award was presented at a ceremony at Conway's Norwell headquarters, which serves as the hub of the company's Internet activity. Calls and e-mails that originate from Web listings on www.jackconway.com are processed within minutes by the division. Customers with questions are contacted by staff members or by agents in the field, depending upon the nature of their requests.

Jill Evans, a Certified Relocation Professional who directs Conway's Internet Lead Division, said the volume of business from the Internet has increased substantially in the three years since her department's creation. Evans and Kate Norton, a RELO Certified Coordinator, are proud of their department's customer-conversion rate, which is more than double the national average.

"People call us from all over the world," Evans said, "and sometimes it's someone who's right around the corner. Either way, we respond quickly to the request and make sure the customer gets the information they need."

Norton cited a testimonial she recently received from a customer relocating to the area from Chicago. She first visited Conway's Web site for homes for sale and requested information about communities on the South Shore.

"I can't tell you how much my husband and I appreciate the thorough information you sent," she said. "We've done this many times before ... and we've never received such detailed information from any other broker."

President of Corporate Services Maureen McCaffrey supervises the Internet Lead Division, which falls under the umbrella of Conway's Relocation Department. She credited Evans and Norton with the efficiency of the Lead Division's tracking of customer inquiries.

"With the touch of a button, the division can produce reports detailing the status of each request," McCaffrey said. "Customer follow-up, agent and individual office success rates and response times are tracked automatically and result in a streamlined process."

Technology Director Toni Manning said that last year, Internet leads resulted in approximately $48 million in additional business for the company.

"The business certainly has changed from when I started nearly 50 years ago," said company founder Jack Conway. "But as our customers' habits evolve, we need to adapt to meet their needs. Our Internet Division is doing it better than anyone in the business."

"Frozen" Pipe Stalls Shower Leak Repair

Q. The shower in our master bath has a single pull-out handle, which had a leak. I tried to replace the old stem; however, the only thing I could remove was the center handle, while the cylinder remained frozen inside the water pipe. So I took the new stem out of the new cylinder, and put it into the pipe. This hasn't fixed the leak. How can I fix this quickly? I live in a 10-unit condominium, and when I work on the pipes I have to shut the water off to all 10 residences. — John M., Springfield, Pa.

A. The leak is almost certainly from the cylinder (cartridge) inside the pipe, as deteriorating seals inside this assembly can cause the type of faucet leak you describe. So, the cartridge has to come out.

Check with the manufacturer of the faucet. Some assemblies have unique release mechanisms and methods (like a retaining clip that must be removed first) or require a special tool to "unstick" the cartridge from the valve body. Contact the faucet maker with the model number (or replacement model number) to see if any special instructions exist.

If there are no special instructions, it's back to the old "wiggle method" as you try to get the cartridge out. Inspect the cylinder again, looking for plastic parts that might be removed or threads or nuts that can be firmly gripped by a wrench or needle-nose pliers. Use side-to-side and up-down motions to try and work the cartridge free. Also, try prying the cartridge loose using a flat-head screwdriver — a coat of plumber's grease between the cylinder and pipe may be the culprit.

Note: Once you have loosened and removed the cylinder, write down or sketch the position of notable features on the unit: any notches or bumps, lettering and colors (especially around intake holes). The replacement cylinder's position must match that of the old cylinder so that hot and cold water settings are not reversed. Since the replacement will be installed almost as tightly as the old cylinder, you don't want to have to tug it out again anytime soon.

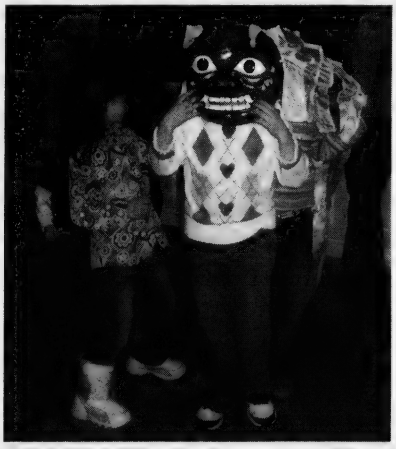
Sacred Heart School Celebrates Lunar New Year

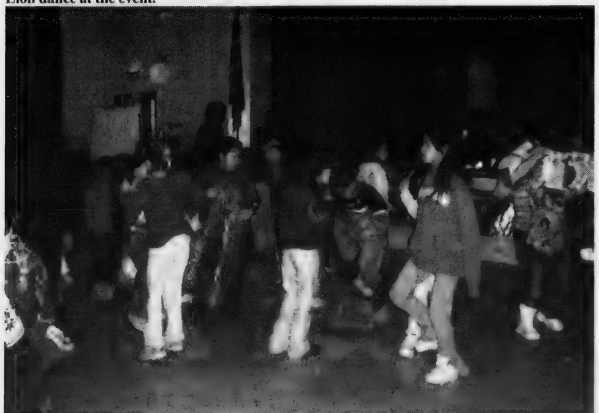
SACRED HEART SCHOOL students Julianna Horgan (left) and Fiona Riordan have fun celebrating the Lunar New Year at the school's third annual celebration which incorporated traditions of China, India, Vietnam and other Asian cultures.

STUDENTS FROM Sacred Heart School in North Quincy at the school's third annual Lunar New Year celebration.



DECORATIONS TRANSFORMED the school auditorium into a delightful banqueting room for the celebration. The after-school program at Sacred Heart contributed wonderful Rooster and lantern decorations that helped decorate the auditorium.

A TRADITIONAL INDIAN sign of Welcome, created with petals, greeted the guests. Approximiately 200 students, parents and friends attended the celebration.



FIFTH GRADE student Catherine O'Connor helped lead the Lion dance at the event.

STUDENTS DANCED the Lion Dance to traditional Chinese music.

STUDENTS STOMP on bubble wrap to simulate the sound of firecrackers as the Lion Dance starts.

WINTER CAR CARE

In The Winter, Even Your Car Can Get The Flu

Are you and your family ready for the cold and flu season? How about your car?

"The same snowy, freezing, damp weather that brings on the sniffles for people lowers the resistance in cars," says automotive authority Joel Burrows, a.k.a. "The Car Doctor" and VP of Training/R&D at Precision Tune Auto Care (PTAC).

Motorists are more likely to face car trouble in winter than any other time of year," said Burrows. The American Automobile Association reports that of the 21 million emergency road service calls they receive, most are in the late fall and winter. Of those calls 40 percent involve vehicles that wouldn't start and 34 percent are for major mechanical failures requiring towing. In light of those statistics, the Car Doctor suggests making sure "your car is healthy with a physical exam. Just as a cough is the signal for an on-coming cold, rough idling, hard starts, stalling or diminished power are signs of pending car trouble. A thorough inspection and analysis by a trusted professional assures that your car is running at maximum efficiency and provides insight to potential problems. Pay special attention to replacing dirty filters for air, fuel and crankcase ventilation when necessary."

In addition to the basics, Burrows identifies critical areas that cause car owners the most headaches during winters. He advises giving special attention to:

• Oil. Oil changes should be more frequent in winter. As temperatures drop, oil thickens and provides less efficient lubrication. Use lighter oil (5W-30 or 10W-40) or try synthetic oil, which flows better in extremely cold weather, offering more protection at start-up. For specific recommendations for your vehicle, always refer to the manufacturer's service schedule.

• Antifreeze. "Permanent" does not mean forever; most antifreeze requires changing every 24 months. Antifreeze prevents ice from forming in the engine block plus inhibits rust and corrosion. Dirty antifreeze contains sediments that may plug radiator passages and cause overheating.

• Battery. At 32 degrees, a battery may have only 50 percent of its summer output but twice the need for starting power. Check connections to assure a tight fit. Remove corrosion from posts and cable connections. And have your auto care service provider perform a load test on your vehicle's battery.

• Hoses. Hoses should be inspected every year and changed every three. They wear from the inside out, so defects are not always visible. Squeeze to detect loss of elasticity. Look for cracked, bulging, brittle or limp hoses.

• Belts. Check overall condition and tension on the belt. Too tight a belt can ruin an alternator, too loose can result in a dead battery. Look for cracks in serpentine type belts.

• Tires. When the temperature drops so does the air pressure in tires. Improper inflation causes premature wearing which, in turn, can cause an accident. Check tire pressure when the tires are cold, not after driving. Also check for cuts, abrasions and uneven wear.

• Brakes. Road contamination and moisture can effect your braking ability. This is especially true in winter due to salt and other materials used to battle snow and ice. A thorough brake inspection, particularly of friction materials, like pads shoes, is just what the doctor ordered.

• Heater/defroster. The heater and defroster provide warmth and comfort as well as good visibility for safe driving. A screeching sound when you turn on the heater or a stiff control lever can mean trouble so have it checked out.

• Fuel. In cold weather, keep your gas tank full. Pour a bottle of fuel de-icer in the tank once a month to prevent moisture from freezing in the fuel line.

• Windshield. Invest in rubber-clad winter blades that can help prevent ice and snow build-up. Wipers work harder clearing snow, frost, ice and road salt.

• Exhaust system. Have a qualified technician check your exhaust system on a lift for leaks, soft exhaust pipes, small holes in trunk and floorboards, and cracked rubber hangers or broken clamps. Failure to replace faulty components could be deadly.

"Each car, just like each person, is a little different," Burrows noted. "Learn about the needs of your own car. Everyone should begin a car preparedness inventory for each season by reading the owner's manual."

AAA Offers Winter Advice For Parents Of Young Drivers

Winter driving can be challenging to any motorist, but slippery roads can be especially difficult for novice drivers dealing with ice and snow for the first time, according to AAA Southern New England.

"Parents need to work with their teens to help them gain the experience they need for safe winter driving in the safest possible environment," said John Paul, AAA manager of Traffic Safety and Public Affairs.

AAA offers the following tips to help parents teach their teens to drive in winter conditions:

• Under close supervision, let your teen practice slow speed maneuvers on a wide-open snow- or ice-covered parking lot. Have him or her practice hard braking and steering in skidding conditions.

• A novice driver's first on-the-road experience with winter-weather driving should not occur during a major snowstorm. Wait until conditions are less severe.

• Consider limiting your teen's driving on slippery conditions to daylight hours until they have gained experience.

• Remind your teen that driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol is dangerous under any conditions, and that the risk is even greater on slippery roads.

• Make sure the vehicle your teen is driving is equipped with essential emergency equipment, including a cell phone, flashlight, blankets, jumper cables, sand or non-clumping cat litter and a small shovel or ice scraper.

SMART IDEA

In the mid- to late 1990s, most airbag-induced deaths among children and small adults were largely due to improperly positioned infant seats and unbuckled children. Fortunately, this problem was largely solved through an education program. Nonetheless, Congress directed the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) to come up with a technical solution to the problem. This gave rise to "smart" airbags, which will be in all vehicles by September 2006. In the meantime, smart-airbag systems began appearing in 2004 models. In some systems, a weight sensor in the front passenger seat detects passengers weighing less than 46 pounds, then deactivates the airbag. Other systems utilize ultrasonic detectors to detect the size and position of the front-seat passenger.

Emissions Tests

Many states require exhaust-gas emissions tests on all road vehicles. Your state's emissions or car-inspection facilities will take a sample from your car's tailpipe and run it through a computerized analysis. You car will "pass" or "fail" depending on the percentage of toxic emissions in your car's sample.

The only real way to prepare your vehicle for the emission test is to take good care of your car and utilize preventative maintenance. If your car is out of tune or you tamper with your emissions system, you probably won't pass.

The purpose of the emission-control system is just that — it controls the emissions and exhaust from your vehicle. The idea is to turn the harmful gases your engine manufactures into harmless ones that don't ruin the environment — or us.

Thanks to better, unleaded gasoline with additives, many of the harmful gases have already been eliminated. Although emissions-control systems vary between manufacturer and vehicle, all have the same goal and use many of the same methods in reducing a car's emissions. The addition of computerized ignition systems allows the engine to monitor and adjust itself continuously.

The best news is that emission controls have reduced carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions by about 96 percent from pre-control vehicles. For peace of mind, we recommend that you take your car to an independent mechanic who can test for emissions prior to the official test and have it checked.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) There could be some negative reaction to your tough stance when making a recent decision. But overall, your efforts result in well-earned recognition and all that can follow from that.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your financial situation seems confusing, even for the fiscally savvy Bovine. Maybe it's the conflicting advice you're getting. Check it out before things get too tangled to unknot.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A relaxed attitude goes a long way in helping you deal with any of life's irritants that might be popping up this week. You're also a reassuring role model for others in the same situation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspect favors creativity, which should persuade you to work on your artistic projects. If time is a problem, prioritize your commitments so that your work isn't compromised.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Scrutinize all the job offers that interest you. Most are honest and worth considering. But a few might not be completely forthcoming about what the job is and what the salary and benefits are.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unexpected snafu could delay the completion of a project you're eager to finish. Find out what's causing it, fix it, and if you need help, don't be shy about asking for it. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An idea that could be helpful to you comes from an unlikely source. Listen to it. Discuss it. If necessary, adjust it. If it looks as if it might work out quite well, go ahead and use it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful about allowing someone to share a very personal secret with you. This could cause problems down the line with others who are involved in that person's private life.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A cooling down of a relationship could be the result of neglect, unintended or not. To save it from icing over, you need to warm it up with a large dose of hot Sagittarius passion.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to get involved with a number of family matters that involve money and other issues that might jeopardize the closeness between and among family members.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Cheer up. That difficult person who appears to be deliberately stalling your project might just need to be reassured of the value she or he brings to it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Good news! Expect to feel re-energized now that you've gone through that stressful energy-depleting period involving a lot of changes. Now, go out there and show them what you can do.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a warm, giving nature that inspires many to follow your example.

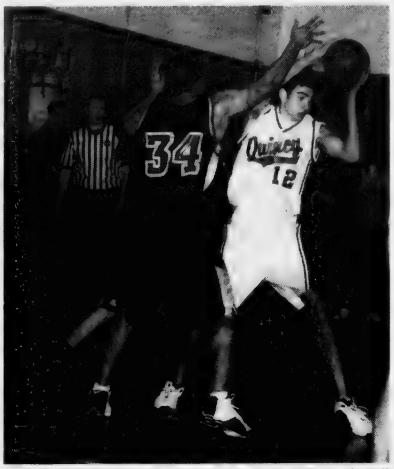
Presidents Sweep Raiders

By CHRIS POISSON



Enjoying its best season in many years, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team added another jewel to its treasure chest.

After being swept last year, the Presidents regained the city championship last Friday night with a defensive-minded 46-41 victory over North Quincy at home. They took the first game, 52-39, on Jan. 14.

Quincy (16-2 overall, 11-1 league), which captured the Atlantic Coast League North Division title, wrapped up the regular season earlier this week with its annual Quincy Invitational held Monday and Tuesday. It opened with Stoughton.

North Quincy (8-9 overall, 7-5 league) missed out on a chance to clinch second place and an automatic tournament berth with the loss. It needed to win two of its final three games to qualify. It participated in the Quincy Invitational, opening against Milton, and finished the season at Boston Latin Wednesday.

"I thought we just played great defense," said Quincy head coach Bob Fisher. "North Quincy emptied their hearts. I can't say enough about the way they played us. They played us tough. They played us with emotion. They played us with intensity."

JOHN FOLINO (12) grabs a rebound over North Quincy's Akil Benjamin (34) in Quincy's 46-41 win last Friday night at home. Folino finished with 11 points, eight rebounds and four blocks.

After spending 30 years with Rockland, Fisher reflected on his first city rivalry as head coach.

"It was like North Carolina versus Duke," he said. "The atmosphere was great. Both teams were first class in the way they handled themselves. There was no trash talking. The city did themselves proud with the two teams. It had to be great to be a spectator and watch it. I'm proud to be a part of the rivalry."

Quincy opened the game with a 9-4 lead in the first four minutes but NQ responded with a 6-0 spurt to go ahead, 10-9. Junior point guard Kyle Costa (game-high 19 points) coolly drained a 3-pointer. junior forward Akil Benjamin hit a free throw and Costa picked off a pass and went in for a layup to give NQ its first lead of the game.

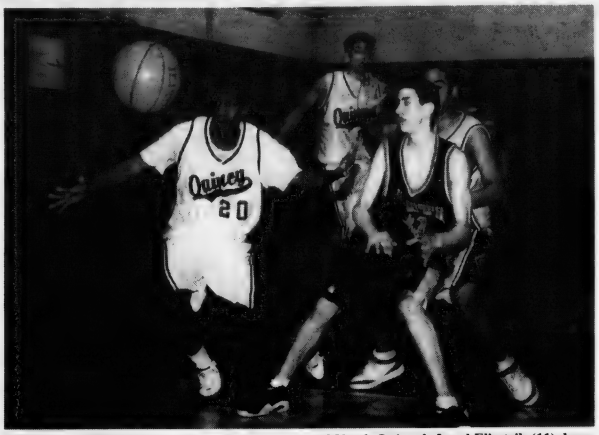
The Presidents went on an 8-0 run over the next four minutes to seize a 17-10 lead with four minutes left in the half. Aside from the Red Raiders' mini-run, the Presidents clearly had control of the game but found themselves up only 21-19 at the break.

That's because NQ junior guard Imad Elkatrib (nine points) knocked down a half-court bomb at the buzzer.

"I thought we were dominating the first half but we could never pull away," Fisher said.

In the second half, the Red Raiders discovered a little bit of offense, outscoring Quincy 8-3 in the first five minutes. Costa hit three layups, including a sensational spinning one, and Elkatrib scored an alley-oop off an inbounds play to hand NQ a 27-26 advantage — only its second and last lead of the game.

Aided by two bench players, Quincy tallied seven straight points to move ahead, 33-27, with 8:28 to play. After senior co-captain Parker Scott (12 points, five rebounds) hit a jumper, junior Joe Griffin scored off an inbounds pass and sophomore Steve Connolly sank a 3-pointer.



NQ pulled to within three points on several occasions but struggled to find a rhythm on offense. Quincy hit 6-of-8 at the free throw line in the final minute to cement the victory.

"The foul line really hurt us," said NQ head coach Jim Rendle. "They scored 17 from the foul line and we scored seven, a big difference in the game. Not getting to the foul line that much and not making them when we did hurt us."

"We couldn't beat them in the open court," he added. "We were confused out there far too much offensively. We never got into sets. I had to call a set play for us to score. (John) Folino blocked a couple of shots early and that intimidated us."

For Quincy, Folino, a senior co-captain, scored 11 points and dominated the paint with eight rebounds and four blocks. Senior Kenny Johnson also drew praise from Fisher for his nine-point, 10-rebound performance.

"Most underrated player around in this league," Fisher said. "He does all the dirty work. He's extremely unselfish. He gets big hoops. He plays good defense. He's having fun. Of all the kids on the team, he's improved the most. He gets better every day. I just love having him around as a player."

KENNY JOHNSON (20) and Lavell Johnson guard North Quincy's Imad Elkatrib (11) down low.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

As Nicole O'Sullivan's game-winner cruelly rolled off the rim at the buzzer, Quincy's tournament hopes also took a turn for the worse.

In the second chapter of the girls' basketball city rivalry last Friday, visiting North Quincy rallied from a 13-point halftime deficit to pull out a hold-your-breathe type 58-57 victory in overtime.

"My heart is pounding," said NQ head coach Doug MacFarlane after the game. "This is one of the best comebacks that I've coached. We were down seven to Brockton with two minutes to go and beat them. But this is different. This is a rivalry."

The Presidents (8-10 overall, 6-6 league) had a lot more at stake. A victory would have clinched second place in the Atlantic Coast League North Division, assuring them a berth in the state tournament. Instead, they had to win their final two games in the league tournament Tuesday (Nauset) and Wednesday to qualify.

"Yeah, there was a lot riding on this game," said Quincy head coach Jeff Bretsch. "It's hard on the girls. They played hard and were in a position to win."

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders (11-7 overall, 7-5 league), already tourney-bound with last Tuesday's 59-34 win over Plymouth North, played simply for pride. They felt they didn't bring their best in the first meeting, a 45-41 loss at home on Jan. 14.

"This was more for pride," MacFarlane said. "In our last game against them we were absolutely awful and it started out that way again in the first half. I thought, 'Here we go again.' But you have to give these girls a lot of credit. They didn't quit. They didn't give up."

Trailing 37-24 at the break, NQ cranked up its defensive pressure to crawl back into the game. And with 6:02 remaining, it finally drew even at 47-47 with a basket by junior Kelly Barden (11 rebounds).

"We played so well in the first half to get that lead and then we handed it right back to them," Bretsch said.

Barden sparked her team by scoring nine of 11 points in the second half, while the senior tri-captains also provided a lift. Guard Shauna Kelly (nine rebounds, four steals) poured in 13 of her 18 points and forward Sarah Goreham (five steals) added eight of her 17. Point guard Caitie Peters wreaked havoc defensively.

Down the stretch, the Red Raiders took the lead three times only to see the Presidents answer the call each time, including the one that sent the game into an extra session tied at 53.

With 10 seconds left, freshman Meagan Tobin — who knocked down a game-winning 3-pointer against Abington early in the year — missed a trey from the right corner. But O'Sullivan gathered the rebound and laid it back in. The senior co-captain dominated in the post, finishing with a game-high 20 points.

In OT, Kelly netted a pair at the line and fed a nice pass to Goreham in the post for an easy bucket. Barden added a free throw to close out the scoring for NQ.

Quincy's free throw shooting haunted them as it missed four, including the front end of one-and-ones twice.

"We had a tough stretch in the second half where we didn't score," Bretsch said. "And we had some difficulty at the line shooting free throws down the stretch."

In the first half, Kelly drained a 3-pointer to hand NQ a 12-11 lead with 10 minutes left. After Bretsch called a timeout, the Presidents responded with a 26-12 run over the final six minutes.

Junior forward Jessica Page — whose buzzer-beater lifted Quincy to last Monday's 53-51 win over Nauset — ignited the spurt with 13 of her 19 points during that time. Sophomore Brighid Kyle scored all nine of her points in the first half. She left with a mild concusion with six minutes remaining in the game.

"We were letting Quincy do whatever they wanted," MacFarlane said. "Our man-to-man wasn't working, and we're a very good man-to-man team. Our zone wasn't working. Quincy did a good job preparing for our press. I told the girls we need to pick up our defensive intensity."

KIWANIS TOURNAMENT

Quincy Squirts, Girls Win Openers

The 32nd annual Quincy Kiwanis International Youth Hockey Tournament got underway Monday at Quincy Youth Arena with a seven-game slate.

In Mites action, Weymouth defeated Quincy, 4-2. Quincy, which played Braintree Tuesday, will face Lewiston Friday at 9:20 a.m.

In the Squirts Division, Norwood blanked Braintree, 6-0, and Quincy skated to a 6-3 win over Norwood. Quincy, which played Norwood Tuesday, will meet Braintree Friday at 3:10 p.m.

In Girls play, the Quincy II squad bested Weymouth, 6-3. Quincy II will square off against Braintree Thursday at 6:40 p.m. and battle the other Quincy team Friday at 8:10 a.m.

That other Quincy team opened up Tuesday against Braintree and will meet Weymouth Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

In Pee Wees action, South Boston and Brockton settled for a 2-2 tie, Woburn downed Weymouth, 6-2, and the Seahawks edged Quincy, 2-1. Quincy, which played Braintree Wednesday at 3:10 p.m., will battle Hyde Park Thursday at 9:20 a.m.

In the Bantam Division, Quincy played the Seahawks Wednesday at 7:50 p.m. and will battle Braintree Thursday at 7:50 p.m. and California Friday at 10:30 a.m.

The semifinals will be held Saturday and the week-long tournament will culminate Sunday with five championship games: Bantams, 11 a.m.; Girls, 12:30 p.m.; Squirts, 2 p.m.; Mites, 3:30 p.m.; and Pee Wees, 5 p.m.

Youth Hockey Annual Meeting

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association will hold its annual meeting Monday, Feb. 28, at 7 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena.

All members are invited. The meeting will cover financial reports and rates and there will be discussion and nominations for Board of Directors.

NQ-Q Finish Year With Win Over Falmouth

GIRLS' TRACK

The North Quincy-Quincy High School girls' track team concluded its season with a bang.

It notched a dramatic win over Falmouth to finish with a 6-3 record and placed six girls on the Atlantic Coast League All-Star team with three others receiving special honors.

It was the second highest placing ACL team in the ACL/OCL All-Star meet and placed top 10 at the Division 1 State Championships with five athletes advancing to Allstate.

Against Falmouth, Molly Griffin's anchor leg proved to be the difference. She held off the talented Barbie Schouten, one of the top milers in the state, and led teammates Eileen Price, Ali Coughlin and Hayley Murphy to their best clocking of the season and a 51-44 win.

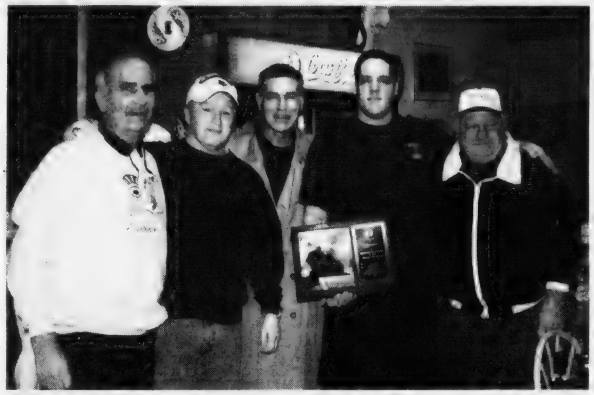
Other winners were Julie Holleran, 55 meters; Griffin, 300 meters; Coughlin, 600 meters; Price, 1,000 meters; Paula Morgan, shot-put; and Alex Nee, high jump.

Selected to the ACL All-Star team were Holleran, Griffin, Price, Kim Allen, Morgan and Kelly Pineo. Kerry Regan received honorable mention honors and Christine Benoit and Kristen Berry received sportsmanship awards.

At the ACL/OCL All-Star meet, NQ finished seventh out of 14 teams. Only league champ Dennis-Yarmouth placed better (fifth). Price won the 1,000 and Nee the high jump.

Other scorers were Griffin (300 meters), Jenna Furey and Regan (two miles), Allen (high jump) and Pineo (shot-put). The 4x800 relay team of Coughlin, Price, Furey and Regan took fourth. Another performance worthy of note was Jenny Tam leaping 15 feet, 1 inch in the long jump.

At the Division 1 State Championships, NQ/Q amassed 20 points for an eighth-place finish. The team briefly occupied second up until the two-mile run and the relays.



Morgan was perhaps the surprise of the meet, winning the shot-put with a toss of 34'6". Pineo placed fourth with a personal best 33'5". Price grabbed fifth in the 1,000 meters with a 3:05.24, also a personal best.

Nee and Allen both cleared 5 feet but Nee finished fourth on fewer misses while Kim took eighth.

Other competitors were Holleran and Krystin Newsom in the 55-meter dash; Jackie Watkins and Rachel Barrett, shot-put; Griffin, 300 meters; and Furey and Regan, two-mile run.

Nearly every girls had a season best performance in the meet.

Price, Morgan, Nee, Allen and Pineo advanced to the Allstate Friday at the Reggie Lewis Center. The top six in each event will move on to the New Englands, also held at the Reggie Lewis Center.

Raiders Defeat Whitman-Hanson

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The North Quincy High School freshman boys' basketball team split two games recently to bring its season record to 3-7 in the Atlantic Coast League North Division.

The Red Raiders held on for a 57-55 win over Whitman-Hanson (12-5) Feb. 11 at home, avenging a 14-point loss earlier in the season.

W-H built a five-point lead in the first five minutes until Jim Holcomb put back a missed three-pointer to bring the Red Raiders to within one, 11-10.

Chris Doyle followed up with a three-pointer and Danny Richards (17 points) stole the subsequent possession and drove the lane to give NQ a 16-13 lead at the midpoint of the first half.

The Panthers went on a 7-1 run to take a 22-20 lead, until Doyle found Matt O'Neil (15 points, 12 rebounds) under the hoop to tie the game at 22. Alex Tragellis found O'Neil in the lane on the next possession to retake the lead.

Phuoc Ngyuen continued NQ's ball hawking in the first half with a steal that led to his layup at the buzzer, giving the Red Raiders a 28-27 halftime lead.

W-H opened the second half with a three-pointer, but Richards answered from behind the arc to retake the lead with 30 seconds gone in the period.

The Panthers responded with a 7-1 run until a Sean Clifford steal, drive and dish to Will Ruan brought NQ back to within one. NQ's defensive pressure resulted in three Panthers' turnovers, including Tragellis' drive to give the Red Raiders a 45-40 lead at the eight-minute mark.

W-H responded with its own full-court pressure, but great ball movement from Greg Ingram to Ngyuen gave O'Neil a layup and the Red Raiders a seven-point lead. Tragellis and Richards would combine to push the lead to nine on the next possession.

NQ held a seven-point lead with two and a half minutes to go when a season-long free-throw shooting (12-for-34 in the game) problem would resurface.

NQ hit 2-of-8 opportunities at the line over the next two minutes and watched its lead drop to two with less than one second on the clock. W-H inbounded the ball and got off a three-pointer which banked off the rim at the buzzer.

On Feb. 8, NQ held a 10-point lead in the first half but couldn't hold off Plymouth South, losing 66-55. Nguyen and Ingram each scored 10 points. Zach O'Hara and Ethan Thomas hustled defensively.

QUINCY YOUTH BASKETBALL

Marlo Tersigni Captain Lawrence Academy Girls' Field Hockey Team

During the fall sports season at Lawrence Academy, senior Marlo Tersigni played midfield and defense and served as a captain for the most successful girls' field hockey team in the school's history.

Tersigni is the daughter of Michael Tersigni of Quincy and Mary Aframe of Worcester.

MARLO TERSIGNI

At an end-of-season athletic awards gathering, the team was recognized for its accomplishments and co-captain Annie LeClerc of Acton spoke for her teammates when she said that this season was like "sharing a dream with 17 friends." She gave much credit for their 15-1-2 record to Lynne Meterparel, "our new hardcore coach." That record placed them as second seed in the New England championships, where they were defeated in a semi-final match with the eventual champions.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

ALLERTON HOUSE residents and teammates (from left) Robert Carroll and Joseph White prepare to take on challengers Ray McCormick, maintenance director and Rich Scully, housekeeping and laundry manager for the assisted living community at Hancock Park. Teammates Carroll and White prevailed after an hour-long game and were treated to pizza.

Allerton House Residents Find Camaraderie, Friendly Competition Playing Pool

Playing pool tops the list of favorite social events for a significant number of men living at Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy.

Nearly 30 percent of the male assisted living residents gather every day or week to play pool. Allerton House Marketing Director Kelly Richards says the residents enjoy the camaraderie and friendly competition involved in the tournament play.

Every Wednesday at 1 p.m., the cover is removed from the pool table in the Creative Arts Room, the cues are readied, residents gather to cheer their favorite player, and the tournament begins.

Allerton House at Hancock Park is a 70-unit assisted living community owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, a trusted family name in senior and rehabilitative healthcare services on the South Shore for over 50 years. Welch Healthcare is a founding member of AURUM, a post-acute network of senior care services.

The Skinny on Body Fat

Q. Recently my husband and I had our body-fat percentages calculated, and we both tested above the recommended range for our age. However, our physician seemed more concerned with my husband's "spare tire" than with the excess body fat around my hips, thighs and rear. Is there a difference between body fat in women and men?

A. There is no difference in the type of body fat in women and men. However, the concern from your physician may be with the location of your husband's body fat. Research has found that the location of body fat on a person is just as significant as the amount.

Studies have identified a link between the amount of abdominal fat and an increased risk of certain medical conditions. Body fat that may accumulate around the waist and belly can produce a greater risk of heart disease than fat around other parts of the body such as the hips, thighs and rear.

Fat can be stored between the skin and abdominal muscle wall (subcutaneous fat), or stored beneath the muscles and wrapped around the internal organs (visceral fat). Visceral fat cannot be seen from the outside, however your physician can determine an increased health risk by observing the abdominal body fat and determining body-fat percentages.

Your thighs, hips and rear are not surrounding internal organs, and so place you at a lower risk for developing an increase of fat around the internal organs. However, for overall health benefits, it remains important to maintain a body-fat percentage within the range for your age.

Developing an exercise program that combines cardiovascular exercise, strength training and proper nutrition can help promote a healthy body-fat percentage. Monitor your progress by periodically having your body-fat percentage checked. Continue or modify your exercise and nutrition program based on your results.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE DECAY PROCESS

The tooth decay process begins when specific bacteria in plaque (the sticky substance that accumulates on teeth) feed on food sugars and release acid capable of dissolving tooth enamel. The first sign of tooth decay, which is not noticeable to the untrained eye, is a white or brown spot on the enamel that indicates that the tooth has begun to demineralize. At this stage, plaque removal and the application of topical fluorides can make it possible to stop the decay process and to remineralize the enamel. Otherwise, if the decay process is allowed to progress to the point where a cavity (hole) forms, the dentist has no choice but to remove the decay and fill the cavity.

Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we stress preventive health care for the entire family, and utilize state-of-the-art dental procedures. The best way to reduce your chances of getting any dental disease is to develop good oral hygiene habits. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com for more information.

P.S. Sugary foods that stick to the teeth present the greatest threat for tooth decay.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you know that you can develop nothing that does not exist first of all in your mind? It is your thinking that is your most precious asset. Nothing outside you can possibly affect you and your fortunes as much as what goes on in your mind. What you think affects your actions. Lovable thoughts produce one result. Thoughts of hate produce the opposite result. It is scientifically true: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

Psychiatrists explain a truth wise men have known for thousands of years! Every man is the sum total of his thoughts! What a help if psychiatrists could give their major attention to producing happiness, not curing unhappiness. People turn out to be happy people because of the kind of thinking they have being doing over the years – the thoughts they plant are the thoughts they harvest. Could any parent do his child a greater service than to make sure the right seeds are planted during the planting season? Self-confidence, self-respect, faith, confidence in others, kindness, humility, courage, honesty, love, unselfishness, tolerance, sincerity – are seed-thoughts that will choke out weeds and blossom in their time.

Retired Engineering Dept. Worker At Quincy Hospital

A funeral service for Donald "Smokey" Weixler, 70, of Quincy, a retired engineering department worker at Quincy Hospital, was held Feb. 17 at the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

He died Feb. 13 at Quincy Medical Center.

Mr. Weixler worked at Quincy Hospital for 40 years.

In the 1950s, he was a member of the Quincy Fire Auxiliary. He was a radio and scanner enthusiast.

Mr. Weixler was a former member of the Tapper Club and Boston Sparks Association. He was a member of the Southeastern Massachusetts Signalmen's Association.

He is survived by his wife, Loraine (Curtis) Weixler; a daughter, Beth Weixler of Wisconsin; a son, Donald L. Weixler of Quincy; a brother, Richard Weixler of Quincy; a sister, Marcia Corvi of Rockland; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Marjorie E. Stacey, 83

Retired Inspector

Marjorie E. (McCall) Stacey, 83, of Quincy, a retired inspector, died Feb. 14 at Quincy Rehabilitation and Nursing Center.

Born in New Brunswick, she lived in Allston before moving to Quincy eight years ago.

Wife of the late Earl Stacey, she is survived by a son, Earl Stacey of South Weymouth; a daughter, Georgia Spencer of Quincy; a brother, Harry McCall of York, Maine; seven grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

Arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to the Lupus Foundation of America, P.O. Box 631047, Baltimore, MD 21263-1047.

Board Weighs Appeal On Pension Ruling

each employer.

But the retirement board's attorney, Michael Sacco, called CRAB's decision "bizarre," and said he is seeking an opinion on the matter from the Public Employee Retirement Administration Commission (PERAC).

The retirement board is not aggrieved by CRAB's ruling; the city and QHA have a contractual obligation to remit to the retirement system its portion of the annual appropriation.

The issue involves how pension payouts will be divied up between the two employers.

Sacco, in a letter to retirement board members, said it is unclear whether the city can appeal this decision since it is not a party to the original suit. The city could intervene as a party of interest and take an appeal on its own, but it is not clear whether it has the standing to do so, according to Sacco.

The retirement board could file a complaint for judicial review of CRAB's decision in Superior Court, and the city could move to intervene in the matter, he said.

CRAB ruled that the privatization of Quincy Hospital in 1999 amounted to an "extraordinary" event, and therefore the authority should not be forced to make up the accrued liability from hospital employees.

In 1999, the hospital merged with the private Boston Medical Center and dropped about 1,000 employees from the city's ranks. Under the formula criticized by CRAB, the cost of the city's retirement system was split between the housing authority and the rest of the city based on payroll.

After the hospital was privatized, the authority began to pick up a larger chunk of the total payroll and was hit with bigger pension costs. In Fiscal 2002, the authority's contribution to the pension systems increased 40 percent to $725,000. The following year, the contribution jumped to $924,000 before the city opted to help out.

Realizing the authority's plight, the city intervened in years 2003 and 2004 to defray some of the pension costs, said Phelan.

Regardless of the decision, Phelan said he is hopeful that the city and QHA can come to a mutual agreement regarding pension costs.

"We were well on our way to making a lot of progress to alleviate some of the burden that has been placed on the housing authority," said Phelan. "Notwithstanding this decision, I am hopeful that we can come to an agreement that is mutually satisfactory to both sides regarding pension assessments."

Council President Frank McCauley, a member of the retirement board, said he favors an appeal.

"This is a very important issue - it means several hundred thousands of dollars to the city," said McCauley. "If this ruling stands the city is going to suffer."

McCauley also said the CRAB decision is significant because it could affect how other cities and towns calculate their pension payments.

About 90 percent of local pension systems in the state use the same calculation method as Quincy, according to retirement board Executive Director Edward Masterson.

Hunt said the ruling pertains only to pension systems that have undergone a "catastrophic" event, such as that encountered by Quincy.

She cited the increased pension payments as a major reason why the authority has struggled with its finances over the past few years.

(Cont'd From Page 1)

"We are fortunate to be able to utilize grant money and funds from the hotel/motel tax for such a great benefit to our citizens," said Phelan. "Our taxpayers will benefit from more than $10 million invested in our quality of life."

The city applied to the Division of Conservation Services' Self-Help grant program for funding assistance for the this parcel during the past two years.

The city council must sign off on any land acquisition efforts.

Richard J. Smith, 59

Retired Accountant

A funeral Mass for Richard J. Smith, 59, of Quincy, a retired accountant, was celebrated Feb. 17 at St. John's Church, 44 School St., Quincy.

He died Feb. 14 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth after a short illness.

Mr. Smith worked at Pappas Properties Co. in Boston for 30 years, retiring two years ago.

He was a Navy petty officer during the Vietnam War.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, he graduated from Quincy High School in 1963 and Bentley College in 1967.

Husband of the late Deborah (Merson) Smith, he is survived by two sons, Ellsworth Sheldon Smith of Quincy and Addam Joshua Smith of Brockton; a brother, Roy Smith of Holbrook; two sisters, Alice Manning of Braintree and Barbara Cody of Greenwich, Conn.; and many nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Quincy.

Stop & Shop/Giant To Donate $372,000 To Tsunami Relief

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company/Giant Food has announced plans to donate $372,000 to aid victims of the earthquake and tsunami that devastated southeast Asia.

The sum, consisting of $322,000 from customer and associate donations and $50,000 from the company's corporate office, will go to the U. S. Fund of UNICEF and the American Red Cross.

Stop & Shop/Giant associates began collecting donations from customers and associates in the chain's 550 stores shortly after the tsunami struck.

"The way our customers and associates reacted to this tragedy far from home demonstrates their generosity and goodwill," said Marc Smith, president and CEO. "It's heartwarming to see such a tremendous response."

The funds will be used for water purification tablets, medicine and basic supplies such as soap,. toothpaste and blankets.

State School Building Authority:

New H.S., Central Plan Is Ineligible For 90 Percent Aid

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

A proposed $132 million school project under consideration by school and city officials is not eligible for 90 percent reimbursement from the state, according to the state School Building Authority.

The development virtually kills the proposed plan and sends the city back to the drawing board regarding the construction of a Quincy High School and Central Middle School.

According to Katherine Craven, executive director of the Massachusetts School Building Authority, which oversees the reimbursement program, the preliminary plans outlined by school architects two weeks ago amount to a "substantial change in scope" when compared to the city's original plan submitted two years ago.

As a result, the proposed plan would not receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state, she said.

Under the original plan, the new high school was scheduled to be built on Faxon Field with a partial destruction of the wetlands.

That project has been held up by a time consuming and tedious permitting process.

Plans unveiled two weeks ago, however, called for the partial renovation of the existing high school at its current location on the corner of Coddington St. and Woodward Ave. A new Central Middle School would be built on Southern Artery near the corner of Russell Park.

The new proposal, however, would leave the wetlands intact.

"A change in the site of the project would therefore

Funds Available For 140 More Households

Fuel Assistance Program Underway

The city's emergency fuel assistance program is up and running, and more than 56 households have already registered for help, according to Mayor William Phelan's office.

Funds to accommodate an additional 145 homes are still available, according to city officials.

Phelan proposed the $50,000 program in response to rising fuel costs and limited increases in funding caps for those most in need. The program is being administered by the City of Quincy in conjunction with the Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP).

"With the cost of heating oil almost doubling from last year, the same benefit will get these needy families only half the benefit," said Phelan. "This amounts to a cut in their benefit and some will be forced to choose between heat, food and medicines. As mayor, I do not want people forced into such a situation."

The program aims to supplement fuel assistance for those Quincy residents currently participating in QCAP's fuel assistance program. Residents participating in an existing fuel assistance program may be eligible for a one-time benefit.

"We are grateful to the mayor for his allocation of money to help those in need because it has been a terrible winter for people," said Beth Ann Strollo, executive director of QCAP. "We're working closely with the city to make sure Quincy residents get help as quickly as they can. This money is helping a number of households in this city who are in desperate need and whose benefits from federal sources have been used up."

Residents who provide documentation from QCAP that they have expended their existing fuel assistance allotment can call the Office of Constituent Services at 617-376-1500.

Phelan thanked fuel providers who have agreed to deliver oil at the MOR price for needy residents and QCAP for their assistance in helping to adminster the city's program.

For more information on the fuel assistance program call 617-376-1363.

MMA Consulting Group Of Boston

Committee Recommends Company To Conduct Fire Department Study

The fire study committee has recommended a consultant to undertake a comprehensive study of the fire department's long term needs, according to Dave Murphy, Mayor William Phelan's aide and committee member.

The five-member committee unanimously chose MMA Consulting Group of Boston to conduct the study, according to Murphy.

MMA Consulting was chosen over Matrix Consulting Group of Palo Alto, Calif., and MGT of America Inc. of Columbia, South Carolina.

The city's chief procurement officer, Laurie Allen, will open the price proposals from all consultants this week. Allen has the authority to award the contract, under state law.

The main criteria utilized to select a consultant were years in the consulting business, highest educational degree on consulting team, years of fire service within the consulting team and number of like studies conducted in the past five years, said Murphy.

Bryan Connolly, Betty DeCristofaro Named To Park-Recreation Board

BRYAN CONNOLLY

BETTY DeCRISTOFARO

Former Ward 4 City Councillor Bryan Connolly and Mrs. Betty DeCristofaro have been appointed to the Park and Recreation Board by Mayor William Phelan.

Connolly replaces Anthony Sansevero. Mrs. DeCristofaro succeeds her late husband, former Ward 1 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro who died last year. She had been serving on the board as an interim member.

Connolly, who served as Ward 4 Councillor in 2002-2003, is now an attorney with the law firm of DLA, Piper, Rudnick, Gray, Cary, US, LLP.

"I am glad to have Bryan back in public service," Phelan said. "I believe he served the residents of Ward 4 admirably on the City Council and expect that he will do the same on the Park and Recreation Board. I am pleased that he accepted the invitation to serve."

Connolly said, "I want to thank Mayor Phelan for this opportunity to serve and I look forward to working with the other members of the board."

On Mrs. DeCristofaro's appointment, Phelan said:

"We are pleased to have Betty carry on the public service legacy of the DeCristofaro family. She has grown to be a valuable member of the board and I am pleased that she accepted the invitation to serve in Ted's place."

Mrs. DeCristofaro, a resident of 1000 Southern Artery, has been a volunteer in many civic and charitable causes.

"Betty has spent a lifetime in the service of others," Phelan said. "Her perspective and experiences are a welcome addition to the board. Her participating helps temper the loss of such a great advocate for the people of Ward 2 in her husband, Ted."

Connolly and Mrs. DeCristofaro join Bryant Carter, Connie Driscoll, Robert Evans, School Committeeman Ron Mariano, Jack Nigro and Josephine Shea on the 2005 board.

Raymondi Would Wrest Control From Harbormaster

Council Wades Into Mooring Fee Debate

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

The city council appears to be leaning in favor of giving itself greater control over whether the city can issue mooring fees to boaters.

At last week's city council meeting, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi waded into the debate by proposing an amendment to a city ordinance which would give the city council the authority to approve or reject mooring fees.

DANIEL RAYMONDI

At issue is whether the city's Harbormaster, Andrew Ayer, should institute a mooring fee without council approval.

Ayer, with Mayor William Phelan's support, drafted a mooring program last year after state Inspector General Gregory Sullivan said Quincy was not properly controlling boat moorings. Ayer maintains that Quincy must come up with a firm set of regulations so boaters are not anchoring anywhere.

Ayer wants to pay for the program with mooring fees.

According to Raymondi and other councillors, the city's decision to give a department head complete control over mooring fees would be a bad idea.

"This sets a horrible precedent," said Raymondi. "When you have a person who is not elected by the people, making decisions like this, it's not democracy."

In response, Raymondi proposed changes to city legal code that would require any mooring fees to be approved by the council. The amendment was placed in the council's ordinance committee for further review.

His overture appears to have wide support with colleagues.

"Councillor Raymondi raises an important point," said Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro. "The sense I get is that any taxes or fees should require council approval. Why should this be any different?"

Gutro said he would like to verify whether there are any other taxes or fees that are not approved by the council. Raymondi said he is unaware of any.

Dave Murphy, Phelan's aide, said Ayer is simply following a directive handed down by the Inspector General's office.

"The Inspector General has told us that we have to implement this program, and is it appropriate to ask the boaters, who are the sole reason for the particular cost, to pay for it - I would think so," he said.

Murphy said the costs associated with undertaking a mooring program could approach $100,000 per year.

"If the council would like to inject itself into the process then the onus is on them to come up with ways to pay for a mooring program," said Murphy. "If they have any better ideas we will listen to them."

Even Councillor John Keenan, who in 2003 cast the lone vote in favor of instituting a mooring fee, said he is tilting in Raymondi's direction.

Passage of the measure requires five votes, but the council would need a two-thirds majority, or six votes, to overturn a veto by Phelan.

In a letter issued last month to Council President Frank McCauley, Assistant City Solicitor Robert Quinn said state statute and city ordinances grant the city's Harbormaster the authority to issue mooring fees.

Quinn cited a state statute governing mooring fees, which says a mooring fee may be imposed by the "city or town or whoever is authorized by the city or town." City ordinances state that the "Harbormaster or his designee shall be responsible for the administration of this Chapter," according to Quinn.

In December of 2003, facing strong opposition from the city's boating community, the city council voted 8-1 against establishing mooring fees.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey, a boat owner himself, said he is unaware of any other coastal city in Massachusetts that gives total control of certain fees to a single individual.

"I find it hard to believe that a local governing body doesn't have the authority to set a fee," said Morrissey, noting that all state fees must receive the state Legislature's approval. "I've never seen anything like it - that won't go over too well with the public."

Morrissey recently sponsored legislation which now makes it illegal for a municipality to set fees that discriminate against boaters based solely on residency.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said the city must do a better job selling the idea, because many residents "do not see a direct nexus between the services provided and the fees proposed."

"Under the right circumstances a mooring fee should be considered," said Coughlin. "But I think many questions have been left unanswered in the harbormaster's proposal. We are not there yet."

Phelan Spearheads Honor For Former Political Rival

Sheets 'Thrilled' Library Wing Will Be Named For Him

By WILLIAM TRAYNOR

Former Mayor James Sheets said he is "thrilled" that the new addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library will be named after him.

On Monday, the library's board of trustees voted to name the $18 million wing after Sheets, the six-term mayor who was instrumental in securing funding for and overseeing construction of the new addition, which was completed in 2001.

"I'm thrilled," Sheets said after learning of the trustees' vote. "We put a lot of work into the library, which is such a central part of the city, both culturally and educationally."

The move was pushed by Sheets' political rival, Mayor William Phelan, who defeated Sheets by 17 votes in one of the city's biggest political upsets and the closest mayoral election in the city's history.

But despite their political differences, Phelan described Sheets as the main catalyst behind construction of the $18 million addition that was opened in the spring of 2001. The former mayor was instrumental in raising nearly $1 million, mostly through corporate donations, for furnishings and equipment for the new addition.

JAMES A. SHEETS

"I'm looking back on Mayor Sheets' term as mayor and as a city councillor, and he served the city for many, many years," Phelan told the board of trustees. "One of his prime accomplishments was the addition to the library.

"When I think of the impact this addition has had and will have on the lives of our citizens and children, I think it is fitting that we name it in his honor," said Phelan.

To make way for Phelan's proposal, the board rescinded a 1998 vote pushed by Chairwoman Sandra McCauley naming the addition after Warren Watson, the late library director who was a strong advocate for construction of the new wing. McCauley's motion was passed on a unanimous vote, even though construction of the wing had not yet been completed.

After rescinding the 1998 vote, a divided board voted 2-1 in favor of naming the wing after Sheets.

Phelan and the board of trustees agreed that the entire library should and will continue to be known as The Thomas Crane Public Library.

Board members Harold DiMattio and Carol Lee Griffin voted in favor of the move, while Chairwoman McCauley registered her opposition. Board member Lawrence Falvey Jr. abstained. Another board member, Alicia Coletti, was not present.

These stories helped shape Marquez's own signature writing style, later known as "magical realism."

• On March 2, 1949, the first automatic streetlight system in which the streetlights turned themselves on at dark using a photoelectric cell is installed in New Milford, Conn.

• On March 1, 1954, in the U.S. Capitol, four members of an extremist Puerto Rican nationalist group fire more than 30 shots at the floor of the House of Representatives from a visitors' gallery, wounding five U.S. representatives. The group was protesting the new constitution of Puerto Rico, which granted the U.S. Congress ultimate authority over the commonwealth's affairs.

• On March 5, 1960, Elvis Presley is discharged from the Army after a two-year hitch. Elvis received his draft notice in December 1957 but took a deferment to finish filming his fourth movie, "King Creole."

• On Feb. 28, 1983, "M*A*S*H," the cynical situation comedy about doctors behind the front lines of the Korean War, airs its final episode after 11 seasons. The last episode drew 77 percent of the TV viewing audience, the largest ever to watch a single TV show up to that time.

• On March 4, 1996, comedian Minnie Pearl, a longtime fixture of Nashville's Grand Ole Opry, dies. Pearl was famous for her comic monologues about hillbilly life, and was featured on the long-running syndicated show "Hee Haw" from 1970 to 1990.

A Little Black And White

How about a little change of pace this week? A column without politics. No speculation on who's running for the city council or school committee.

Or, whether Mayor Bill Phelan will get a free ride to a third term or might there be a challenger waiting in the wings?

No politics.

And you can thank old friend Tom Mullaney of Standish Ave.

MULLANEY

Tom sends along an item he says was sent to him by a friend over the Internet but has no idea who the author is.

It is called "Black And White" and if you are 40 or over and a TV fan he thinks you might find it nostalgic.

Goes like this:

You could hardly see for all the snow,
Spread the rabbit ears as far as they go.
Pull a chair up to the TV set,
"Good Night, David; Good Night, Chet."

Depending on the channel you tuned,
You got Rob and Laura — or Ward and June.
It felt so good. It felt so right.
Life looked better in black and white.

I Love Lucy, The Real McCoys,
Dennis the Menace, the Cleaver boys,
Rawhide, Gunsmoke, Wagon Train,
Superman, Jimmy and Lois Lane.

Father Knows Best, Patty Duke,
Rin Tin Tin and Lassie, too,
Donna Reed on Thursday night!
Life looked better in black and white.

I wanna go back to black and white.
Everything always turned out right.
Simple people, simple lives . . .
Good guys always won the fights.

Now nothing is the way it seems,
In living color on the TV screen.
Too many murders, too many fights,
I wanna go back to black and white.

In God they trusted, alone in bed they slept,
A promise made, was a promise kept.
They never cussed or broke their vows.
They'd never make the network now.

But if I could, I'd rather be
In a TV town in '53.
It felt so good, It felt so right
Life looked better in black and white.

I'd trade all the channels on the satellite
If I could just turn back the clock tonight,
To When everybody knew wrong from right.
Life was better in black and white!
Thanks, Tom for the memories.

Back in those black and white TV days, as I remember it, there were only three networks, and no cable, no satellite.

You could sit around and watch TV with the kids without worrying what might turn up on the TV screen. You never heard the word boobs on "I Love Lucy" or "Gunsmoke" or "Father Knows Best" or any of the other early hour shows. And there wasn't some Romeo wanting to try out a bed with someone.

And after the kids went to bed you could still tune in programs that didn't fill the screen with sex, violence, profanity, etc.

Today we have color and more channels than you can count. Some are good. But most of them you could easily live without. And fortunately can, with a click of the remote.

Someone once called television a vast wasteland.

The waste seems to be piling higher and higher — and in living color.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD is a view of the first electric streetcars to operate on the streets of Quincy. In 1888, the year Quincy became a city, the Quincy Street Railway Company built a power plant in Quincy Point and began using its first electrical streetcars here. Horse drawn cars on tracks had preceded the use of electricity. The company became the Quincy and Boston Railway Co. as shown on the side of the car here in 1895. The name changed several more times over the years as the track network grew and later merged with other small railways to reach all the towns south of Boston. By 1919 it was absorbed by the regional Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. that was later taken over by today's MBTA in 1968. The open-sided car shown here was used in the summertime. It was built by the Massachusetts Car Co. at their works in Ashburnham. The Eastern Mass, as it was widely known, discontinued using streetcars in Quincy in 1948. Remembering William Caddy And His Heroism On Iwo Jima

Sixty years ago, the United States was in the midst of one of the most deadliest battles of World War II, the Battle of Iwo Jima which lasted 36 days.

Some 7,000 Americans, including 6,000 Marines, died during this battle. Twenty-seven were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor including PFC William Caddy for whom Caddy Park is named.

William Caddy was killed in action on March 3, 1945. He was only 19 years old at the time. He jumped on a live grenade to save the lives of his comrades in battle. Giving up his life to save others. That sacrifice earned him the Medal of Honor. And he was not alone. Twenty-six others showed the same kind of courage, willing to sacrifice themselves for others.

Whenever I go to Caddy Park, I stop by that monument which marks the 1961 dedication of this park in honor of William Caddy. I never tire of reading the words carved into that granite stone. Those words are just as powerful today as they were years ago. As they were lived out on the battlefield 60 years ago.

I remember enlisting in the U.S. Air Force right out of high school in 1966. Many members of my generation sacrificed their lives in the jungles of Vietnam. Wars never seemed to go away. Today, once again our young men and women are sacrificing their lives all over again in Iraq. The beat goes on. Iwo Jima, Korea, Afghanistan and now Iraq.

We can disagree with our president over the war in Iraq as I have done, as others have done. As was done during the Vietnam War. However, we must not forget the sacrifices made on the battlefield whether it is today or 60 years ago.

Hopefully, someday we will not have to name parks in honor of those who sacrificed their lives for the rest of us. When we remember those who died, we honor our own very being. William Caddy represented all of us on the battlefield the day he died. All who were living or those even yet to be born like myself.

Caddy park isn't just a park, it is an honor of the highest merit. William Caddy wasn't a park, he was a young man killed so very young. He never had time to do all the things he should have done. He gave the rest of us a chance to do what he missed doing.

Remember Caddy and all our men and women who stand in the gap for us.

President's Social Security Fix Too Risky

I am writing this letter to the editor to say that President Bush's plan for fixing Social Security is too risky. His proposal to create personal accounts where individuals could invest in stocks and bonds is a bad idea. These accounts would diminish the Social Security safety net if workers make poor investment decisions, retire during a down market, or outlive their retirement.

Investing in equities, however, is a good idea. State and local government pension plans have invested their funds in equities for years, with an enviable history of success. The National Conference on Public Employee Pension Systems (NCPERS), whose members are the trustees and administrators of pension plans, has developed a five-point proposal (online at www.NCPERS.org) for restoring Social Security's long-term financial problems. It includes an investment component, but one much safer than the President's.

NCPERS proposes selecting a new, independent investment board whose members would determine how to invest a portion of the Social Security fund. Following the public pension model, 15 percent of the Social Security trust fund would be invested in equity market index funds, and 25 percent in state and local government bonds devoted exclusively to rebuilding the infrastructure of cities, countries and states. Both offer low risk with good returns.

For more than a century public pension plans have been invested following a similar model that resulted in remarkable stability. Their success is due to the use of considerable research and the advice of investment professionals who understand securities and have achieved an average annual return of 8 percent.

Congress must reject the high-risk Bush proposal to create private accountants. I urge Congress to slow down and carefully consider alternatives like NCPERS that would offer solvency for the Social Security system and retain current benefits — without increasing payroll taxes on middle and lower income workers or placing workers' benefits at risk.

Brett Proposes Third High School

This Week
1972
33 Years Ago

Rep. Joseph Brett, in a letter to School Supt. Lawrence Creedon, called for the construction of a third high school on land off Quarry Street.

"A third high school in the southwest are of the city makes sense," Brett said.

The School Committee had earlier turned down a similar proposal from Brett, but was still considering the construction of a new North Quincy High School next to the State Street South complex.

BID FOR NEW PARKING GARAGE DELAYED

DPW Commissioner James Ricciuti delayed the opening of bids for the new parking garage at Ross Parkingway because of changes in specifications sent out to late bidders.

Eighty general and sub-contractors requested plans so they could bid on the job; it was expected that 18 would file bids.

The three-story garage, designed by Joseph Donahue, would provide 800 parking spaces. It was scheduled to open next October in time for the Christmas shopping season. Bids were expected to come in, in the $3 million price range.

PAYMENT OF BACK TAXES COULD DROP TAX RATE

City Tax Collector and Treasurer Robert Foy III said payment of back taxes this month would drop the tax rate by $4.

At the end of the year $1 million in back taxes was outstanding. The figure was slightly higher than last year because of the economy.

Mayor Walter Hannon said that a higher rate for 1972 was already a reality, but he was making every effort to keep the increase as small as possible.

Interest of eight percent a year on back taxes was being increased to 10 percent to discourage large property owners from withholding tax payments in order to invest the money at rates higher than the interest paid on uncollected taxes.

The 1971 tax rate was $142.50.

The License Board suspended (then postponed) a one-month suspension of the license at the Washington Tap. One patron was found drinking there at 2:30 a.m.; another patron was shot leaving the premises. . . ENC basketball team ended its season with a 20-5 record under Coach Jim Smith. . . "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight" was playing at the Wollaston Theater. . . The temperature reached 67 degrees on Thursday of this week. . . George Fleming, project director, said that half of the 600 homes inspected in Quincy Point had code violations. . . . The inspection team was finishing up The North Quincy Improvement Project as the new Quincy Point program got underway. . . Sale of 3.1 acres of land next to the DPW complex to the Quincy Youth Hockey Association was opposed by DPW commissioners who said the land was needed for city purposes. . . Rev. Timothy Smith, pastor of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, was speaker at the World Day of Prayer at the Bethany Church chapel. . . Charles Edgerly of Newbury Ave. was elected new Chairman of the Council on Aging. He replaced former chairman Arthur Ciampa who was not re-appointed by Mayor Hannon. Also not re-appointed was Ann Gaffey. . . A Leap Year baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mariano of Harris St. . . Rep. Clifford Marshall sponsored legislation for the MDC to build an enclosed ice rink on Pond St. The $950,000 appropriation was approved for the construction of an MDC swimming pool in the new Lincoln-Hancock School, which was never built because of jurisdictional problems. Marshall wanted the money transferred from that account for construction of a rink instead. . . Richard McCormick of Gardiner Rd. was named assistant city solicitor, replacing John Sharry who became police counsel.

Squantum Naval Air Station Topic At Library

Donald Cann and John Galluzzo, co-authors of the new book, "Squantum and South Weymouth Naval Air Stations," will meet at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, Sunday, March 13 at 2 p.m. for a pictorial presentation and book signing.

The event was scheduled for Sunday, Jan 23, but was canceled due to the blizzard.

The eyes of the United States Navy first focused on Quincy's Squantum peninsula in 1909, when young pilots from around the world gathered for the Harvard Air meet. By the 1930s, the Victory Plant — a destroyer plant that set production records — had come and gone and the Navy had set up the nation's first naval reserve aviation training center on the site.

When air traffic over Boston Harbor thickened, the Navy moved its aerial operations inland to the South Weymouth Naval Air Station. That base and its ubiquitous hangar became South Shore landmarks for more than a half-century. "Squantum and South Weymouth Naval Air Stations" brings back to life the early age of naval aviation on the South Shore, from biplanes to blimps to bombers and beyond.

Cann, a Rockland resident, served with the U.S. Army and has long been interested in American military history. Galluzzo, of Hull, is the editor of "Wreck & Rescue Journal," a national Coast Guard history magazine, and author of four books on Hull and Scituate.

Quincy Art Association Exhibit Opens April 2

The Quincy Art Association will hold its third annual art exhibit April 2 through April 25 at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Maria Droste Services Receives Two Grants

The Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services of Quincy, a non-profit counseling and holistic agency, is the recipient of two recent grants.

A grant of $8,588 was received from the Harold Brooks Foundation. The foundation considers requests for assisting non-profit organizations that provide for the health. human services, religious, educational, environmental, recreational or cultural needs of the community, focusing on low income children and families particularly within the South Shore area,

Bank of America serves as co-trustee with Rev. M. James Workman, John Doody and Paul Mollica.

Maria Droste offers services for predominantly uninsured, low income individuals from the South Shore area and has been in operation since 1992.

"We are very excited to receive this funding from the Harold Brooks Foundation," said Sr. Lorraine Bernier, Interim Director. "This grant will afford us the opportunity to render service with a deep personal commitment to creating a safe place for all who need help and can benefit from our services."

A $1,000 grant was received from the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance (BHCHA) which works in collaboration with agencies to create healthier communities throughout the 13 BHCHA area communities.

The $1,000 grant will support Maria Droste's efforts to offer holistic therapies to individuals who seek complimentary methods of healing.

"We are very excited to receive this funding from the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance," said Sr. Elish McPartland, holistic therapist. "This grant will support our efforts to assist clients to improve their physical and emotional heath so as to be more productive members of the community.

"I didn't realize how much money I was spending on my house."

Glendon Crowell enjoyed his house in Quincy until he realized how much it was costing him. Then he discovered a smarter way to retire at Linden Ponds, the South Shore's newest active community for people 62-plus.

"I didn't realize how much money I was spending on my house until I gathered all of my bills together," says Glendon. "Now that I live at Linden Ponds, I was able to cancel all the services—electricity, gas, house maintenance—and it feels good."

The monthly service package at Linden Ponds streamlines all of your monthly bills, so you just have to write one check a month. It includes property taxes, gas, heat, electricity, A/C, sewer, water, trash collection, cable television, 24-hour security, home and grounds maintenance, and much more.

It's no wonder so many people from Quincy are making the smart decision to move to Linden Ponds.

We are coming to your town to talk about the Linden Ponds lifestyle. Call now to reserve your seat at our next informative luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. We'll also send you a FREE Information Kit.

March Menopause Madness
a Granite Medical Health Seminar

Wednesday, March 9th
6:00 - 7:00 p.m. at Granite Medical
Presented by Marilyn Green, RNC, NP

Menopause is normal. It is not an illness and it happens to every woman. At this seminar we will take a lighthearted look at menopause and challenge some common misconceptions. On a practical level, you will learn how to recognize the signs of menopause and to minimize the discomfort. And we'll have some fun.

All are welcome – you do not have to be a Granite Medical patient to attend. Register with the receptionist, by phone at 617-471-0033, or on line at www.GraniteMedical.com.

Light refreshments will be served.

New H.S., Central Plan Is Ineligible For 90 Percent Aid

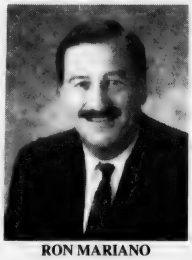
be a substantial change in scope, as would a change from construction of a new high school to renovation of the existing high school for continued use as a high school....." said Craven in a letter to Rep. Ron Mariano, also a member of the school committee.



To date, the state has not authorized any project with a change in scope to be allowed to remain on the waiting list for reimbursement, she said.

But Craven reaffirmed the city's 90 percent reimbursement rate for the previous plan.

"This knocks the proposed plan right out of the box," said Mariano. "But at least we have clarification and a clear sense of where we have to go with this."

School committee member have indicated that architects are working on backup plans that will be more environmentally friendly without jeopardizing the reimbursement rate.

In her letter, Craven said the city has been "repeatedly" advised by the Department of Education that any major change in the scope or the location of the Quincy High School may jeopardize the 90 percent reimbursement rate and eligibility for placement on the waiting list for projects.

RON MARIANO
'This knocks the plan right out of the box.'

In September, 2003, the city council approved a $111 million bond to be used for the construction of a new high school and renovation of the existing high school to transform it into Central Middle School.

Craven's letter states that any project submitted to the state that is "inconsistent" with the council's 2003 vote would jeopardize the 90 percent reimbursement and the project's eligibility for placement on the priority list.

In addition, Craven's letter states that the high school project is the only plan that has been considered by the Department of Education as eligible for reimbursement. Currently, the middle school portion of the project is not eligible for reimbursement because the city has not applied for it.

The city will be eligible to apply for the reimbursement rate for the middle school project no earlier than July 1, 2007, according to state officials.

Mariano said he will continue to work with the legislative delegation to ensure that the high school and middle school are eligible for the 90 percent reimbursement rate.

In her letter to Mariano, Craven refers to earlier correspondence dated August 4, 2003 and sent to Phelan from Commissioner David Driscoll which states, "The only project currently under consideration is for the construction of a new high school. Each school is considered a separate project requiring a separate application. The City of Quincy has not submitted any application to date for a middle school project."

Two weeks later, on August 18, 2003, Phelan submitted to the council a proposal asking for approval of a $111 million bond for the construction of a new high school and renovation of the existing high school to become a new Central Middle School.

The council approved the measure in September, 2003.

Emergency Agency Offers Post-Storm Safety Tips

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency offers safety tips following this week's storm.

MEMA Director Cristine McCombs urges residents to:

• Continue to stay off streets and roads to allow plowing operations to proceed smoothly.

• Help dig out fire hydrants and storm drains in your neighborhood.

• Avoid parking too close to corners, allowing public safety vehicles and plows to maneuver safely.

• Be careful of children playing in the streets, particularly climbing on or running out from behind large snowdrifts. Parents should remind their children to be aware of plowing operations and traffic.

• Clear exhaust vents from direct vent furnace systems to avoid carbon monoxide poisoning.

• Never run your automobile until exhaust pipe has been cleared of snow.

• Make sure backup generators are well ventilated.

• Take your time shoveling. Avoid over-exertion.

• Use care around any downed power lines. Assume a down wire is a live wire.

MEMA is the state agency responsible for coordinating federal, state, local, voluntary and private resources during emergencies and disasters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Fore more information about MEMA and winter preparedness, visit MEMA's web site at (www.mass.gov/mema).

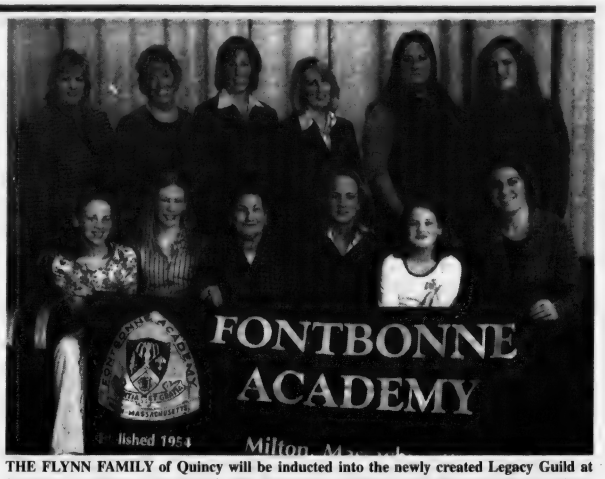
Marie Rust, Adams NHP Advocate, To Retire From National Park Post



Marie Rust, the northeast regional director of the National Park Service and a longtime advocate of the Adams National Historical Park's programs and initiatives, is retiring March 3 after 31 years with the NPS.

Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams NHP, noted that Rust's commitment to the Quincy park resulted in an educational program that reached 20,000 students and funding of many preservation and conservation projects.

Benjamin Adams, president of the Adams Memorial Society, praised Rust for her continued interest and the support she gave to preservation of the Old House, the keystone of the Adams NHP on Adams Street.

She also participated in several Quincy Partnership events highlighting Quincy and the Adams NHP by attending events honoring David McCullough and his book on John Adams and the dedication of the John Adams statue.

Rust also maintained stewardship of Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, the Shenandoah National Park, the Statue of Liberty, Boston's Freedom Trail and Acadia National Park in Maine.

THE FLYNN FAMILY of Quincy will be inducted into the newly created Legacy Guild at Fontbonne Academy at the school's 50th anniversary "Golden Gala" Saturday, March 19 from 6 to 11 p.m. at the Fairmont Copley Plaza in Boston. The Guild recognizes families who have sent three or more daughters to the school or those families that have had multiple generations attend the school. Standing (from left): Judith Flynn Coyne, Class of 1976; Colleen Flynn Gibbons '80; Maureen Flynn Burton '80; Denise Flynn McDonough '78; Nancy Flynn Figueiredo '74; and Maryann Flynn Lavoie '70. Seated (from left): Kaylan Gibbons, Danielle Burton, Ann Flynn, Erin McDonough '07; Jamie Figueiredo, and Michelle Lavoie '00.

Flynn Family To Be Honored At Fontbonne Academy's 'Golden Gala'

Celebrating its Golden Anniversary this year, Fontbonne Academy will hold its 50th Anniversary "Golden Gala" at the Fairmont Copley Plaza in Boston on Saturday, March 19, from 6-11 p.m.

Boston Police Commissioner Kathleen O'Toole—the first female to be appointed to that post—will give the keynote address at the event.

WCVB-TV Reporter Gail Huff will serve as Mistress of Ceremonies.

This black-tie optional dinner, taking place on the Feast of St. Joseph, will also feature an award ceremony to honor several people who have played an important role in bringing Fontbonne Academy to where it is today: Sister A. Catherine Murphy, CSJ, the school's founding principal, as well as the principals who followed her in that key administrative post; Sister Marilyn McGoldrick, CSJ, the school's first president.

Two families, including the Flynns of Quincy, will be inducted into the school's Legacy Guild. In honor of the school's 50th anniversary, Fontbonne Academy has established the Legacy Guild to recognize all those families who have sent three or more daughters to the school or those families that have had multiple generations attend the school.

Ann Flynn and her husband, the late Daniel J. Flynn, Jr., established an enduring legacy for their daughters in 1966. Six Flynn daughters, natives of Quincy, graduated from Fontbonne Academy between 1970 and 1980, and three of their daughters, the next generation, have already followed in their footsteps attending the all-girl, Catholic college-preparatory high school in Milton.

The evening will also feature dancing to live music, and the announcement of the winner of the Parisian Getaway Sweepstakes prize drawing. The winner will receive a weeklong trip to two to Paris, including roundtrip airfare and hotel accommodations.

Fontbonne Academy's Golden Gala event planning committee is comprised of Fontbonne alumnae, trustees, parents, staff and faculty volunteers. Four Quincy residents are serving on the committee: Camille Austin, Connie Cahill, Jeanne Marie Hopkins and Karen Little.

In addition to attending the event, individuals and companies are supporting this event by placing advertisements in Fontbonne Academy's 50th Anniversary commemorative ad book and participating in the Parisian Getaway Sweepstakes.

For tickets to the Golden Gala, contact MaryAnn Tosi at (617)698-2837; for information about supporting the event through the commemorative ad book and/or purchasing sweepstakes tickets, contact Liz Fitzsimons at (617) 696-3435.

Annual Dinner Dance To Aid Father Bill's Place

Father Bill's Place will hold its annual "Open Your Heart Dinner Dance" Friday, March 4, at 7 p.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Tickets are $65 per person, $100 per couple, with the proceeds going to support Father Bill's unique community-based approach to homelessness.

Programs at Father Bill's end not in simply a place to stay the night but a housing solution designed to integrate the homeless back into the social service delivery system.

The spirit of Father Bill's is exemplified in the cases of Leslie Schuler and Susan (who doesn't want her last name used) both of whom were saved in different ways by Father Bill's.

Leslie was diagnosed with cancer and underwent a bone marrow transplant that left the mother of a 10-year-old out of work and homeless. With no immune system, she could not risk staying at a homeless shelter.

FR. WILLIAM MCCARTHY

She called in vain on more than 100 agencies for help. Despite aid from family and friends, she could no longer afford her rent. She was about to be evicted. State Rep. James Murphy put her in touch with Father Bill's.

John Yazwinski, the executive director, gave her financial assistance to pay her back rent and helped to get her on her feet.

"There are good people in this world," she said, "but the best work at Father Bill's Place."

After Susan's husband died, she spent the next two years in an out of detox centers, halfway houses and with family.

"In 2003 I entered my last detox center with the bold realization that I needed this to work; I needed my life back," she said.

"I knew I couldn't do it alone and a friend told me about Father Bill's Place. I started to take care of my health, mentally and physically.

"For seven long months. Father Bill's Place provided me with shelter and the services I needed to get back on my feet. I got my life back.

"My immense gratitude for Father Bill's Place and the angels who fund the services I was able to utilize is never-ending."

For more information on the March 4 dinner dance, call John Yazwinski at 617-376-2255.

Quincy Medical Center To Host Employment Open House March 26

Quincy Medical Center will host a Rehabilitation Services Career Fair Saturday, March 26 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the medical center's Conference Center, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

During the fair, Human Resources representatives, the Director of Rehabilitation Services, and Rehab, Department representatives hiring will provide onsite interviews for licensed rehabilitation clinicians in the following categories:

Physical therapists, occupational therapists; speech and language pathologists; certified occupational therapy assistants; and registered physical therapy assistants.

The event is offered free of charge; appointments are not required.

A small table with puzzles and coloring books will be available for children, during the fair.

Therapists who bring along a fellow licensed therapist will be entered into the "Bring a Co-Worker" door prize drawing.

All candidates are asked to bring a resume and listing of professional references.

For more information, contact the Quincy Medical Center Human Resources Department at 617-376-5365.

Full-time, part-time and per diem positions are available in the Rehabilitation Services Department's outpatient, inpatient acute and inpatient transitional care programs.

The Outpatient Rehabilitation Services Department at Quincy Medical Center is staffed by a dedicated team of licensed physical therapists and assistants, occupational therapists and assistants, speech language pathologists, and support staff.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services.

Planning Can Help Keep Older Americans In Their Homes

(NAPS) — The desire to "age in place" or stay in one's home for as long as possible is the goal of many older Americans.

With some proactive planning, older adult homeowners can renovate their home and make it easier to remain independent as they age. With a home designed to adapt to long-term care, many older homeowners may find their dream retirement home is already right under their feet.

Simple changes to one's home can make a living environment more comfortable and safe for older adults as they age, said Jeffrey Taylor, vice president of Wells Fargo Home Mortgage's Senior Products Group.

However, many seniors would say they can't take on such a project because they don't have the money.

"But they can afford it," Taylor said. "Older homeowners can access built-up equity in their homes to generate tax-free cash advances to cover the costs of making a house barrier-free and ready for independent living."

One example is remodeling a bathroom to make it bigger and installing such safety features as grab bars and no-step showers. Other aging-in-place remodeling ideas include lowering cabinets and cooking surfaces in a kitchen to make it easier to use, putting in remote lighting controls throughout the house and widening doors and hallways so the home is wheelchair accessible.

These features can enhance home enjoyment for years to come, but on a more practical note, they make a house safer for older homeowners.

A reverse mortgage is a loan that lets senior homeowners convert part of the equity in their home into tax-free proceeds without having to sell a home, give up title or take on new monthly mortgage payments as long as they stay in the home.

According to Taylor, there are many resources available to help seniors evaluate their homes, determine their needs, plan solutions and compare costs.

Avoid Outdoor Electrical Hazards At Work, Home

Warmer weather brings an increase in outdoor work in many parts of the country, both on the job and at home. Increasing electrical safety awareness can help ensure those activities do not result in injuries and deaths, according to the Electrical Safety Foundation International (ESFI).

Thousands of workers are injured or killed each year due to electrical hazards. Electricity ranks sixth among all causes of occupational fatalities, according to studies developed by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, and published by the National Safety Council (NSC). The construction industry alone accounted for approximately 44 percent of electrical fatalities, according to NSC data.

Studies from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) indicate that while the death rate due to electrocution may be on the decline, more can be done to increase electrical safety awareness. The total number of electrocutions that were related to consumer products dropped 35 percent from 1991 to 2001.

"Whether working construction or working around your home, taking steps to avoid some of the primary causes of electrocutions and injuries can help keep you safe on the job," said Michael G. Clendenin, executive director of ESFI.

Awareness of the more frequent causes of electrical injuries — and following basic electrical safety guidelines — can help reduce electrical safety hazards for you, your family, friends and coworkers.

• In the workplace, contact with overhead power lines caused approximately 40 percent of job-related fatalities, NSC data shows.

• Contact with electric current from machines, tools, appliances, light fixtures or electrical wiring was a major cause of injuries and time away from the job, according to NSC statistics. CPSC listed large appliances as a cause of 34 percent of consumer-related electrocutions.

• CPSC studies found that ladders coming into contact with power lines caused 9 percent of consumer-related electrocutions.

• Gardening, lawn and farming equipment resulted in approximately 7 percent of the consumer-product electrocutions in the CPSC study.

ESFI notes that following safety rules can reduce electrical deaths and injuries:

• Water does not mix with electricity. Avoid damp conditions, including wet grass, when using electricity.

• Ladders, even those made of wood, carried in an upright position can contact a power line with potentially fatal results.

• Unplug outdoor tools and appliances when not in use.

• Inspect power tools and appliances for frayed cords, broken plugs and cracked or broken housing and repair or replace damaged items.

• Use ground fault circuit interrupters (GFCIs) on outdoor outlets. Portable GFCIs are available from most hardware and home improvement stores.

For more electrical safety information, visit www.electrical-safety.org.

Planning Can Help Keep Older Americans In Their Homes

Interior designers, builders and remodeling contractors and even occupational therapists can advise on ways to improve a home to suit changing needs. Reverse mortgage consultants can help seniors get the money needed to finance home renovations.

Wells Fargo Home Mortgage works closely with the Seniors Housing Council and National Remodelers Council of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) to educate consumers, builders and remodelers about how to incorporate aging-in-place features into homes.

The NAHB Remodelers Council offers a Certified Aging-in-Place Specialist (CAPS) professional designation, through which more than 500 professionals have been certified to design and build aesthetically enriching, barrier-free living environments, according to the NAHB. Wells Fargo Home Mortgage serves as a premier sponsor of the NAHB Seniors Housing Council for 2004-2005.

"By the time the average person retires, they own a home that is usually worth more than they paid for it," Taylor said. "It is pretty amazing that a senior could receive income from their house to make it their dream retirement home."

The proceeds from a reverse mortgage can help seniors have truly golden years.

"As baby boomers hit retirement age, reverse mortgages are expected to become even more popular," Taylor said.

Atlantic Restaurant Holds Grand Opening

City officials joined owners George and Petar Pepdjonovic and Quincy 2000 Collaborative in a grand opening ribbon cutting at the new Atlantic Restaurant, 535 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Quincy 2000 Collaborative provided a $50,000 business loan to help renovate the property and purchase new kitchen equipment.

"The financial resources provided by Quincy 2000 were one of the primary reasons we were able to give the building's interior such an extensive overhaul," said George Pepdjonovic.

George and Petar have extensive experience in the beverage and food service industry, and currently own the Mystic Lounge located next door to their new restaurant. Petar Pepdjonovic, past head bartender/manager at Anthony's Pier Four, brings a strong commitment to providing quality food and service to the 80-seat restaurant. Atlantic Restaurant offers a diverse menu.

"We take pride in providing great food and friendly service within a comfortable atmosphere," Peter said.

Quincy 2000 Collaborative is the city's public/private partnership for economic development.

"Through the continued support of Mayor William Phelan Quincy 2000 helps start-up restaurants and other businesses with financing," said Quincy 2000 Executive Director Dean Rizzo.

"Because Atlantic Restaurant met the job creation criteria, we were able to make Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) loan funds available for the renovations and equipment purchases."

Quincy Planning Director Dennis Harrington emphasized, "This loan is another good example of the type of resources that the city, in partnership with Quincy 2000, is able to provide to help businesses grown and expand in our community."

Quincy 2000 provides financing for Quincy businesses either through the city's CDBG Revolving Loan fund or through its Quincy 2000 Loan Pool. The Loan Pool is a consortium of 11 area banks which has approximately $5 million available for business expansions, equipment purchases, start-up costs and sign and façade improvements.

Participating banks in the Loan Pool consist of Asian American Bank, Bank of America, Century Bank, Citizens, Colonial Federal, Eastern, Rockland Trust, South Shore Co-operative, South Shore Savings, Sovereign and The Bank of Canton.

Lydon Funeral Home Renews Lofty Oaks Affiliation

Lydon Funeral Home of Quincy has renewed its affiliation with Lofty Oaks Association, a New Hampshire organization dedicated to reforestation and conservation efforts in Massachusetts.

The firm arranges to have a tree planted for each service that they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to renew the forest life of Massachusetts.

The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall. The program is part of a large endeavor, to restore the landscape and environment with the eternal beauty of living trees.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by Michelle and John J. Lydon Jr. of Lydon Funeral Home. When a certified nurseryman has planted the tree, the designated people receive a certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history.

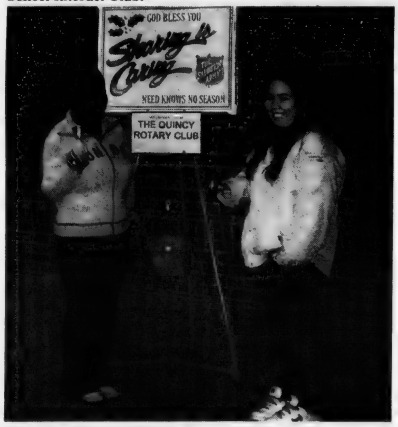
Interactors Have Busy Weekend Doing Community Service Projects

The weekend of Dec. 10-12 was a busy one for the North Quincy and Quincy High School Interact Clubs.

On Friday after school, the clubs met and collected over 55 Christmas stockings. They filled the stockings themselves with gifts for children from age 1-12. Then they delivered them to the American Red Cross office on Hancock Street in Quincy Center for distribution to needy area families.



On Saturday, the clubs rang the bells for the Salvation Army at the Stop and Shop on Southern Artery. They rang the bells from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. More than 36 members from both clubs participated.

On Sunday, 17 members from both schools helped with the Cerebral Palsy's annual Christmas Party which was held in the cafeteria of North Quincy High School. They helped decorate the cafeteria in a Christmas theme, served the food, took pictures of the partygoers with Santa and finished with the clean-up.

The Interact Clubs are sponsored by the Quincy Rotary Club. They are service clubs which volunteer their time around the community. They also do fundraising to support various charities.

RINGING THE BELL for the Salvation Army are Kevin Beatty (left) and Steven Zhen, members of the North Quincy High School Interact Club.

13-Seed Opened Tuesday At No. 4 Duxbury

Two Wins - Quincy's In

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The consolation bracket of last week's Atlantic Coast League Tournament in Sandwich held much more meaning for the Quincy High School girls' basketball team.

Needing to win their final two games of the season to qualify for the state tournament, the Presidents delivered a pair of two-point victories over Nauset, 33-31, last Tuesday and Falmouth, 45-43, last Wednesday.

No. 13 Quincy (10-10), in the postseason for the third straight year, opened Tuesday at No. 4 Duxbury (19-3) in the first round of the Division 2 South Sectionals. If it should advance, it will play the winner of the O'Bryant-Scituate game today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the quarterfinals.

"Our goals at the beginning of the season, considering we had only one returning starter, were to get better every game and to qualify for the tournament," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "We achieved both goals and we're excited. It was a real dramatic week for us."

To complicate matters last week, the Presidents had to play without their top performer for nearly three of the four halves.

Senior center and co-captain Nicole O'Sullivan, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, severely strained her calf muscle in the Nauset game and missed most of the second half and the entire game against Falmouth.

"To still win, without our leading scorer and rebounder, was a huge accomplishment," said Bretsch, who was hopeful O'Sullivan would be able to play in the tourney opener. "The girls are excited about that. It inspired them and gave them confidence."

In the Nauset game, Quincy built a 22-10 halftime advantage but almost blew it down the stretch after O'Sullivan went down with the injury. With about eight minutes remaining, O'Sullivan went up for a rebound and landed awkwardly.

"We played a strong first half but in the second half we struggled after Nicole got hurt," Bretsch said. "But we hung on and played some tough defense."

Most notably, junior forward Jessica Page. On Valentine's Day, she broke Nauset's hearts with a buzzer-beater and this time around a Nauset player went coast-to-coast for a layup attempt only to have her shot blocked by Page before time expired.

O'Sullivan scored 12 points and sophomore Brighid Kyle six. Junior guard Teri Murphy and freshman guard Meagan Tobin turned in strong defensive performances off the bench.

"That win gave us some hope," Bretsch said.

Against Falmouth, Page played the center position for the first time in O'Sullivan's absence and produced a double-double with 19 points and 10 rebounds.

Senior co-captain and point guard Rebekah Sorensen chipped in six, while Tobin had a breakout game with 13 points to go along with her usual stellar defense.

Another anxious moment at the end of the game. The Presidents were up five points when Falmouth's center nailed a 3-pointer with three seconds left. They turned the ball over on the subsequent inbounds play, but fortunately Falmouth never got a shot off from under the basket.

"That was our fifth straight game that came right down to the wire," Bretsch said. "That experience should help us handle pressure situations."

No. 11 North Quincy Opens At No. 6 Franklin

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team opened the Division 1 South Sectionals Tuesday.

The 11th-seeded Red Raiders (12-8) headed to No. 6 Franklin (15-5). If they should advance, they will play the winner of the Barnstable-Braintree game Friday in the quarterfinals.

NQ closed out the regular season last week with the Atlantic Coast League Tournament. It dropped a 51-45 decision to Sandwich in the first game but rebounded with a thrilling 75-73 victory over Dennis-Yarmouth in double overtime.

Gain Berth In South Sectionals

Red Raiders Stun Milton, Stoughton

By CHRIS POISSON

If you knew you were going to qualify for the state tournament, why not pull it off in the climatic way the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team did last week.

Participating in the Quincy Invitational for the first time, the Red Raiders stunned Milton, 51-49, and Stoughton, 45-43, with last-second shots to seize the championship and a berth in the Division 1 South Sectionals.

Clint Eastwood couldn't have directed it any better.

"It was nice to see us peak at the end," said head coach Jim Rendle. "We've had a tough schedule and that made a big difference. We've played a lot of good teams and that will help. We're looking forward to the tournament."

The 14th-seeded Red Raiders (10-10) headed to No. 3 Bridgewater-Raynham (17-3) Wednesday (7 p.m.) in the first round of the tournament. If they should advance, they will play the winner of the Attleboro-BC High game Saturday in the quarterfinals.

In its third game in as many nights, NQ closed out the regular season with a 66-50 loss at Boston Latin. Playing without standout center John Murray (flu), it ran on fumes down the stretch of a close game.

It's only fitting the Red Raiders persevered in those two close Quincy Invitational games; They've been on the other side almost a handful of times this season.

They dropped four games by three points or less, including a 56-54 loss to Rockland Dec. 21, a 45-44 defeat to Boston English Dec. 28, a 62-59 setback to Falmouth in overtime Jan. 21 and a 58-57 heartbreaker to Nauset on Valentine's Day.

In the final of the Quincy Invitational, NQ squared off against a potent Stoughton club (17-3).

After Stoughton took a 43-41 lead with 16 second left, NQ got the ball over half court and called a timeout, designing a 3-point attempt for Kyle Costa. Stoughton fouled Costa while shooting with two seconds left and the junior point guard hit 2-of-3 free throws to tie the game.

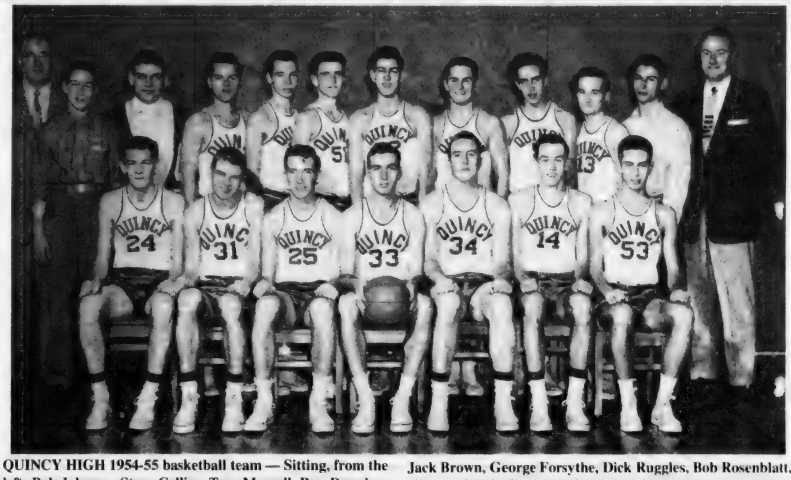
On the subsequent inbounds play, Stoughton turned the ball over when it threw it out of bounds near half court. With two seconds still on the clock but with no timeouts, NQ's chances seemed slim.

Like a Bill Belichick-coached team, though, the Red Raiders had their bases covered. "We have a half-court special inbounds play in our repertoire," Rendle said.

With Stoughton over-pursuing Costa and Murray, junior Imad Elkatrib cut to the basket and converted an alley-oop from Kevin Donovan for the miracle finish. They also ran that same play with success against Quincy Feb. 18.

Down 28-19 at halftime, the Red Raiders held Stoughton to 17 points over the final 16 minutes, limiting its top player, Shawn Leonard, to just two points after a 13-point first half performance.

"Akil Benjamin really shut him down in the second half," Rendle said. "He played him really tight and did an outstanding job.



"Stoughton is a high-scoring, very athletic team. We held them to 17 points in the second half, which was amazing. We did a great job defensively across the board and stopped them from scoring. We kept them out of their offense with steals and deflecting balls."

Murray (nine rebounds, two blocks) and Donovan each scored 14 points to lead the team. Costa added seven points and Elkatrib six along with six rebounds and six steals.

Against Milton, the Red Raiders led the entire game, and by as many as 14, before Milton evened the score at 49 with 20 seconds remaining.

After NQ called a timeout, it worked the ball against Milton's zone defense before Murray drilled a jumper from the foul line with six ticks left for the win.

Costa scored a team-high 20 points (7-for-7 free throws), Murray chipped in 10 and Elkatrib added nine.

Recalling The 1955 Presidents: Hardwood Highlights 50 Years Ago

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team has enjoyed long overdue success on the hardwood this season.

The Presidents captured the Atlantic Coast League North Division championship, regained the city title from North Quincy, won 17 games, including 11 straight, and qualified for the state tournament which got underway Wednesday.

Their mastery has rekindled memories of another great squad in school history — the 1954-1955 Presidents.

Fifty years ago, Quincy stormed through the regular season and playoffs only to lose in sudden death overtime to rival Somerville in the final of the Class A Tech Tourney at the Boston Garden.

Colclough, also a star football player, went on to play for the New England Patriots from 1960-1968, holding the record for career receiving yards before Stanley Morgan surpassed it in 1983.

Quincy rolled through the beginning of the season with a 7-0 overall mark (6-0 in the Greater Boston League), setting up an anticipated showdown at Somerville.

That night didn't live up to the hype as Somerville more than doubled up the Presidents at the half (37-18) en route to an easy 70-45 triumph to grab sole position of first place.

The Presidents rebounded from the disappointing loss to win six straight games in impressive fashion. They bested Malden, 73-57, in their very next outing.

Quincy then cruised to victories over Chelsea, Revere and Medford, the latter qualifying them for the tournament and also pushing them into a first-place tie with Somerville (10-1), which was stunned by Malden that same night.

After dismantling Lowell and Everett, the stage was set for a Jan. 18 rematch with Somerville in the final league game of the season, with the winner wearing the league crown outright.

That Friday night, on their home floor, the Presidents mesmerized their fans with a well-played 69-57 victory, capturing their third championship in their eighth year in the GBL. It also marked the first time they defeated Somerville at home.

Quincy came full circle, shooting a heated 48 percent from the floor compared to an icy 27 percent in the first meeting. Except for the early goings, it carried the advantage throughout and outscored them in the second quarter, 25-13, to seize control of the game.

The Presidents branded three more achievements to their legacy over the final two games of the regular season. They defeated Brockton at home to become the first Quincy team in 10 years to finish with an unblemished record at home.

And they ousted city rival North Quincy in the finale to win their fifth straight city title, while also tying the school record for fewest defeats with three other clubs. They finished the year 16-1 overall (13-1 GBL).

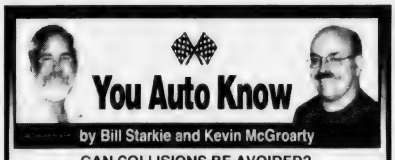
In the tournament, Quincy overcame sluggish first halves against Newton in the first round and Dorchester in the quarterfinals to advance to the semifinals at the Garden against Durfee.

The Presidents finally solved their early-game woes but only found themselves with a 26-24 lead at the break. They ran away in the second half, outscoring Durfee by 14 points for a 63-47 win.

The Class A championship game turned out to be a Round 3 bout with a familiar opponent — Somerville, which held on to a 55-53 win over Attleboro in the semifinals. That Saturday night, the 13,771 fans at the Garden witnessed a hard-fought contest with all the drama of a soap opera.

The Presidents reverted to their slow starts of the first two games of the tournament, falling behind 32-23 at halftime. But also like those games, they roared back in the third quarter to move ahead, 42-40.

Quincy had a five-point lead with under four minutes remaining, but it missed four free throws in the final 30 seconds, setting the stage for Somerville's Wayne Miles' buzzer-beater to send the game into overtime.



In the extra session, the Presidents led by three points with about a minute left but Somerville once again rallied to force a sudden death overtime, where Russ Barker scored 1:16 in to win the game.

Quincy No. 3 Seed In Div. 2 South Sectionals

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team earned the No. 3 seed in the Division 2 South Sectionals.

The Presidents (17-3) hosted No. 14 Norwood (10-8) Wednesday (7 p.m.). If they should advance, they will also host the winner of the Burke-Whitman-Hanson game Saturday in the quarterfinals.

Quincy closed out the regular season last week with its annual Quincy Invitational. It opened with a 58-57 loss to Stoughton (17-3), which is the No. 2 seed in the tournament, but bounced back the following night with a 66-55 victory over Milton in the consolation game.

CAN COLLISIONS BE AVOIDED?

Perhaps the most notable advance in automotive safety features is "passive crash avoidance technology." Just as some automobiles now utilize infrared technology to sense when a vehicle is about to hit an object in reverse while parking, this new feature utilizes similar sensors to detect imminent crashes ahead while driving. If a driver is tailgating and getting too close to the vehicle preceding it, the vehicle senses the potential danger and pushes the accelerator against the driver's foot. When the vehicle senses that a crash is inevitable, seatbelts tighten, seats are moved to optimal positions, and the vehicle braces for impact. This safety technology is already available in some vehicles and is sure to trickle down to other models.

Whether your car has a collision avoidance system or not, here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO our ASE Certified technicians will service your car with the same level of attention that they would give their own. We have a strong commitment to give your individual, personal treatment. Complete satisfaction begins right here in our service department. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) and let's get acquainted. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: Passive crash avoidance technology has already been implemented in Europe and Japan.

New Cardiac Support Group At QMC

Quincy Medical Center has established a new monthly Cardiac Support Group designed to assist patients recovering from a heart attack, heart surgery orother cardiac diagnosis and their families.

The free support group meets on the second Wednesday of each month,from 7 to 9 p.m., beginning Wednesday, March 9, in the QMC CardiacRehabilitation Department, 114 Whitwell Street, Quincy.

For moreinformation, contact Ann McGroarty, RN, at 617-376-5581.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents withcomprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliancefor Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, bringsacademic medicine to the community.

At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine, and psychiatry. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are boardcertified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work with community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

Free Glaucoma, Cataract Screenings Offered

The Quincy Lions Club and Nielsen Eye Center are joining forces to help local citizens maintain proper eye health and prevent vision loss.

The Quincy service club — which has long provided free eye exams and eyeglasses to local residents in need — is teaming with Crown Colony's Nielsen Eye Center to provide free glaucoma and cataract screenings.

Jennifer Logue, president of the Quincy Lions club, said such screenings are a key component of the club's "Share the Vision Campaign," an educational outreach initiative that aims to raise awareness of eye health and the warning signs of vision loss.

"Vision screenings can often detect eye disease and other vision problems in the early stages while they are still treatable," Logue said. "Part of the purpose of the 'Share the Vision Campaign' is to encourage residents to get regular eye examinations that can help identify problems and prevent vision loss or blindness."

According to Dr. Steven Nielsen, director of the Nielsen Eye Center, such screenings are particularly important for older individuals.

"By age 65, one in three Americans has some form of vision impairing disease," Nielsen said. "We need to reach seniors with the message that proper eye care is a significant component of their overall health."

Individuals who wish to receive a certificate for a free glaucoma or cataract screening can write the Quincy Lions Club, P.O. Box 27, Quincy, MA 02170, or call 617-328-1384. The certificate is also available on the club's web site (www.quincylions.org).

The Nielsen Eye Center is staffed by experienced board certified ophthalmologists. The team of dedicated professionals cares for patients with the latest technologies and advances in eye care and surgery.

Affiliations include Massachusetts Eye and Ear, Quincy Medical Center, South Shore Hospital and the Cataract and Laser Center of Dedham. Offices are located at 100 Congress St., Quincy, and 99 Derby St., Hingham. Appointments can be scheduled by calling 800-273-5655.

Women's Fitness Classes

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two women's fitness classes at the Fore River Clubhouse Feb. 28 to April 29.

Both programs will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings from 8:15 to 9:15. The instructor will be Karen Gaughan.

Each class includes exercise to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allows each participant to work out at their own pace.

The cost of the program is $50. Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Weight Training Can Reverse Aging Process

It's a medical fact that inactivity will accelerate the aging process. You become weaker, have less energy and find that everyday tasks become more difficult. On the other hand, regular weight training of all your muscles has been proven to keep your body in good working order. You can actually reverse the natural aging process just by weight training. This is why the term "use it or lose it" should be the rallying cry of a life-long commitment to exercise.

When starting a weight-training program, it is important that you exercise each muscle group equally. People sometimes favor the exercises that they find easy or in which they feel strong, and neglect areas in which they feel weak. This can lead to an imbalance and a limited performance potential. For instance, if you work the muscles in your back two times a week but neglect your stomach muscles, bad postural alignment and back problems can develop. Spend as much time on your abdominals as you do on your lower back.

Weight training is not something that takes three months to complete. Initially, it will take more work; lifting three times per week to achieve your goals should be sufficient at the beginning. Once you have achieved your goal, you can maintain it by cutting back to twice a week.

Your weight-training regimen should include every major muscle group so that your strength and muscle size is balanced. This should include the muscles of the legs (quadriceps, glutes, hamstrings and calves), the torso (stomach and lower back) and the upper body (back, chest, shoulders and arms).

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

It is common for children to have cold sores in and around their mouths. These blisters are caused by a virus called herpes simplex 1, which is transmitted in saliva. In some children, the first exposure to oral herpes makes them ill, with a fever and a mouthful of blisters. Others get a much milder infection. Once contracted, the virus remains in the nerves of the child's mouth for the rest of his or her life. The child may experience herpes only occasionally, usually due to fatigue or stress. Cold sores should not be confused with canker sores, which are open sores that appear inside the mouth. Canker sores run in families and are not thought to be contagious.

This column on herpes simplex 1 is prepared as a service to our local community. We believe it is important to get into the habit of good dental care at an early age. Children who begin to take care of their teeth at a young age are more likely to form good dental habits as adults. If you are looking for a family dentist who understands the needs of everyone in your family, we hope you will consider us. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we emphasize all aspects of oral health. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The standard treatment for children with frequent cold-sore outbreaks is a prescription of acyclovir, which is taken in liquid or pill form four times a day.

Sacred Heart, St. Ann Lenten Retreat March 7-10

Sacred Heart Parish, North Quincy and St. Ann Parish, Wollaston, will sponsor a collaborative Lenten Retreat from Monday, March 7 through Thursday, March 10.

Retreat events will be held Monday and Thursday at St. Ann Parish; events on Tuesday and Wednesday will be held at Sacred Heart Parish.

Retreat theme is "The Eucharist Builds the Church" and is inspired by Pope John Paul's declaration of 2005 as the "Year of the Eucharist." The theology and personal witness of Eucharist will be explored: as Initiation, as Communion, as Personal Encounter, and as Strength for the Journey.

Each retreat day features 9 a.m. daily Mass, a 9:30 a.m. presentation, and a 7 p.m. worship experience and presentation: Eucharistic Adoration and Benediction on Monday evening; Evening Prayer on Tuesday evening; a Communal Penance Service on Wednesday evening; and the closing Mass, refreshments and Fellowship on Thursday evening.

Presenters for the retreat are members of the pastoral staffs from both parishes: Rev. John Ronaghan, Rev. Michael Drea, Sr. Patricia Boyle CSJ and Frank Connell from St. Ann Parish; and Rev. John O'Brien, Rev. James McGowan and Rev. Mr. John Salenius from Sacred Heart Parish.

Retreat days are free. All are invited to attend any of the retreat sessions.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you ever read the poem written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the early 1900s - entitled "Which Are You?"

"There are two kinds of people on earth today; just two kinds of people, no more, I say . . . Not the sinner and saint, for it's well understood - the good are half bad, and the bad are half good. . . Not the rich and the poor, for to rate a man's wealth - you must first know the state of his conscience and health. . . Not the humble and proud, for in life's little span - who puts on vain airs, is not counted a man. . . Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years - bring each man his laughter and each man his tears. No; the two kinds of people on earth, I mean - are the people who lift, and the people who lean . . . Wherever you go, you will find the earth's masses - are always divided in just these two classes. . . And oddly enough, you will find, too, I mean - there's only one lifter to twenty who lean . . . In which class are you? Are you easing the load - of overtaxed lifters, who toil down the road? . . . Or are you a leaner, who lets others share - your portion of labor, worry and care?"

Don't you agree the thought is just as true today as it was almost a century ago?
